LANCASHIRE C.A.

We had a very good meeting at Littleborough show, Mr. Naden in the chair. Decided, that the next meeting be held at Rochdale O.C. The L.C.A. points are as follows: Champions, W. Adams, 23; J. Naden, 13; Novlee, E. T. Turner, 19; G. Fitton, 10; F. Fish, 17; H. Woodhead, 4. These points were gained at Littleborough Show. C. WHITEHEAD, sec.

QUEEN'S PARK (Glasgow) C.B.A.

Monthly meeting held at Marie Stuart Hall, Langside Road, when the business was mostly relative to our annual show, held Nov. 20th. It was arranged to have a table show for next meeting: One class Nor., 1 Yorks., 1 Goldie, and 1 Linnet. Members please note next meeting Dec. 24th.—GEO. N. THOMSON, sec., 228, Allison Street.

Y.C.C. OF IRELAND.

Committee meeting held on Nov. 21st. Mr. O'Reilly took the chair. Present: Messrs. Kenny, Duigenan, Dowling, Lambert, Neal, and Hyland, hon sec., pro tem. A number of names were proposed and accepted for membership. The secretary was instructed to make arrangements to have staging, etc., erected for show. In consequence of the small number of entries received from the members of the Norwich Plainhead Club (Belfast), it was proposed, seconded, and carried, that the patronage of the Y.C.C. of Ireland be withdrawn from the N.P.H. Club's coming show, and the secretary was instructed to inform Mr. Stewart. This concluded the business, and the meeting was adjourned.—J. R. HYLAND, Sec.

BANBRIDGE C.B.S.

Meeting held on Nov. 27th in the Town Hall for the purpose of considering the treasurer's report and statement of accounts in connection with the recent show. Mr. C. Halliday (president) occupied the chair, and there was a fair attendance. The treasurer's statement showed receipts arcounting to £57 14s. 9d., and expenditure £55 14s. 6d., leaving a credit balance on the year's working of £2 0s. 3d., and with balance in hand from previous account a balance of over £5 was recorded. After some discussion, the committee fixed the dates of next year's show as Nov. 12th and 13th. Mr. Albert M'Cagherty, in moving a vote of thanks to the hon. secretary (Mr. R. J. Hamilton) and the hon. treas. (Mr. A. M'Cammon), said the success of the show was decidedly due to the capable management of their secretary, who had displayed great tact and ability in the general arrangements. Mr. J. Woods seconded the motion, which was passed by acclamation. The secretary and treasurer suitably replied, and a voto of thanks having been accorded the gentlemen who had supplied special prizes to the show, the meeting terminated.

KING'S HEATH & MOSELEY F&F.S.

Extraordinary general meeting, held at Red Lion Hotel, on Nov. 24th, to consider the position of the society owing to the necessity occasioned, through lack of support, for cancelling the members' young stock show, and to consider the financial state. By some the paucity of the members' entries was attributed to a general apathy, and by others to a bad breeding season, coupled with bad trade. There is a strong little band, if only small, of real fanciers—made of the right stuff, and supported by so capable a chairman as Mr. A. Baker, who has now held that office for seven years—and they are a long way from showing the "white flag." Regarding the financial state, it was found to be sound, the present trouble being that so many members are backward with their subscriptions; if about 75 per cent. were paid up the balance in hand would be something like £25. Much appreciation and many grateful thanks were expressed to the past president, president, and vice-presidents for the excellent example set, and for their kindly aid. Will those members who are so deplorably backward come up like real fanciers, pay their "subs." or some part of them, or else say they either won't or can't? December 29th there will be a table show, and also a sweepstake show.—H. E. PATTERSON, hon. sec.

Hatherleigh, Dec. 21st.—2 classes: 1, Brit. and 1 Can. Prizes, 3/-, 2/-, 1/-. Fee, 6d. Ent. close Dec. 14th to H. H. HILL, Bridge-st.

The Shows.

CITY & SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Held Nov. 19th and 20th. The magnificent display put up by the members of the City and Suburban A.C.B. at the annual fixture broke all the records of the society, and also easily eclipsed all London records for a members' show. The entries totalled 523 (over 100 more than last year), and the quality of the birds in every section showed a distinct advance. The Canaries made a lovely display, and were a very high class lot indeed, the Novice Yellow Yorks., with 17 entries, providing the biggest class in the show. Of the British it can only be said that they were magnificent; you could count on the fingers of one hand all the open shows with any pretensions to beat the collection seen here. Four or five of our best-known fanciers had grand teams out, in an effort to capture the society's handsome cups. The British were the admiration of all visitors. The establishment of price limit British classes (to help the novices) proved a distinct success. We have never seen the handsome hall at headquarters, The Church Institute, Paddington st., W., look better, the officials having made admirable arrangements to cope with the huge entry. An ante-room was engaged to hold the limit classes. We have once again to congratulate Mr. V. Wynn, the hon. sec., on a notable achievement. A better and harder worker is not in the Fancy, and the manner in which he goes from success to greater success at every succeeding venture, is remarkable. And he deserves it all, for he is a most able official, and a "trier" if ever there was one. He received very valuable assistance from Mr. F. Wyse, who did a heap of things in a most efficient manner, and skilfully looked after the birds, the Britishers especially; he is a thorough fancier. Others who rendered yeoman service were Mrs. Wyse, Mrs. Page, Mrs. Morrison, Miss Shephard, and Messrs. W. Shepherd, A. W. Curtis, A. W. Hart, W. Page, and G. Morrison, with Messrs. J. Burton, W. G. Sanders, F. Curry, W. Prance, H. Davis, E. Offord, and F. Fullenger as members of the Council. Mr. A. C. Burn, the genial chairman, also helped largely to keep matters sailing smoothly along. The chief special winners were Messrs. R. L. Crisp, the Yorks. cup and diploma best bird in show; G. Saytch, the McGruther shield, and Trower's gold medal; F. Knight, the Coronation cup; T. Monger, novice Yorks. cup; H. W. Dickinson, "Prance" cup, best young Crest, and "Wynn" cup, most points novice section; A. W. Curtis, "Lassie's" cup, best hen in show; J. Goodall, "Hybrid" (Miss Joliffe) rose bowl; A. J. Marley, the "Francis" and "Wynn" points cups; R. J. Watts, the "Oartside" cup, best Foreign (which now becomes his own property); Mrs. G. E. Weston, the "Mayfair" challenge cup, and "Trower's" cup best insectivorous bird, also tying with Mr. W. Francis for the "Wyse" cup; medal best Nor. unflighted, J. Warwick; most points in show, C. Prior; two For. specials, Mrs. Maher; Sandilford's special, J. Buchanan; best staged bird in Brit., Mrs. Weston; best first year novice Can., H. Hills; best staged novice Can., T. Monger. The Association's diplomas went to R. L. Crisp (best hird), J. Goodall (best Hybrid), C. Prior (best Brit.), R. J. Watts (best For.), R. L. Crisp (best champion Can.), G. Pile (best amat.), T. MUIRKIRK.

The Muirkirk O.S. held their annual open show on November 27th. Although the day was very stormy there was a good turn-out of visitors in the afternoon. The cage birds were staged in the small hall at the back, and this was much appreciated. There is a good light in the hall, and the birds were very comfortable. Entries were down on former years, but the bad weather had a lot to do with this. Mr. Mossie placed the awards, which seemed to meet with approval. The Secretary (Mr. R. Thomson) had everything well in hand, and was well assisted by a hard-working committee, consisting of such well-known fanciers as Mr. Smith (President), Mr. Findlay (Vice-President), and Messrs. Cook, Maxwell, Hazel, Hamilton, Thomas, Ree, Brown, Strathearn, Murdoch, Montgomerie, Dempster, Haugh, and Kerr.

SUDBURY (Suffolk).

A nice little show was that of the Sudbury Society, which was held in the Drill Hall on November 30. Considering the low prize money and the limited classification the entry and quality were both good. All the arrangements were well carried out by the executive under the leadership of Major Annes and Mr. W. J. Longden, while Mr. V. Machin Goodall, the hon. sec., was most obliging and courteous. Mr. C. A. House judged.

MORECAMBE.

Morecambe C.B.S. held their annual show in the Fairfield Hall on Nov. 30th and Dec. 1st. The birds were nicely staged, and although the entries did not come up to expectation, the quality was all there, and no wonder, when such exhibitors as Dr. Herd, Fox, Wilkinson, Mrs. Martin and Bailey in the Norwich section, and Messrs. Ambler, Shackleton, Crabtree, Chippendale, and Drake, benched some tip-top Yorkies. The British and Foreign birds turned up well and some real good specimens were shown. Mr. Fox's unflighted yellow Norwich was much admired. We must congratulate Mr. Pickles, the hon. sec., Mr. Ireland, the show manager, and the excellent committee, on the way in which they looked after the exhibits, and the grand arrangements made. Mr. W. Mundell judged.

The Gull in Cornwall.

The Gull is in a paradise in Cornish fishing villages, perched upon the boats and the roofs of houses. He is an attentive observer of all that is going on, and is quick to snatch up any unconsidered trifle when no one is looking.

Manager, "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

Twitterings.

Special No. 128 in our schedule should read: "Open to all comers," writes Mr. R. Conely, secretary of the Vale of Leven and Dumbartonshire O.S.

It may interest your readers to know that I have sold my promising young buff green Norwich Canary to Mr. Pyke, of Preston, writes Mr. J. Walker (Liverpool).

Kindly thank all exhibitors for their support at our show held on November 17th and 18th. We also thank you for the report you gave us in CAGE BIRDS.—P. J. GASKIN, hon. secretary, Dundalk C.B.A.

Class 43 in our schedule, writes Mr. G. Buck, hon. secretary of the Gateshead and Dis. C.B.S. Show, should read: "Yorkshire hen, unflighted, bred 1909," the printer having left out the word "hen."

Crystal Palace Bird Show.—All matter for schedule, viz., subscriptions to prize fund, offers of special prizes, advertisements, etc., must reach me by 1st post Monday, December 6th. —J. W. Ramsden, show manager, 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, S.W.—(ADVT.)

All schedules of the Long Eaton and Dis C.B.S. annual show on December 18th have been sent out, writes Mr. A. E. Wigginton, the hon. secretary. Anyone who has been overlooked kindly communicate with me at 94, Station Road, Long Eaton.

I have to thank you for your excellent report of our show in CAGE BIRDS; it is enough to increase our membership. Also your plate of Canaries was delightful. I wish your paper even further success.—W. HOLTON, hon. secretary of the Edinburgh N.C. and M.B.S.

Although the Littlehorough C.B.S. have to report a great financial loss on their open show held on November 27th, writes Mr. H. Smith, the hon. secretary, we were able to pay all prize money and specials by November 29th. The members feel keenly the scanty support allotted to them from their near neighbours, and feel sure if these would only support us as we endeavour to support them, a far better report would be forthcoming.

Being short handed at our show, writes Mr. J. Irlam, hon. secretary of the Sale Open O.S., I am sorry to say several cages got wrong award slips put on them, but all prize money will be paid from the judge's slip. Also, the errors which have crept into the catalogue will be rectified in the same way. There are several catalogues gone astray in the post, and I hope fanciers not having received their prize money or cards will let me know at once.

The novelty of the recent Reading Members' Show was a splendid black Bullfinch belonging to Mr. Acton, writes Mr. W. H. Pyke, the hon. secretary, the judge remarking that it was the finest he had ever seen. A nice pied Linnet was also a great attraction. Entries were over a hundred, and all prize money was paid out before the show closed. All fanciers present were surprised and delighted at the excellence of the birds, many of them remarking that they did not know such good birds were bred in Reading. Several new members were enrolled during the show.

TWITTERINGS: Continued.

We learn that all the cage bird classes at Neath Show were cancelled, owing to lack of support.

Stirling report in the Borders old hen class should read: 1st, Munro.—Wm. Munro (Strathyre).

We hear that Mr. A. Wellings (Prescot) will judge the cage bird section at Douglas (I.O.M.) Show on New Year's Day.

The dark Canary Mule, placed in the Bristol Show report 2nd, belonged to me and not "Pave," writes Mr. J. Gough (Oxford).

Bristol report should read in the Hardbill A.O.S. Class: 1st Wills, and not Hills, as printed.—F. A. D. Wills (Plymouth).

Sunderland report says "no name" in the Crested Hen Class. We were 1st and spl. and 4th in that class.—Dobson and Son (Blaydon).

Our next annual show is fixed for November 10th, 1910. Will secretaries please note, so as not to clash?—J. Tottle, show manager, of the Frome C.B.S.

I must thank you for the grand plates that have come out with Cage Birds during the last few weeks; they are all worth framing.—F. Miles (Watergate).

Will Mrs. Wild, of Gorton, Manchester, who sent to me recently, please write again, as I have mislaid the address.—E. Vernum (Fulham, London, S.W.).

Our members' show will be held on December 18th, writes Mr. H. Parkinson, hon. secretary of the Bolton and Dis. O.S., when Mr. T. Seed (Rishton) will judge.

A Canary which has been in my possession for over fourteen years, has, writes Mr. A. W. Edwards (London, N.), just died. This is surely a case of unusual longevity.

Bristol report in the Mule A.O.V. Class credits Mr. Pave with second place, whereas it should be given to Mr. Pace, who had C in the Greypate class.—M. D. Barnes (Bristol).

I shall not soon forget Cage Birds. I would walk five miles for it rather than miss it any week. It is a grand paper, and every fancier should get it weekly.—R. T. Gregory (Hayle).

I am sorry that I omitted the following society from our handbook, viz., Eastfield Side, J. Carlin, Beighton Street, Sutton-in-Ashfield, writes Mr. J. Raynes, secretary of the Cage Bird Union.

Will Mr. A. R. Young, who sent us an advertisement referring to a pushcar, kindly post us a duplicate copy of the advertisement, as the original has been badly torn and the address obliterated.

At the Glasgow and West of Scotland Show held recently, in a class of 21 yellow cock Yorkshires, I was 1st and 2nd, and not Mr. McRobbie, as reported.—J. Cockburn Dyson, M.D. (Glasgow).

In my letters published last week, writes Mr. G. T. Jones, hon. sec. Welsh C.B.C., the Latin sentence was printed incorrectly. I may say that its meaning is: "Evil does not always come to injure."

A printer's error occurs in the schedule of the Broxburn and Dis. C.B.S.: Vice-president John Boaz, East End, Broxburn, instead of James McNamee, one of the committee of management.—David Anthony, secretary.

Our annual club show held on November 20th, turned out to be the best held in Stirling for many years, both in numbers and quality, well over 300 exhibits being staged, writes Mr. Gollan Hislop, hon. secretary of the Stirling and Dis. O.S.

Luton C.B.S. are compelled to extend entries to first post December 5th, as entries only number 14 in 31 open classes, writes Mr. E. Cherry, the hon. secretary. Please send on, and I will classify; big cash specials, and prompt prize money.

The special prize given by Messrs. Hyde and Co., Camberwell, for best bird fed on their food, was won by Mr. J. Smedley, Barker Street, Huthwaite, at the Eastfield Side C.B.I.S., Show, held on November 6th last, writes Mr. J. Carlin, the hon. secretary.

I have sold my variegated yellow Norwich, 1st at Newcastle and at Preston, and winner of Sandiford's Cup, to Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor, of Preston, writes Mr. J. Smeaton (Prestonpans), they having secured gold medal for best bird at Pendleton and Salford since with it.

At Kilmarnock Show, on January 1 and 3 (Mr. John Blane, secretary), the judges appointed are Mr. R. Price (Barrhead), Scots Fancies; Mr. J. Calderwood (Kilmarnock), Norwich; Mr. T. Findlay (Muirkirk), Borders; and Mr. A. A. Manchan (Dumbarton), British and Foreign.

Fanciers, please help us; only 20 entries so far in 30 classes. Send along your entries, we will classify. We have a good classification and several cups and specials. Entries extended to first post, December 5th.—W. J. Edwards, secretary, Six Bells (Abertillery) and Dis. C.B.S.

Dunfermline Show will be held on January 1 and 3, we hear, with Mr. John Templeman still at the secretarial helm. The judges appointed are, Mr. T. Smith (Glasgow), Scots Fancies; Mr. Robt. Lamble (Whitburn), Borders; and Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow), British and Foreign.

I have been a reader of Cage Birds for four years now, and I have had better luck since I read it. I have saved many a good bird, thanks to Cage Birds. I cut out all the pieces likely to be of any use to me, and paste them in a book. So if I have a bird sick I always refer to the book. And when anybody buys a pair of birds from me, I always tell them about Cage Birds. I am pleased to say I have got a good many new readers.—A. Thipp (Southampton).

Many thanks for your last splendid Double Number.—A. Jowett (Bradford).

I much admired the Canaries depicted in the last coloured plate, especially the Yorkshire and Crest.—J. W. G. Jones (London, W.C.).

Your last plate was a treat, and really beautiful in detail. It does you honour, and pleases your patrons at the same time.—W. Fortune (Wexford).

I thank you for the splendid plate with last week's Cage Birds, which I think is the best you have turned out for us—I am using the Norwich Plainhead as my model.—R. Booth (Manchester).

Kindly accept my best thanks for the beautiful plates presented at different times with Cage Birds. I have been taking in that grand journal now for over twelve months, and I enjoy reading it very much.—J. W. Hubbard (London, S.E.).

I regret to say I never knew of such a paper dealing with birds as Cage Birds, until a week or so ago, having been given a back number by Mr. J. Brighty. Now I look forward for each week's issue. I thank you for the last pretty plate of birds.—E. Binding (Bristol).

Fanciers are reminded that the annual autumn show of the London and Counties O.A. takes place on December 3rd and 4th, at the Sessions House Hotel, Clerkenwell Road, E.C. Trains, trams, and 'buses from all parts pass the door. The show opens on December 3 at 3 o'clock.—W. Gilbert, hon. secretary.

At Bristol last week, I won 4th prize with my Bramblefinch; my name should have been Walton, not Halton. This bird is the first I have ever moulted and shown. It has already won me 1st and special Gloucester, and 4th Bristol, and I attribute my success to studying Cage Birds.—W. T. Walton (Upton-on-Severn).

Allow me to thank you for the splendid reproduction in Cage Birds of November 20th of my photograph, along with my birds and prizes. I have had a copy of your splendid paper each week since it was started, and am greatly indebted to it in many ways. I wish it still greater success, if that is possible.—P. McKenzie (Kelso).

I have been a reader of Cage Birds since its first number, and have always recommended the novice to read it, as it is the best paper ever put before the public on birdy matters. I have always done well with my advertisements in Cage Birds. I have several testimonials which I got through advertising in your paper.—H. Siddall (Sheffield).

In consequence of the success of our last two table shows, writes Mr. F. Washbourne, hon. secretary, South Manchester C.B.S., the committee have decided to add two classes at our next table show on December 4th, at Headquarters, Boiler Makers' Arms, Abbey Hey-Lane, Hr. Openshaw. Show open at 6 p.m. Fanciers are invited, and admission is free. Mr. Jas. Irlam (Sale) will judge.

My address for the future will be 58, York Street, Norwich, writes Mr. R. Roll, the hon. secretary of the Norwich Alliance All England C.B.A. I am leaving Cecil Road this week. I am delighted with your excellent report of our late show, which, although successful from a fancier's point of view, ended in a serious loss financially. But we have paid all prize money in full. We shall probably hold our next show on November 26th and 28th, 1910.

I am very pleased to inform you, writes Mr. H. E. Parrott (Weybridge) that by winning at the Leatherhead Show on November 24th, the Challenge Cup presented by the late Mr. E. W. Britten for the best cage bird in the show, the handsome trophy now becomes my own property, I having won it three years in succession. I have had the great satisfaction of winning it with a Yorkshire in 1907, 1908, and 1909—each year with a different bird and under a fresh judge each time.

I was very pleasantly surprised to see my bird depicted on the front page of Cage Birds of November 6th, which was a grand Double Number, by the way. The bird was bred by me from a model of a variegated buff hen unflighted, and a big yellow stockbird, which I unfortunately lost during the moult. I have been successful in obtaining the brother of the lost father of the young bird by an exchange. I sold the nest sister of this youngster at a fair price; in fact, I have sold a goodly number of show birds this season. This is breeding by pedigree and selection combined.—L. J. Richardson (Rotherhithe).

A magnificent almanac, in colours, for 1910, has just been issued by Messrs. Spratt's Patent, Ltd (24 and 25, Fenchurch Street, London, E.C.). This superb calendar comprises 12 really charming coloured plates (one for each month), depicting birds, dogs, poultry, etc., and at the back of each picture are given practical notes on the live-stock portrayed. A copy of the almanac, which makes a handsome and useful addition to any room, will be sent post free to any reader who applies for one (a post-card will do) to Messrs. Spratt's, Ltd., at the above address, and mentions Cage Birds when writing.

Kindly explain that the reason our catalogues were not fully marked, writes Mr. J. Bessell, hon. secretary, Ludlow Show, was that Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales was on a visit to Ludlow on the Wednesday, so the traffic was stopped during the middle portion of the day. The result was that some of the entries were delayed in delivery, and so the judge had not finished till nearly 4 o'clock. I am afraid some exhibitors were dissatisfied with this, and in fairness to ourselves I thought you would publish this explanation. We are much gratified to hear from so many that their birds arrived back promptly, well packed and clean. All prize money is paid in full.

Allow me to thank you for your full and accurate report of our show of November 6th, writes Mr. John Henderson, hon. secretary of the Partick and Dis. C.B.C.; it reflects great credit on your reporter. It was our largest show, and it is through your valuable paper, Cage Birds, we have attained our position, as you are always ready to help. I have been a reader of Cage Birds since I entered the Fancy, 8 years ago, and I find it a great help, and the news, I am sure, must be appreciated by anyone who takes an interest in birds. I wish your paper every success.

We wish to thank most heartily all those ladies and gentlemen who rallied round us on the occasion of our second annual show. It was quite a success. We had 245 entries, and our only regret is, that we were unable to pay full prize money on all the classes. We had some splendid exhibits, and although we were very short of entries at date of closing we were able to carry out our programme with the cancelling of only one entry. Cheques for prize money are being posted at time of writing.—A. W. Ludlow, hon. secretary, Stamford and Dis. F.A.

Kindly thank all applicants for my birds in reply to my advertisement in Cage Birds, writes Mr. E. J. Rippon (Chelmsford). But I have had a serious loss. I had a gas stove in my birdroom and the gas unfortunately failed, so that it went out, and when it came on again 67 of my birds, including most of my winners, were suffocated, so that I have now to make a fresh start. I happened to have three winners out of the room, and six yellow hens, so that I have a little of the strain left. I cannot answer all the kind letters of sympathy I have received except through the medium of your valuable paper, Cage Birds. (This matter will be found dealt with in the correspondence columns.—Editor.)

The attendance was very fair at our recent show, and we anticipate a balance in hand when all ticket money has been paid, writes Mr. J. C. Birch, hon. secretary, Queen's Park C.B.A. Our entries were 40 in excess of last year's number. The Norwich Champion Classes were well patronised, and competition was very keen. A 2nd prize bird won the Norwich Challenge Cup for best unflighted bird, and the Yorkshire Challenge Cup by a novice, who also won with the same bird the Yorks. Novice Subscription Bowl and a Silver Cup for best bird bred by a member who has not won outside this society. Points' specials were won by Mr. P. Easterling (silver teapot), Mr. Battison (special value 10s. 6d.), and Messrs. Hawes Bros. (silver medal).

OUR CHRISTMAS NUMBER.

A Treat in Store.

We have in preparation a special number so full of good things that we venture to think it will outvie in popularity any that has been previously issued by us. It will form the Christmas Number of Cage Birds, and be on sale on December 17th next. The coloured plate is a real treat, portraying in attractive manner some highly popular birds, while an exceptionally fine art supplement will accompany it, and a big budget of specially written articles.

Readers should place their orders for our Christmas Number early, and also make this coming treat known to all their friends. They have a pleasure in store.

My Experiences with Norwich Canaries.

By G. GWILLIAM (Gloucester).

I believe in inbreeding, but you want to be careful in this matter, or you will lose size in your birds. Now the best model of a Norwich Plainhead I have seen is the one of the Norwich Plainhead Club standard, and if the novice has not got one, let him get a plate of this beautiful bird from the office of Cage Birds; he will then have something to work from. I also wish that our judges would work more from that standard than they do; there would then be less grumbling than there is to-day.

Feeding and Rearing the Young.

My own method of feeding and rearing the young is as follows:—Egg and bread, with a little castor sugar, and green-food (I prefer chickweed and lettuce). I keep all green-food away till the young are three days old, as I have found that it has proved fatal on more than one occasion. I also supply plenty of hemp and the best German rape, which I mix in the egg-food.

I might say that my better-half does all the feeding, so perhaps I am more fortunate than some fanciers; and I find that if all was left to me there would be trouble in many cases. My wife is as keen a fancier as I am myself. During the show season I have to work during late hours, and if I have entered up my birds for some show or other, when I come home they are packed and gone. So when we fanciers are blessed with having wives who are fanciers, it is a great help.

When the youngsters are 30 days old, I turn them into a large flight, as I find it greatly helps them to develop in size. I also take the water off once or twice a day, as they will oftentimes drink more than is good for them. I further give them a good supply of crushed hemp and Canary seed, scalded rape, mixed with the egg-food. When they are about seven weeks old I wean them from the hemp and egg-food; then they get on to the Canary seed, which should be of the best one can get, as I think the young are soon upset if the seed is a trifle inferior. If I find I have one or two promising youngsters, I cage them off by themselves, as they are apt to get their body feathers plucked or their tail feathers drawn out, and that does not help them on the show bench, at your first feather show.

Staging Your Birds for Show.

Another important point is the staging of your birds for show. I myself am very particular in this, as a bird which is put down in a nice clean cage and which is well trained, stands much chance of success. I don't believe in the handling of show birds when it is not necessary.

I adopt the following method:—Get a Yorkshire show cage, take the door off, as you will not want to use that, then get a stick or cane, about 18ins. long, and try to teach the birds to come in the Yorkshire cage. Then have ready a Norwich cage, with the door open, so that as soon as you get the bird to come in, place the Yorkshire cage close to the Norwich cage and teach the birds to go in it. When you have given a bird a lesson or two, he will know what he has to do; but, mind you, patience is required. You will, however, by this method, find no tail feathers in your hands or any spoilt toilets, and you will never regret your trouble. Let me say in conclusion:—When you run your birds into the show cage, do not start judging the bird at once, but put the cage down; the bird will then have a chance of seeing where it is.

TO READERS.

Despite the provision of the present mammoth issue of 36 pages (and all for one penny), we regret to say that the space at command proves all too small to hold the astounding number of show reports (approaching a record, we believe) which reached us during the past week. Every available inch of space has been given over to an account of the shows, yet we have been unable to find room for quite a number, including Musselburgh, Littleborough, Liverpool B.B.A., Horticultural Hall, Ormskirk, Amble, and Corebridge. These are all in type, and will be published next week.—Editor.

THE REDSTART.

One of the handsomest of our summer migrants and a really charming songster.

THE BLACKCAP.

A Warbler sombre in garb but with a golden voice equalled by few other birds.

THE MAROON TANAGER.

A gorgeous fruit-eater from South America, a favourite exhibition bird when obtainable, but not at all common in this country.

Some Notes on Hybrid Breeding.

By J. BARBER.

If I call my subject Mule breeding I shall perhaps be understood better, although a mule is what we see doing the work of a horse and having rather long ears; but it is not these we want to know about; it is the young produced by the crossing of birds, the proper name for which is Hybrid. Some fanciers call these birds Mules when they are produced from a Canary and a British bird, and Hybrids when produced from two different species of British birds. But they are all Hybrids if called by their proper name. However, fanciers call them Mules for short; so we will do the same.

When to Procure Birds.

The fancier who is intending to try his hand and his skill at breeding these birds, cannot be better advised than to procure his British birds in this month (November) for three reasons; first, all wild birds have moulted their nest feathers by now, and the cocks can be picked from the hens when in adult plumage; second, they are all on hard seed in this month (if we delay procuring them until we have prolonged days of hard frosts, birds are more dead than alive when caught, and if caught when we have had a heavy fall of snow and it is thawing away, all wild seeds are soft and wet through so that we have the trouble of getting the birds on hard seed); third, if we have our birds now we have plenty of time to get them steady and used to cage life.

Some fanciers are under the impression that wild birds must be house-moulted before they will breed Mules. This is a very big mistake, for I will guarantee that field-moulted birds, when once they have started, will fill as many eggs and produce more vigorous young than house-moulted birds; in fact, I know some fanciers who could never breed Mules from house-moulted birds, but could breed them with field-moulted ones.

Not an Expensive Hobby.

Mule breeding is not an expensive hobby. We have no need to lay out a large sum for our breeding pairs as we have to do when breeding Canaries, that is, when wanting to breed exhibition birds. British birds are easily caught, and if you should not care to be styled a birdcatcher, they can be bought cheap enough; and if you study economy you can have a good stock of them while they are cheap; and when you have picked out those you require, a small advertisement placed in the exchange columns of CAGE BIRDS will find you plenty of persons who will exchange hen Canaries for your surplus British birds. You will then have your breeding pairs.

Now that you have got all the birds you require, I will try and make your bill for cages a bit less.

How to Make Your Cages.

If you can use a hammer and a saw, buy, beg, or borrow one of each, no matter (to me) which you do. Get some boxes about ten inches deep, half-a-yard wide, and (if it is double breeding cages you want) have them about a yard long; if it is three compartment cages you want, have your boxes from four feet to four feet six inches long. Try and yet your boxes without any joints in them; if there should be any, however, fill all up well with putty, as these are the harbouring places for red mite. If making a double-compartment cage, mark the exact middle of your box; then get four thin strips of wood half-an-inch shorter than the depth of your box; nail or glue these one each side of the mark you have made, leaving space between for your division to slide in and out easily. When this is done, get two pieces of sticks ¼-inch to ⅜-inch square, and as long as your box is wide; these are for dividing the front of the cage. Fasten these in position, leaving room between them for your slide. When this is done, measure the distance between these and the end of your box, and then cut two pieces two and a-half inches wide; these are for the bottom rails of your cage, one for each side. Then cut two more, an inch and half wide; these are for the top of the cage. When you have fastened all these in their position, measure the size of the wire fronts you will require, and if these cannot be bought locally, you will find plenty advertised in the appliance columns of CAGE BIRDS. If you are making a three-compartment cage, do so on the same lines, only dividing box into three.

When Breeding for Song.

When you have your birds and cages, you will no doubt have one object in view—breeding Mules either for singing or for exhibition purposes. If you are going to breed birds for singing or catching purposes, you must not have a mixed lot of birds singing in the same room that you are breeding in, or else your young birds will sing all kinds of song. If breeding for Linnet Mules, have nothing except Linnets singing in the room. If breeding Goldfinch Mules, have nothing but Goldfinch singing in the same room. And if you should have a good singing bird which you have proved is a good catching bird, too, keep this bird in the room for singing alone, so as to enable him to teach the young Mules.

Some prefer these Mules bred off the German hen Canary, as they produce the best singing birds; but I think myself these are capable of breeding a bigger percentage of hens than cocks, and it is cocks we want. The kind of hen Canary I prefer is a cross German and Yorkshire, as this breeds a hardy and good-looking bird. I advise these birds being bred in a cold room, as they can stand the outside weather better than warm-room-bred birds. If you require the birds for catching purposes, when you have caged them off, hang them outside when it is warm enough, for a short time, and gradually increase their stay outside until you think you have hardened them enough to be safely taken out for catching with.

When Breeding for Clear Mules.

If it is your object to breed exhibition Mules, you must have large birds to breed with; you stand a better chance of winning when you exhibit a large bird than with a small bird. It is everybody's ambition to breed a clear or lightly marked bird. There are what are called Sib.-bred Canaries, which are supposed to breed clear or lightly marked Mules. Don't think when you read this that you have nothing to do but buy a Sib.-bred hen Canary and then expect clear and lightly marked Mules galore. Far from it.

A few months ago a correspondent wrote that, to breed light Mules, pick your hen Canary with one eye and your Finch with both eyes. What he meant, I cannot say; I don't remember whether he opened his mind that far. It is hardly safe nowadays it seems for you to open your mind. There are some persons who, if you state anything which may seem a bit extraordinary to them, jump out of their shells and criticise it for all they are worth, and begin to throw personalities at one another. However, I will speak my mind.

You stand as equal a chance of breeding a clear Mule by buying an unknown clear hen Canary as by buying a Sib.-bred hen Canary. A man I knew had been trying to breed a clear Mule all through the season with Sib.-bred hen Canaries and a cock Goldfinch. He worked his Finch rather hard; it looked worn out; so he turned it in a large flight cage for it to moult in company with a hen Canary he had not been breeding with—a cross-bred German and Crest; it was a marked bird, and had a small crest. It paired with the Finch and three young Mules were reared, and these were the lightest Mules he had bred that year. There was no suggestion that the eggs had been changed, as all three had small crests. What was the cause of this? I will give you my opinion. The vitality of the hen Canary was stronger than that of the Finch, and so the young had a tendency to take after her; and I daresay that those who have bred clear or light Mules have not bred them in the first nest off the Finch.

The Lines to go on.

Those who care to try on these lines should have three-compartment breeding cages, and then they should be able to work their Finch with two hens; and if they should not possess many hens suitable for breeding exhibition birds from, they can remove the eggs and place them under foster parents, and so keep their Muling birds at work. But mind and be careful not to let your birds get into too low a condition, or you will be having clear eggs, not clear Mules. If you should be trying on the lines I have suggested, breed first with the hen Canaries you intend breeding dark Mules with, and so save the hens your hopes are resting on to breed you light Mules; then they will be fresh and eager for the fray.

Much has been said on the matter of the feeding, so as to bring the birds into condition, so that it is hardly necessary for me to say anything; but see that both birds are in condition before you start breeding with them or put them together, and when once you have put them together, don't get impatient and start shifting them about, as I find nothing upsets pairs more. When you are expecting your hens to lay and are afraid the act essential to fertilization is not taking place, the best time to watch them is when they first see the light in the morning; and if you are keeping your birds in a room where you use artificial light at night, sit still for a quarter of an hour after you have lighted up, and watch them. But some Finches are very shy.

ORNITHOLOGICAL ODDMENTS.

By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S.

Author of "The World's Birds."

Two Species of Drongos.

The black, forked-tail tropical birds known as Drongos in books, are very seldom imported, though some members of the group are extremely familiar birds in the warm parts of the Old World. That to which practically all imported specimens belong, however, in the racket tailed Drongo (Dissemurus paradiseus), or Bhimraj, as it is called in India. This is not a common familiar bird in the wild state, but is the only one commonly kept caged. As I have known some confusion to arise between it and the hair-crested Drongo (Chibia hottentotta) I have endeavoured to sketch heads of the two, whereby I have tried to show that the Bhimraj's crest is of many narrow feathers, and comparatively short, while that of the hair-crested, or Kesraj, to use its Indian name, is of a few very long hairs, while its beak is more slender and curved than that of the racket-tailed kind. The Kesraj appears to be but seldom kept in captivity in the East, and I have never seen it over here, though it is on the Zoo list.

Racket-tailed Drongo.

A Victim of Circumstances.

The racket-tailed Drongo sometimes gets spoken about as if it were a very delicate bird. But, when given a fair chance, it is quite the reverse, only, unfortunately, it does not get the fair start in life it is entitled to. Plenty used to be brought down from Assam to Calcutta in my time—young birds, still squeaking for food, though full-fledged; but too close confinement and a diet of insufficient substance and variety soon have their effects, and a cage-moulted Bhimraj, even in Calcutta, sells for four times as much as a brancher, so that few must survive the ordeal of close captivity and the "satoo" (peameal) diet. This Drongo is as big as a Jay, and can have a good deal of raw flesh with benefit, though, of course, lizards—easily got in India—and small birds are better for it than coarser meat. It will also eat a little fruit. The long "racket" tail feathers are not fully developed in the young bird, and are in any case likely to be broken off in the small cages, in which these birds are kept. They really need as much room as a Magpie, a bird which, among ourselves, is too often sadly stinted for space.

Hair-crested Drongo..

A Clever Mimic.

The Bhimraj is one of the best mockers in the world, and nothing seems to be too difficult for him. He can neigh like a horse, sing like a Canary, yelp like an afflicted puppy, and even, in rare cases, learn to talk. Moreover, he is usually a very tame bird, and glad to be noticed and caressed, so that he is difficult to beat as a pet for anyone who can give such a bird attention and an abundant and varied supply of insects. I have never seen the bird kept braced as I described in the case of Bulbuls some time back, but I was told that this was occasionally done, and that the braced bird would fly out from his perch and capture any spider or lizard he found crawling on the wall, such creatures being as common indoors as out, if not more so, in the East. If one had a brace on such a bird as this, one could easily carry him about in the garden at odd times, and allow him to indulge in as much insect-collecting as the length of his tether permitted, to great benefit and to one's entertainment.

The Green Bulbuls Imported.

Another point that came up lately was as to the indentification of the several species of the beautiful Chloropsis group, which have been imported. These birds, generally known also as Fruitsuckers, are easily recognisable as a group by their predominant colour of grass-green and slender, slightly-curved bills, but it is not everyone who knows the different kinds on sight, and, as some are very rare, the distinctions are worth pointing out. The commonest is the gold-fronted (Chloropsis aurifrons), whose distinguishing marks are not only the golden-orange forehead, but a dense black bib and a rich blue chin, the blue colour running into points at the corners. In this the sexes are alike; it has been very commonly confused with the Malabar Green Bulbul (C. malabarica), a bird which, so far as I know, has never been imported. I have never seen it kept even in India, and I believe all references to it in avicultural literature really refer to the gold-fronted. Seen from the side, they are almost identical, but a frontal survey will show that the blue on the throat of the Malabar is confined to two moustache streaks at the sides, the black of the bib running right up to the beak and widely separating these blue patches. In the two others the sexes are different, and they are readily recognisable. In the blue winged, or Hardwicke's (C. hardwickii), the abdomen is orange in both sexes, most extensively so in the male, which is distinguished from the hen by his black bib and dark-blue wings. This is the biggest species, and has at times been seen on the show bench as well as the gold fronted. In Jerdon's (C. jerdoni), the male is very like the gold-fronted, but has the black bib splitting the blue on the throat as in the Malabar, and the forehead not rich gold, but faint greenish-yellow. The hen is unexpectedly different, having no dark bib, but a small patch of sky-blue on the throat relieving her otherwise green plumage. Of this I have only seen two specimens, and those some time back, a male at the Zoo, and a hen with a dealer.

Variations in the Grey Parrot.

Turning over an old note-book of mine the other day, I came upon a sketch of the tail-feather of a Grey Parrot, which showed a curious variation from the type. The feather was the outside one on the right, and was dark grey instead of the usual scarlet, with a shading of this colour at the base of the outer web, and a bright triangular wedge of it at the top of this web. The rest of the tail, and of the plumage generally, was quite ordinary. I may say that at a dealer's I have at one time or another seen a few Grey Parrots with a more or less brown plumage, the shade being of a light neutral brown like brown paper. This colour did not appear to be due to wear, as the plumage looked tight and fresh. However, all the birds so coloured were young ones, so no doubt these would moult out into the ordinary grey shade so familiar to all.

Female Hooded (or Red) Siskin Feeding the Male.

An incident related last week by Mr. Finn as having been witnessed by him at the London Zoo.

Foreign Cuckoos.

One does not often see any sort of Cuckoo imported, so it is worth mentioning that I saw in a dealer's the other day two of the black males of the Indian Koel (Endynamis honorata), so favourite a pet with the natives, and a little while back there was imported a consignment of the Guira Cuckoo from South America (Guira guira). This bird is of a buff colour, with darker streaks, and a white tail crossed by a broad band of black, and the sexes are alike. Both birds are about the size of Jays, and are easily kept, but differ much in habits, the Guira being an animal-feeder, and coming much to the ground, while the Koel is a tree bird, and lives on fruit. It is also parasitic, its host being the Crow, while the Guira, like all American Cuckoos, is honest and respectable, and does not palm off its eggs and young on other people, after the manner of many—not all—of the Cuckoos of the Old World.

Notable Foreign Birds of the Season.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

An interesting account of attractive Birds from Tropical Climes which are new to the Show Bench, or very uncommonly seen.

Hunstein's Magnificent Bird of Paradise

Of the many species of Birds of Paradise which have now been imported for various zoos and private aviculturists, this species can hold its own for gorgeous beauty and regal splendour with any member of this marvellous group. This fine specimen, in full feather, made its debut on the show bench last week, where it shared the public attention with the King Bird of Paradise. Its general form and carriage will be seen from Mr. Goodchild's characteristic drawing, but it needs a coloured plate to even faintly indicate the beauty of these marvellous birds, for neither pen can describe nor monochrome suggest the beauty of this glorious bird.

Description: The whole of the plumage is refulgent, and has a beautiful satiny appearance. The top of the head is golden-brown, with the extreme tips of the feathers picked out in dusky or ruddy-bronze; the upper back is scarlet, passing into the brown of the middle and lower back; the mid-back is variegated, with some golden feathers tipped with brown; at the bottom of the nape of the neck a lovely double cape of straw-yellow lies upon the scarlet of the upper back; this cape it has the power of raising when it to the top of a small bush and giving voice to their joy in a little ditty, the attempt at which was most to be admired, for the twittering ended in promise. Their beauty and vivacity evade all description. A photo would convey nothing of their charm. Try to imagine a little feathered sprite, less than 5ins. in length, with a crown of apple-green; cheeks, back, wings, and tail of turquoise-blue, throat and underparts of clear lemon-yellow; with a band of delicate orange across the breast! His mate, who follows him so faithfully, and listens to his pitiful song so admiringly, has the greens and yellows in softened indistinct hues."

Those who have seen this living gem will agree with me that the above eulogy barely does justice to the beauty of the bird; no pen picture ever can, and even the artist will be hard put to, to portray the living beauty of this exquisite species.

This species is very tame, fond of being noticed, and inclined to sulk if he does not receive proper notice. He lives on Canary, white and Indian millet seeds, and about three mealworms a day. His castle is a cage 18ins. square, by 22ins. high, in which he is evidently very happy and contented, judging by the condition in which he has been shown. He would be more beautiful still under the influence of sun and light, in an outdoor aviary during the summer months. He has won for his owner premier honours in its class. "Best bird in the show" is sometimes an invidious distinction when so many gorgeous rare birds appear side by side.

The Great-billed Flycatcher.

Another very rare species, never previously shown. It is of great beauty, being somewhat of a large edition of the Rainbow Bunting, but its colours are not so gay, and its contour also is different. All the Flycatchers are of great interest, being alert active birds, mostly full of character, and many of them, like the one under review, are very beautiful.

This is yet another addition to Mr. C. T. Maxwell's list of rarities and, like all his birds, was very tight and silken. The upper surface is a pleasing soft cobalt-blue, and the under-surface a deep yellow. Diet; a good insectile mixture, a liberal supply of live insects, and fruit if they will take it. A weak or thin specimen would be the better for milk sop containing a little Mellin's Food or Scott's Emulsion, if it will take it; some individuals will not touch it, but most of the insectivora take it readily.

Mrs. K. L. Miller has had also on exhibition a female Verditer Flycatcher, in beautiful condition, but, unfortunately, she did not succeed in moulting out the cock, a very beautiful bird. This species has never previously been exhibited.

LEVAILLANT'S BARBET (Trachyphonus cafer).—Another very fine species, which has made its first bow to the show public this season. It is one of two imported by Captain B. R. Horsbrugh and was exhibited by Mr. O. Millsum, taking first honours in its class.

It is a native of the Transvaal, and a striking and beautiful bird, with quaint markings. Excepting the crest, most of the feathers of the head are pale yellow, finely margined with red, and having a small black patch in the centre of each; the crest is black; upper back and wings black, scaled and barred with white; lower back, rump and upper tail-coverts yellow, much mixed blackish, and the tail-coverts tipped with red; tail black, barred and tipped with white; the under-surface is yellow, with a black band across the chest and some red striations on the breast.

It is a bold, confiding and vivacious species, readily becomes tame, and not difficult to keep; it would not be well to subject this species to cold, at any rate, till they are well seasoned to the English climate. Diet: Fruit, soft-food, and live insects, with occasional supplies of a little minced cooked meat.

Of the rare species herein described, any bird-keeper might well be proud, and their respective owners deserve every credit for the condition in which they have been kept.

THE RAINBOW BUNTING.

appears like an out-spread fan growing out of the nape of the neck; the wings are rich brown and golden-orange; the tail, apart from the two wires, is insignificant, the feathers being barely an inch long, the two wires are metallic green and webbed only along the inner edge; they cross each other, curl outwardly and inwardly again, form almost complete circles on either side; the under-surface is purplish-brown, the shield over the throat and breast is metallic green, changing under the influence of light to purplish or bronzy; down the centre of this shield, extending down the throat to top of the breast is a narrow strip of scaled feathers of the richest of peacock-greens, glistening like the scales of a snake; the breast shield is narrowly edged with peacock-blue. Total length, excluding the tail wire, 7½ inches.

The beauty of these birds simply beggars description. The species is a native of the Malay Archipelago. These magnificent birds are not at all fragile, providing you can procure them free from disease. The staple diet must be some good nourishing soft-food mixture, ripe fruit, supplemented with a liberal supply of live insects. Alas! I fear there is a strong probability of their becoming more scarce, rather than more frequently imported, and that but few will be the happy possessors of these gorgeous Crows. Mr. Millsum is to be congratulated on the acquisition of so rare a species.

KING BIRD OF PARADISE (Cicinnurus regius). — Before leaving the Birds of Paradise a few words must be said about Mr. Maxwell's grand King; as it has been before the public now for two seasons, a description is not called for, but the glistening and glowing scarlet of the upper surface, and the white of the under-surface, relieved by the orange bill and cobalt legs and feet, attracted for this fine bird universal admiration; food, treatment, etc., same as preceding species. Mr. Maxwell is to be congratulated on the way he has kept and moulted it, placing it once more on the bench in such flawless and spotless condition.

The Rainbow Bunting

(Cyanospiza leclancheri).

The eulogy bestowed upon the Birds of Paradise, would most certainly not be out of place here, even though the bird being described is but a Bunting; but what a Bunting! One can call to mind the deserved eulogies heaped upon the Nonpariel Bunting, when it was first known, a regard that has never lessened, in spite of its losing much of its beauty in captivity, and it is still eagerly sought after on such rare occasions as it comes to hand; but beautiful as it is, it cannot compare with the refined and chaste beauty of its Mexican cousin. Mrs. K. L. Miller is also to be congratulated on a rare and beautiful acquisition.

At this point I had better quote from "Two Bird Lovers in Mexico," C. W. Beebe's description of this lovely species in its native wilds:—"The most beautiful of all the small birds was a Bunting. We christened him the Rainbow Bunting, but the books call him the Leclancha Bunting. These little finches flitter thro' the underbush in pairs, searching for insects and seeds among the leaves, or mounting Notes from Erin.

THE Y.C.C. held their 6th annual show on November 25th and 26th. The committee made a good move when they decided on the Central Hall, and I think that members of this club, as well as readers of my notes, will join me in tendering to the hon. secretary, Mr. Hyland, our congratulations for the manner in which he performed the duties entrusted to him. The entries only closed on the night of the 22nd. Yet on the following day all exhibitors had their cage labels. In one or two instances the tickets did not arrive until the following morning, Wednesday, and this caused some little anxiety, as it was feared that the exhibits would not arrive in Dublin in time to be inspected by Mr. Mundell. It seems it was our own fault for not having sent in entries early and thus avoided an extension of the date fixed for closing entries. In future let us exhibitors send on our entries early and thus avoid causing our hon. secretaries to work into the early hours of the morning sending out tickets with a rush.

I HAVE just learned that Miss Perrin has lost another of her favourite foreigners, this time one of her little Weaver birds which were so much admired by the visitors at Dundalk Show.

SOME little time ago it was announced that one of our prominent exhibitors intended giving us a paper on "How to Breed Drummond Cup Winners." I am sure we will all come and be thankful for the opportunity, as we expect to learn a few wrinkles in pairing and keeping up our stock.

IT is to be regretted that the Norwich fanciers seem to be dropping away from our ranks. The classes at the shows so far have been very small. It is a pity to see this taking bird on the decrease. The Yorkshire is finding favour rapidly, as can be seen by the increased number of novices in Yorkie circles.

CRESTS and Crestbreds are practically extinct. We have but one or two appearing on the bench. It is to be hoped that the number will be increased. Can the Crest man do nothing? Remember the old proverb, "Where there's a will, there's a way."

"CLOSED RING."

The Art of Net Making.

A Correspondent recently asked for particulars on the making of nets, and one of our readers sends the appended article, which, he states, appeared in "Hobbies" (to which journal we acknowledge our indebtedness), some three or four years ago.

Netting is one of those occupations especially suited to odd moments. It is wonderful how many useful things can be produced without any particular time being devoted to them. A piece of netting can be taken up and thrown down again at a moment's notice without any fear of its coming undone or getting entangled, each stitch being complete in itself. The art of netting is also very easily acquired, requiring little practice or skill, and the cheapness of the implements and materials place it within the reach of most people.

The only essential requisites are three or four different sized wooden meshes and needles, such as are illustrated in Fig 1. This article only deals with perfectly plain netting with string or twine, of which ordinary nets of all sorts are made.

The size of these wooden meshes should range from a quarter of an inch to two inches broad, and the needles to match (also of wood) should be each a size smaller than the mesh used, to allow of its passing easily through the loops of the netting (see Fig. 1). Both mesh and needle only cost about 1d. or 2d. each. To wind the needle, pass the end of the twine through the small hole, knotting it so that it cannot slip out again; then wind lengthways between the prongs at either end. Do not overwind the needle, or the passing through will become a matter of some difficulty.

The stirrup must next be made. It consists of a piece of coarse string knotted together at the ends. Into this the foot is slipped to hold it firmly to the ground, while the other end, which should be just long enough to reach to the knee, is attached to the work. The object of the stirrup is to give something to pull against in order to draw up the knots tightly. To the top of the stirrup the foundation thread is tied. This is a piece of twine of any length, of the same nature with which you intend to work. Double a portion of it, and knot it to the stirrup above the knee to form a loop (see Fig. 2). Into this loop you will work all the first row of stitches, which will vary in number according to the size of the net required. When the work is finished the foundation thread may be withdrawn, though it is sometimes left in to form an edge, in which case it must be long enough to extend the whole breadth of the net.

To accomplish the netting (or fisherman's knot, as it is called), take the needle and tie the end of the twine wound upon it on to the foundation thread loop in such a manner that it will slip along it. Hold the mesh in the left hand, horizontally, close to the foundation loop and under the twine you have just knotted on. Bring the needle round with the right hand under the mesh, passing it in an upward direction through the foundation loop.

In Fig. 2 the needle is shown passing through one of the loops of the netting instead of the foundation loop. The reason of this is that it is only in the first row that the foundation loop is used, and in our illustration a few rows have been done. Now bring the needle forward until the twine is tight round the mesh, press it between the mesh and left thumb to keep it so, then with the needle throw the twine loosely round from left to right over the back of the left hand, slip the needle up behind the mesh between the stitch you are making and the previous one (see Fig. 3). This done, draw up the knot thus formed tightly with a jerk.

You have now two sliding knots on the foundation and a loop between them round the mesh, and the twine hanging down in front of the mesh ready to begin the next stitch. Repeat till you have as many loops on the mesh as the breadth of the net requires, then slip the mesh out and turn the work over so that the twine hangs on the left instead of the right. For the second row proceed in the same way, but instead of taking up the foundation loop each time, pass the needle into the first loop of the previous row, taking the loops one by one in rotation, making one knot in each. At the end of every row slip out the mesh, turn the work, and begin again. If the loops are very numerous they may be slipped off the end of the mesh as you go on.

To net a hammock you will need coarse string and a two-inch mesh; net a plain piece about 50ins. wide and 7½ft. long, extra strong string should be run down each side and drawn rather tighter than the netting. At each end a bar of wood 20ins. long should be threaded, and having holes at each end through which to pass the side strings, which are then tied together across the length of the bars. This arrangement keeps the hammock extended. It is then slung by ropes attached to each corner, and passed round the branches of trees or poles made for the purpose. Netted seats for folding garden chairs can be made in precisely the same way. Game bags, market bags, and bags for various purposes are also made in plain netting. Net a piece double the length of the required bag, fold it in half, and sew up the sides with string, a stout piece of string being run round the top to draw up. For long-shaped shrimping nets a small mesh is necessary; it should be under half an inch; use fine strong twine.

To net a square of netting, it is necessary to begin at one corner, net one stitch on the foundation, turn, increase at the end of every row by netting two knots into the last loop, continue increasing until the work is the size of half the square required (that is, a diagonal half), do one plain row and then begin decreasing at the end of every row, by taking the last two loops up together, continue until only two loops remain, break off, and knot these together with the end of the twine. Fly nets for horses can be made in this manner with a ¾in. mesh and fine light twine.

An oblong net is begun in the same way as the square, the increasing continuing till one side is the breadth of the net required, then increase at the end of one row and decrease at the end of the next, and so on alternately, till the increasing or longest side is the length of the net required, then decrease at the end of every row, finishing with two loops as before. In this way lawn tennis nets are made, with strong twine and 1½in. mesh; the net should be 27ft. long and 3½ft. broad. Fruit nets (for which special black twine is sold) can be made in oblong netting with a ¾in. mesh.

We come lastly to circular netting, used for all kinds of round nets. Put the required number of stitches on the foundation; at the end of the row, instead of turning over, double the work under, so that the first loop is brought round next to the last loop worked into; you are thus working round and round, instead of in rows backwards and forwards, the mesh being slipped out when necessary. In circular netting, tennis ball bags, butterfly nets, round shrimping nets, landing nets, and many other things are made, increasing or decreasing as the shape requires. For small nets such as these the macramé twines, plain and coloured, coarse and fine, will be found suitable.

Nets that are constantly exposed to weather or water should be made waterproof by immersion in the following solution:—Gold size, one part; boiled oil, two parts; stir the nets up in this, then hang up to dry; this will keep them from rotting; or, if preferred, they may be soaked in tar before using.

*A Martin's Revenge.

One day I was playing about in a field when I saw some men looking at something, so I went and looked too, and I noticed some birds fighting. They were Martins, who were driving a Sparrow away from their nest under the roof. We watched them for a long time, and at last the Sparrow flew away exhausted. The next day I went to the same place, and I saw the Sparrow hanging by one leg from the nest. After a great deal of trouble, I cut it down and carefully examined the stuff by which it had been tied up, and found it to be hay, straw, and dirty pieces of string. The bird was badly pecked, and blind in one eye.—Sent by L. Corston (no age given), 54, Tynemouth Road,

My Lost Friend.

Some time ago when I was out playing, I noticed some small boys who were amusing themselves with something in the garden. It was a Sparrow. I lifted it up and noticed that its wing was broken. I took it home and bandaged its wing with worsted thread, and kept it like this for some time in a cage. One day when I was cleaning its cage I let it out in the kitchen, but could not catch it, and so let it be. One day I went out as usual and left it hopping about the house. Somehow it happened to get into the dining-room, and the window being open, it made its escape. As I was coming from school, I noticed a crowd of children round a grating, and I saw it was my little friend in another plight.—Sent by John Macdougall (age 13), 9, Jarrow Gardens, 3, Kelvinside, Glasgow.

*Nest of the Sparrow Hawk.

In the centre of the wood, high up in a fir tree, is the nest of the bold Sparrow Hawk. A wary bird is this at the time of nesting. You may possibly catch sight of him a dozen times during a day anywhere but in the vicinity of the eyrie. He seldom soars or hovers above it as other Hawks do; it is only in the very early morning and late in the evening that he indulges in this exercise, and then only for a very short period. The hen bird is a very close sitter, and will frequently remain upon the nest after the tree trunk has been shaken or struck sharply with a stick. Upon one occasion I remember a climber getting within ten or twelve feet of the nest before she slid off, and gliding through the trees she remained in the vicinity, uttering from time to time a tremulous scream.—Sent by Tom Mason (age 13), 6, Victoria Street, Withington, Manchester.

A Library For Bird-Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1. By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d. By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d. By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d. By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird room, egg-food, nest building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2. — By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2. By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An Illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

PET RABBITS, CAVIES, AND MICE, 1/1½.—By George Gardner. Full information on housing, feeding, breeding, exhibiting, and keeping for profit. A complete practical guide, with illustrations from photographs.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 8½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

Rare Insectivorous Birds of Norfolk.

By W. LOWNE.

THE ROLLER: The Roller is another beautiful species, though a rare visitor. There are several well authenticated instances of its appearance in this county. The capture of these birds dates back as far as 1817, when one was taken near Yarmouth. Another was recorded in 1824, then again in 1832, and one is reported as taken in immature plumage near Acle in August of 1864. Mr. Rising, of Horsey, a well-known Norfolk collector of rare birds, saw one on a fence in his garden in the following year. At the same time one was brought into Yarmouth, having alighted on the rigging of a vessel, just outside the harbour, but though taken alive it soon died.

Two specimens of the Roller have passed through my hands, both of which were obtained on the borders of Norfolk and Suffolk—one in October, 1883, and the other in September, 1892. These birds were frequenting turnip fields, these being of a moist nature. Caterpillars and suitable foods were here to be found. The last Roller was taken to Norwich to be preserved in 1901.

Another Accidental Visitant.

THE BEE EATER.—This species, equally brilliant in plumage to the Roller, is, like the Roller, a very rare and accidental visitant, although several authenticated specimens have been obtained in Norfolk. Yarrell remarks that no specimen of the common Bee Eater of Africa appears to be recorded as having been killed in England till the summer of 1793, when two were shot at Mattishall out of a flock of about 20. The next recorded instance is one obtained in 1829. The latest reported was a pair shot at Coldham. These birds were described as being fine specimens and of brilliant plumage. The pair passed into the hands of Mr. Stevenson, a well-known Norfolk collector and anthor, whose birds were disposed of in 1887. The last-named pair secured the high price of nineteen guineas.

THE GOLDEN ORIOLE: This rare and beautiful species is said by Norfolk naturalists to have occurred several times in the county. No less than a dozen specimens have been recorded on good authority, the first of which was taken in May, 1847. In the year 1850 it was reported as having nested near Norwich. Specimens were met with in the years 1850, 1851, 1853, 1856, and 1861.

I received one "in the flesh"—a young female—which was taken alive in the year 1879. Also an adult male was sent me, which had been shot on the borders of Norfolk and Suffolk, in 1883. One was reported to me as having been seen at Somerton, and another at Yarmouth, in April, 1901. A pair was sold at the late Mr. Stevens' sale for eleven guineas.

A One-time Regular Migrant.

THE HOOPOE: At one time the Hoopoe was looked upon as a regular migrant, putting in an appearance in the months of April, May, and September. Between thirty and forty specimens are recorded as having been taken or seen since the year 1850. One I received in October, 1882 (taken at Horsey), was a fine male with a crest consisting of 25 feathers. Others I received in 1892 and September, 1896. Previous to that date I received a female which came to grief against the telegraph wires on the Norwich line. One was sent me, too, from Caister, next Yarmouth, on September 17th, 1896.

The last Hoopoe to my knowledge was shot up the river Bure on September 1st, 1903. Several have also been met with in the adjoining county. Probably these were the same as were seen in Norfolk, for the day after a report used to come to hand of a Hoopoe that had been seen, one usually heard of a bird of this species in the adjoining county.

Some 30 years ago an old nurseryman living in the north part of Yarmouth used to tell a tale respecting the capture of the birds which appeared in his gardens in the Spring-time. They settled on a reed fence, so he said, several at one time, and to secure the lot he put the ramrod into the muzzle of the gun, and, taking a steady aim in a line at the top of the fence, with a pull at the trigger he secured the lot all strung on the ramrod. How true this is I cannot say.

A Bird of Eccentric Movements.

THE WAXWING: Of all our occasional Winter visitants none are so eccentric in their movements as the Waxwing. It sometimes appears during two or three successive seasons in more or less good numbers, and at other times the species is entirely absent from our shores for a longer period. Then they will appear in great numbers, creating quite a sensation, generally in sharp winters. They are often absent when most looked for, and present again when least expected.

Some fifty or more specimens have come under my notice during the last twenty-nine years, and I have heard of many others in the hands of taxidermists in other parts of the county.

A Variable List.

I received six birds in December, 1882, two in January, 1883, one in December, 1890, six in January and February, 1893, three in November, 1897, eight in November, 1901, and twenty-five in November and December, 1903. As some five years have now passed since the last were taken, we may not expect to see any more before another winter. Out of the number I have had, only one possessed the wax-like appendages at the end of the tail feathers, which no doubt indicated that the bird was quite an adult specimen. None of these birds obtained in Norfolk would compare with those I have seen on the show bench for size and richness of plumage, which decides at once the nationality of these so-called Britishers. One Waxwing, a few years back, was going the rounds of the shows in the British classes, but it did not meet with much success, and in the end it was shown in a foreign bird class, and met with the same result.

The Shrike Family.

PALLAS'S GREY SHRIKE: The rarest of the Shrike family is the Pallas's Grey Shrike. One was brought into Yarmouth harbour by a fishing smack on the 31st of October, 1901, and it was identified as being one of this species. This bird has a single white bar in the wing, which distinguishes it from the Great Grey Shrike.

THE LESSER GREY SHRIKE: This bird occurred at Yarmouth in the spring of 1869, and again in 1875. Up to that date only two other British specimens were recorded.

THE GREAT GREY SHRIKE: This is the commonest of the Shrike family. With us it may be termed both a Spring and an Autumn migrant. These birds are sometimes netted by the bird catcher, their manner being to pounce down on the call bird like the smaller Hawks—a not uncommon occurrence. The species has occurred twice to my knowledge during the last Autumn.

In confinement this species is very amusing, darting from perch to perch with amazing rapidity; but it is not generally long-lived in captivity, being very much subject to fits, although some fine specimens have been exhibited with success during the recent show season.

I have said that this bird is a spring and an autumn migrant. Some birds have occurred as late as December, as will be seen by the following: I received four in December 1880, four in October and November, 1883, one in 1884, one in December 1889, one in October, 1895, one in October, 1901, one in January, 1908, besides others which have come to hand from the adjoining county.

THE WOODCHAT SHRIKE: The first occurrence of this rare Shrike in Norfolk was one taken at Beechamwell prior to 1829. A second was seen at Swaffham some few years after that date. A third was shot at Yarmouth in April, 1859, and a fourth at the same place in May, 1885. It has occurred several times in Suffolk, once as near to our boundary as Gorleston.

THE GREATER SPOTTED CUCKOO: One of this species in immature plumage was taken on the golf links between Caister and Yarmouth on October 18th, 1896. This bird was minus its tail feathers, with the exception of one or two, the others being scattered to the winds. The specimen found a place in a local collector's museum as the first recorded in Norfolk.

THE ALPINE SWIFT: But two specimens of the White bellied Swift are known to have occurred in Norfolk, one at Old Buckenham, in September, 1831, the second being taken at Yarmouth. The latter passed into the hands of a local collector, whose specimens were disposed of some 26 years ago. The date of its capture I have no note of, but it was reported as being shot up the River Bure.

THE RARE AND CURIOUS GRASSHOPPER WARBLER.

Drawn from the bird being so successfully exhibited this season by Mr. S. L. Cocks of Peterborough. It was hand-reared by him (with several others) during the summer of 1909.

Wild Bird Life.

Wildfowl in Winter.

During the night Wildfowl were heard passing over here in Surrey. From the weird cries we judged them to be Curlews. At this time of the year they fly in the company of other fowl seeking the coast and marshy flats near the sea. During the autumn and winter the Curlew becomes a gregarious species, and not only keeps company with its own kind but consorts with the hordes of Wildfowl of all species which haunt the coast at this season. The Curlew, like most large birds, is always shy and wary, but particularly so during the winter. Wherever he may be, other Wildfowl are fairly safe, for he acts as a sentinel to the flocks collected along the shore, and long before the intruder is aware that birds are near, he launches himself into the air. His loud "curlee-curlee" can be heard ringing across the marshland, giving the alarm to every bird within hearing.

When the tide is out exposing miles of sand and mud the Curlew joins the Gulls, Dunlins, Redshanks, and other shore birds seeking for sand worms, crabs, and molluses, on which food it mainly subsists. At high-tide the species repair to the water meadows and marshland, joining the flocks of Plovers ever present upon these open spaces. To continue a study of the habits of the Curlew, one must follow the birds to the moors and upland washes in the spring.

He is not the only species frequenting these solitudes. The Lapwings anxiously beat over the rough ground, Stonechats are plentiful, and the Twite sits on the tallest sprigs of heather, calling its name repeatedly, while a Ring Ouzel pipes his mountain song, recalling the more mellow note of the homely Blackbird. The Curlews are on the watch, and one by one the dark-coloured birds take the air, flying anxiously about uttering their peculiar cry. Although the bird can hardly be classed as gregarious during the breeding season, several pairs may be met with upon the same moor. The nest is slightly made, and generally sheltered by a tuft of rough grass or heather. The four eggs laid are exceptionally large for the size of the bird, rather elongated in shape, and very handsome.

The Wary Rook.

A wild Rook in a garden is quite an uncommon sight, for although he loves the haunts of man, he nevertheless fears him. When one alights in a garden, his fright and wariness are almost comical. He looks as though he expects every minute to have a hand laid on him, and will often fly off, afraid to pick up what he came for.

Wildfowl in Scotland.

The past season appears to have been particularly favourable to the hatching of wild fowl in Scotland; nearly everywhere there have been full nests safely hatched. Plovers are especially numerous, and Curlew, Wild Duck, Widgeons, Teal, etc., are well up to the average. The keepers everywhere are careful to keep away intruders, as disturbers of Wild Fowl are equally disturbing to the beloved Grouse.

A Little Known Bird.

Among the least observed birds that visit us in summer are the Nightjars, locally called "goat-suckers," which name they no doubt obtained through their attention to cattle. A well-known naturalist writes of this bird as follows:—"They beat to and fro, over the open heaths and fern-brakes, under the trees and round about feeding cattle, in quest of the moths, beetles, and other night-flying insects, upon which they subsist."

The Robin and Poets.

It would difficult to say when the most familiar of British birds first acquired the name Robin. Chaucer writes of it as "the tame Rudock." Had it been known in his days as the Robin, he would no doubt have called it by that name in some of his verses. A couple of hundred years later, Spencer wrote "the Ruddock warbling soft." Yet in the same century a dramatist says: "Call for the Robin Redbreast and the Wren."

WHERE ADVERTISING PAYS.

More Remarkable Testimony.

I had very good results from my last advertisement in "Cage Birds."—JOHN J. MCILWAIN (Glasgow).

I had a good many offers in reply to my last advertisement in "Cage Birds."—J. BARLOW (Huthwaite).

I cannot but mention that "Cage Birds" is the finest medium for the selling of birds.—MONTAGUE E. FELTHAM (Bournemouth).

I find your paper, "Cage Birds," a most excellent medium for the sale of all kinds of birds, etc.—G. ROBINSON (Wimsford).

Kindly thank those who answered my advert. in "Cage Birds," re Thrush and Skylark in the columns of your valuable journal.—P. WATSON, (Codnor).

I like "Cage Birds" very well (writes James Shepherd). It is the best paper I have ever had, for advertising, or anything else. Your last Double Number is extra.

It will be of interest to you to know that one of the orders resulting from my last advt. in "Cage Birds" totalled £40. This speaks for itself.—O. MILLSUM (Swindon).

I wish to thank all who replied to my advt. in "Cage Birds," recently. I could not reply to all (45 of them), as they were too numerous.—E. H. WILLIAMS (Llanelly).

Kindly thank all who answered my last week's advertisement re Siberian Goldfinch, as I have had 73 replies to it, and more coming at every post.—J. CLARKE (Sydenham).

I have tried the advertisement columns of "Cage Birds," and have had extra good results. I wish "Cage Birds" every success, which it deserves.—J. H. ELWELL (Shildon).

I had so many applications in reply to my last week's advt. in "Cage Birds" that I could not answer all—only those who enclosed stamp for reply.—B. BULLOUGH (Southport).

Kindly thank the readers of "Cage Birds" who answered my advt. re Bullfinches. I had so many replies that I could not answer all. Wish "Cage Birds" every success.—E. ALLSOPP (Codnor).

Through "Cage Birds" I have been able to dispose of my cinematograph and accessories, and for the money I asked, which speaks well for the circulation of "Cage Birds."—S. J. HOTCHKISS (Birmingham).

I wish to thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds" re Norwich hens and Linnets (writes Mr. T. Hukin, Sheffield). I had so many I could not reply to them all, which speaks well for "Cage Birds."

I sold my three dogs through your paper, "Cage Birds"—one in Scotland, one in Ireland, and one up in the North of England. I must say "Cage Birds" is the best advertising medium I have ever tried.—J. W. ROGERS (Fishguard).

Just a word as regards your advertising columns. Having advertised in many papers, I unhesitatingly say that "Cage Birds" is the finest medium for the sale of stock that one has to spare. I judge by continual results.—F. BECK (Newcastle).

Kindly thank all applicants for my Singing Canaries, in reply to my "Ad." in "Cage Birds," as they were too numerous for me to answer. I had eight offers before I got "Cage Birds" myself, and have had as many more since.—J. WALLACE (Dundee).

I cannot speak too highly of your valuable paper, "Cage Birds." I don't think any paper can beat it for advertising in. It has never failed me yet, and I find it brings fanciers closer together from at home and abroad, and helps us to make new friends.—F. LINO (Oulton Broad)

As a result of last week's advt. in "Cage Birds," I had answers from all parts of England and Scotland. It is truly a grand paper to advertise in. I have induced several friends lately to take it in, and they were pleased I introduced it to them.—H. C. BRYANT (Birmingham).

Kindly thank the many gentlemen who replied to my advt. in "Cage Birds," as I have had shoals of offers from every place in England that has a paper shop, I think, and it is impossible for me to answer all. I made a satisfactory exchange locally.—JAMES SHUTTLEWORTH (Leigh, Lancs.).

As the result of advertising in your valuable paper, "Cage Birds," I am pleased to inform you that I have had to employ two extra men this season to cope with the rush of orders for show cages. I consider "Cage Birds" a grand advertising medium.—JOHN MARTIN (Castle Douglas).

The last advertisement I had (about 9 months since) was a great success. In fact, I am in communication to the present day with the man who exchanged with me. So you see, "Cage Birds" not only helps the Hobby on, but it also makes friends. I wish your paper much success.—R. BOOTH (Manchester).

I advertised a Bramblefinch, and in reply was simply showered upon with letters for him. I sent him to a gentleman at Longton, on approval, and I need hardly state he kept the bird. I beg to thank one and all who desired to purchase my bird, and replied to my advertisement. I wish "Cage Birds" continued success. Thanks for the coloured plate of Hawfinches.—A. BOULTON BISHOP.

Through my advts. in "Cage Birds," up to now I have been working till 11 and 12 o'clock every night since the shows commenced. I have letters from New Zealand, South Africa, and I may say, from nearly all over the globe, mentioning my advt. in "Cage Birds." I have, this last fortnight, sent out over 200 show cages to Scotland, England, and Ireland. We have to work nearly day and night to cope with the demand. Please accept my best wishes for "Cage Birds."—R. HOGG (Middlesbrough).

In the Courts.

A Brentford Case.

At Brentford Petty Sessions on November 25th (writes a Twickenham correspondent), James King and Edward Brum (both of Chiswick), were summoned for netting wild birds at Hounslow.—Inspector Baulch said that on November 5th he saw the defendants carrying the nets, so he questioned them. King replied: "We've only been catching a few birds along the hedges." On making an examination, witness found three Larks, and ten Thrushes. Brum said: "We must do something for a living." Witness seized the nets and informed the defendants they would be reported. Brum said he was out of work at the time and chose this means of earning a shilling for his five-months-old child's maintenance. The other defendant said he borrowed the nets to try and get something for the children. He did not know they were Larks. The defendants were fined 5s., and the nets were returned to them.

Novel Bird Spray.
Sent by Mr. J. C. Eagleton, 39, Leicester Street, Norwich.

At that time of the year when our feathered pets are getting their jackets off, a spray is indispensable, and fanciers will find the simple spraying device here depicted of a very superior sort. This spray can be made for a few pence. Get a piece of ¾in. or 1in. brass or copper tubing, 10ins. in length, and at one end have a small bulb of thin copper or brass (a small common brass bedstead or any other hollow knob will do); this should be soldered on. The nose of the bulb should then be pierced by a few very fine holes by means of a needle. If the nose of the bulb be too thick for this, rub it down on a piece of emery cloth till it is fine enough to be easily pierced. The smaller the holes the better the spray. For the piston any ordinary round piece of wood will do with the usual cotton wad attached. One dip of the sprayer in water is sufficient to spray a dozen birds. An old bicycle pump can be made to do the same work if a bulb be fixed to it.—J. C. EAGLETON.

How to Ventilate Without Draught.
Sent by Mr. Nickelson, 34, Bicester Road, Aylesbury, Bucks.

I send you a sketch of an idea I have in use in my bird room. I don't think this has been in use yet. It is a ventilator without draught, and which has a peep hole. You cut with a fine saw a hole the size you require in the panel of your birdroom door, and then tack inside a piece of wire of ½in. mesh, or an old door off a disused bird cage. The piece you cut out you use again. Put two small hinges on to cover up the hole if you care to do so. A is the piece working on the hinges, and B the two small buttons to hold the door up or down as required. The peep hole enables one to see how the birds are pairing up without one's entering the room; also, you can see how your hens feed the young, and when your young cocks are coming on in song, for without this, directly you enter your birds stop singing and feeding, and do not go on with their domestic duties so well. Of course, one can also bore a few holes in top of door.—A. NICKELSON.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

For Rules see last week's 'Cage Birds."

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Only Half Moulted.

J. S. Butler.—If the bird is in good health I should advise you to leave well alone, as there is a certain chance the moult was completed when the bird ceased dropping feathers. The following treatment is the best in any case. Keep him rather warm, but be careful to avoid all draughts, or extreme fluctuations of temperature. Give him a vapour bath as described in detail to another querist in last issue, and after this keep the cage covered over for a few days. In the drinking water give ten drops of syrup of buckthorn and a few shreds of saffron two days in every three for a week. Feed on plain Canary seed only as a staple, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days a third of a teaspoonful of maw seed. Twice a week for a fortnight give a small piece of bread and milk slightly dusted with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur and one of chlorate of potash, and sprinkled on top with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. Drop all other foods for the present. Allow the bird to bathe freely if it desires. Should this not bring about the desired effect in a fortnight, remove the bird to a cold-room—one where no fire is kept—but it must be quite free from draughts and damp—for three or four days; then return it to its present position, and continue the treatment for another week or so. If the desired effect is still lacking, then leave well alone.

Mating Question.

Even-Marked.—In breeding these highly technical markings, it is of the greatest importance to have a good knowledge of the parentage of the birds, and it is by no means an easy matter to suggest the most suitable partners from a description of the birds themselves. This is no better than mating "on sight." An intimate knowledge of the pedigree of the stock is never more important than in breeding for even-marks. Therefore, having only the description of the birds to be mated before me, I can only suggest the following as the matings most likely to achieve your object, or to tend in that direction, making the goal so much the nearer next season. First pair: No. 1, variegated buff cock, and No. 5 clear yellow hen. Second pair: No. 2, wing and eye marked buff cock and No. 7 clear buff hen. If these are of rather fine texture of feather, so much the better. Third pair: No. 3 wing and head marked buff cock, and a large yellow tail-marked hen, or one showing dark blue around the base of tail. This hen should be of an even-marked strain, and, for preference, bred from a first break from green, which was made by mating two variegated yellows. Fourth pair: a large cobby buff cock, with slight ticks on one or both eyes, of even-marked strain, and No. 4 lightly variegated yellow hen. Fifth pair: a buff-green cock, bred from two heavy variegated yellows of even marked strain, and No. 6 clear yellow hen.

Elementary.

H.I.M.—You would be well advised to begin at the bottom; and to begin well, you could not do better than get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our Manager. This will clear up many points raised in your letter, including the question of sexual difference. If the bird were really a cock, and in a fair condition of health, it would be singing lustily by this time, and the fact that it sings very little is rather ominous—either of the bird being a hen, or in real bad health. If your parlour is free from draughts and damp, and not exposed to extreme fluctuations of temperature, the bird should do much better there than in the kitchen. In fact, the "squeaky" condition of the Goldfinch kept in the kitchen is what you would probably soon discover in the Canary if you kept it there. As a staple diet, give a mixture of two parts Canary seed to one part summer rape seed. Twice a week give separately a pinch of a mixture of equal parts inga, hemp, teazle, gold of pleasure, and maw seeds, and on two other days for the next month give a small piece of bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Three or four times a week give a small spray of watercress, or other green-food, when you can procure it free from any touch of frost, and when this is not obtainable substitute a bit of sweet fruit—ripe banana, apple, pear, orange, or grape, or even a bit of boiled or raw carrot. After the first month give the bread and milk once a week only, and you may then substitute a teaspoonful of egg-food, or the food you name, slightly moistened with water. In the drinking water give twenty drops of whisky and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. The gritty sand sold in penny bags is better than any sort of rubbishy sand for the cage floor, as it is cleaner. If you could let the bird hear a good singing cock for a week or two it would be infinitely better than the whistles you speak of. Life is too short to blow it, and temper too, into these instruments of torture.

A Bird-room.

E. A. Blake.—Your bird-room appears to be very well designed in the main structure, and should do you very good service. But as far as I can see you have made no arrangements for ventilation, save what you can get by the door and windows. This is an oversight and would strongly advise you to remedy it before it is too late. Make the window, and the skylight too, if you like, with a well fitting sash to open, so that you can keep the place nice and fresh in the hottest summer weather. But in addition to this, fit a proper ventilator in each end near the floor, and others near the highest part of the roof. Let these be fitted with solid sliding shutters, so that you can control the ventilation to suit any prevailing conditions of weather. You will never regret this little extra trouble in the future. The half glass door is rather a superfluity of glass, which will tend to make the place colder and more variable. The skylight and front window should admit plenty of light, and you would do well to omit the half glass door. To answer your questions seriatim: (1) The room will be quite suitable to breed Canaries in. (2) If the structure is in a fairly sheltered spot, and you start with birds not previously accustomed to heated rooms, you should require no heat at all. If you did determine to use heat, however, a hot-water pipe installation, with boiler and furnace outside, is quite the best. (3) Cages would do best on back wall opposite the window. Starting from a staging eighteen inches high, you will just manage to get in a rack for three tiers of breeding cages. A large flight might be made on the front wall beyond the window, at end furthest from door. (4) If you have had no previous experience, Border Fancy, Norwich, or Yorkshire, in the order named, would be best to start with.

Wheezy and Choked-up.

Bob.—There must be something seriously wrong with your management, I am afraid. You should first look well into the question of draughts and extremes of heat and cold, and see if there is not something here which requires attention. You want your room to be well and efficiently ventilated, so that the birds may always have a plentiful supply of fresh pure air, but at the same time they must not be exposed to any cold cutting draughts—neither should they be constantly subject to extreme fluctuations; whilst damp is not a bit less harmful. Attend well to these points. Keep all cages very clean, and strew with gritty sand. Allow the bath only in nice mild weather. Feed on a staple of plain canary seed only, and give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day. On the alternate days for the next fortnight give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it. Twice a week give also half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niga, teazle, and gold of pleasure seeds, and on each of the other days a scrap of green food or sweet fruit. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts and six drops of syrup of rhubarb daily for three days, and afterwards give twenty drops of whisky, ten of oxymel of squills, five of ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week. If not quite well by that time omit the medicines altogether for a week, and then repeat for two weeks as above.

Husky Roller.

Anxious.—You might read remarks to "Bob" about the absolute necessity of avoiding draughts and extremes of heat and cold. As your bird is decidedly worse in the morning I am strongly inclined to suspect one of these causes is at work, and most likely the variations of temperature. If you look into this matter you will doubtless find the bird is kept in a position where the heat varies greatly between night and morning; probably it has the benefit of the heat of a fire during the days and evenings, and this is extinguished at night, so that the place where the bird is kept becomes extremely cold in the "wee sma' ayant the twal'." Also, it may hang near, or over, a lamp or gas, which burns during the evenings, which would have the same effect. I have little doubt if you attend to these points, and keep the bird in an equable temperature, and away from draughts, it will soon be all right. Give it a small piece of bread scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion upon it, and sprinkled with soft sugar, daily for a week, and in the drinking water give ten drops each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, and five of ipecacuanha wine every second day during the same time. You may give a little green food whenever it is obtainable quite free from frost, snow, or dirty fogs, three or four times a week. At other times ripe banana is about the best substitute; but sweet apple, pear, orange, grape (with skin broken), or even a bit of boiled or raw carrot, does very well.

Clicking Noise and Accuracy.

P. J. R.—(1) I do not suppose the clicking noise your bird makes with its beak is at all significant of any illness. Many birds frequently make such noise when in the best of health. You might see that no draught gets at him when he is roosting, and it can do no harm to give him twenty drops of whisky, ten of glycerine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, in his water, for two or three days. (2) As regards the quantity of water I refer to when prescribing medicines to be given in the drinking water, I mean, roughly speaking, one ounce of water, or two tablespoonfuls, which is practically the same thing. This is the basis on which all prescriptions are made in these replies. A teaspoonful or so more water will make very little difference, whilst the worst effect likely to accrue from that much less quantity of water would be to prevent the birds drinking so much, or perhaps cause them to reject it altogether. Now, although as you say, drinking troughs vary in size a good deal if you take the trouble to measure the ordinary type of glass, zinc, and china vessels used on canary cages, you will find the difference is more apparent than real, the inner capacity being somewhere about one fluid ounce—sometimes rather more, but rarely, if ever, less. Therefore you see the constant repetition of measurements in all these replies is not really necessary. When circumstances render it necessary measurements are given, as you may have observed in some cases.

Canary Refuses Seed.

F. E. N.—It is not improbable that the bird's hoarseness is merely the result of over-feeding, due to his exclusive diet of soft food. It is certainly rather uncommon to find a canary that refuses to eat seeds, but such cases are known. Indeed, a correspondent writes this week to report the fact that a canary, which, a month ago, was practically the same as yours, now lives almost entirely upon seed. Keep its seed-box regularly supplied with a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape seed—not soaked, but just the ordinary dry seeds. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of port wine and two of cod-liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with a pinch of gold of pleasure seed. On the alternate days give a small piece of bread, scalded with milk, pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Once or twice a week give a few grains only of a mixture of hemp, teazle, and inga, and three or four times a week a bit of ripe banana or scrap of green food. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. Continue the latter on alternate days for a fortnight. It might be advisable to carefully catch the bird and see if its beak is overgrown at the sides. Drop the soft food by degrees to twice a week when you see the bird beginning to eat seeds again.

Brevities.

Seed Samples (William Gray).—No. 1 sample seems nice and clean, is of very fair size, but rather thin; it is very sweet, and of good average quality, but nothing exceptional. No. 2 is not so clean, and is very small in size, but is quite sweet, and of fair quality, providing the bulk is not too dusty. It is not so good a sample as No. 1, and its small size is decidedly against it.

Cost of Carriage (Foreign Nickel).—Sorry I have not the exact figures of the cost of carriage of birds from Germany at hand. If my memory serves me correctly, however, the amount is within the limit of five shillings for a case of a dozen birds. Half-a-dozen would probably cost just the same as a dozen for carriage, and twenty might not cost much, if anything, more than a dozen. A polite request of any German dealer, accompanied by a 2½d. stamp for reply, would doubtless bring you the exact information.

About the Duns (Peeping Tom, Coventry).—Undoubtedly a self-cinnamon cock (I take it you mean a pure-bred cinnamon) mated with a yellow Norwich hen with no cinnamon blood, would breed hens that would produce self-cinnamons again when paired back to a self-cinnamon cock. It is even possible you might get a self-cinnamon cock from this second mating, but in the first suggested mating which produces these half-bred hens, you will find cinnamon colour only among the hens, if, as you say, your Norwich hen really has no cinnamon blood in her veins, but this blood is so widely distributed now-a-days that it is scarcely possible to say any given bird is not affected by it unless its history is very well-known. The young half-bred cocks paired to Norwich hens with no cinnamon blood in them, might also breed young marked with cinnamon colour, but every such bird would, to a certainty, be a hen. Mated back to pure self-cinnamon hens, these cocks would again produce a certain proportion of self-cinnamons.

Feeding Mealworms.—A handful of bran, with a little flour, sharps, or meal of any kind, or a handful of rolled oats, placed in the box in which the worms are kept is all the feeding they require. Many articles on the care and breeding of this class of bird food have appeared of late in our columns.

Panting at Roost (H.T.).—See replies to "Bob" and "Anxious." It is very probable your birds are too near the kitchen fire, and therefore subject to extremes of temperature. If this is the case put them further away from the fire, but out of reach of draughts, and where there will be the least possible amount of variation. Give both birds six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence in the drinking water every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. Continue the latter for a fortnight in the case of the green cock, and after the end of the first week if the yellow cock has not greatly improved in its breathing give it twenty drops of whisky, ten of oxymel of squills, and two of eucalyptus oil, every second day for a week or fortnight, as may appear necessary. Feed as advised to "Bob" during this time.

Two Ailing Norwich (Hope).—Thanks for letter. Am pleased to hear birds have improved so much. Thes objection to eucalyptus shown by No. 2 bird is quite a usual experience. You may try the following modified form for another fortnight, by which time the bird should be able to do without further treatment. Twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and one drop of eucalyptus, shaken well together. For No. 1 bird continue the treatment previously advised, but give it only every alternate fortnight for the next two months. That is, give the treatment as advised for a fortnight, then omit treatment altogether for a fortnight. At the end of the first month you may, if you wish, gently remove the scraggy feathers from the tail one or two at a time at intervals of a day or two, when they may probably be reproduced in the normal condition.

Crossing Lancashire (E. Godry).—You make no mention of your object in crossing Lancashire with Norwich, nor which variety you hope or desire to profit by the cross. But the object is of comparatively little importance, because I should say at once that neither variety is in the least likely to benefit by such crossing, and instead of getting good results you will undoubtedly find your object, whatever it may be, as far from being realised as before crossing, and perhaps even more remote. You had better write again and say what your object is in wishing to make this cross, then perhaps I can help you.

Swelling on Throat (No Name).—I cannot venture to guess what the blister you describe really is without seeing it or knowing exactly the position it occupies. If rather to the right side of the neck and a little distance below the beak it is probably a distension of the crop, and any unskilled interference would probably make matters worse than ever. If close up near the beak and apparently full of air or water pierce it with a clean needle and gently press out contents and anoint once or twice afterwards with carbolised vaseline. Before doing this you might try the effect of painting it with a feather dipped in colourless tincture of iodine. Give six drops each of tincture of gentian and aromatic sulphuric acid in tho water for a few days. If this treatment is not successful write again and enclose a rough sketch showing position of swelling as near as possible.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Birds in Greenhouse Enclosure.

T. J. James.—To keep birds in a greenhouse successfully, damp and draught must be eliminated. Their wildness will be accounted for somewhat by the change of quarters, and the scare of catching up, but this has been accentuated by mixing up large and small in a confined space, in which the smaller ones are in continual fear of their larger companions. It frequently happens that birds which will permit you to walk among them without fear in a roomy aviary, are very wild when put into a confined space. You do not mention your county, but such birds as Budgerigars, Cardinals, and the like, would be better outside if they have a dry shelter to go under when so disposed, and to keep your Waxbills and Ornamental Finches in the greenhouse enclosure. I really am inclined to say that if the Pekins will not live out of doors, they will not in; but as they already have eye trouble, which this species appears subject to, cage them up separately, and treat them to a nourishing diet of soft food, ripe fruit, and half a dozen mealworms or other insects per diem. Bathe the eyes with a rosewater and zinc eye wash, procurable from any chemist. An occasional dose of Dinneford's magnesia, say, half a teaspoonful mixed into the soft-food mixture, will fully meet the case. The birds should ultimately settle down, but with fuller details I may be able to help you further.

Grey Parrot with Cold.

Mrs. M.C.M.B.—Give this bird a mild aperient, say one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water, but you must cease this on the first indication of the voidings becoming really watery. Get from your chemist the following mixture:—Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine, in equal parts; take a small portion of the mixture, add an equal quantity of water, and let the bird have a few sips three or four times a day. If the bird should develop weakness, a few sips of very weak brandy and water (chilled) will act as a good stimulant. If there should be any running at the nostrils, well cleanse these with diluted glyco-thymoline; will do no harm if a little is swallowed. As soon as the trouble yields to the treatment, gradually discontinue the mixture and put the bird on a course of Parrish's chemical food, but at the same time keep its bowels moving freely without looseness.

Wood Swallows.

Enquirer.—The White-eyebrowed Wood Swallow is usually imported once or twice annually, but the Masked much more rarely so. These beautiful birds are great favourite, and make really excellent cage pets (though they are even more desirable in the aviary), as they readily become tame. Diet: Some good soft food mixture (see our advert. cols.), ripe fruit (if they will take it), and a liberal supply of live insects, mealworms, will have to be the main stay at this season, but during the spring and summer these should be varied with all the beetles, spiders, smooth caterpillars, and the like you can capture for them. It should not be difficult to train them for a fly round the room daily; a mealworm thrown into the cage will secure an almost immediate return, and the exercise will add greatly to their well being. They should have opportunities for a daily bath, and this should be given outside the cage if possible.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Brevities.

Treatment for Parrot (W.H.M.).—I can give you no definite reply till you tell me its name or give me a description of the bird sufficient to enable me to recognise its species. In the meantime diet it on a seed mixture of Canary, millet, oats, hemp, dari, and sunflower seeds in equal parts; also ripe fruit, plain biscuit, and a few nuts.

What Birds (M.A.).—(1) I must ask you to wait till next issue, when there is nothing but a dealer's name to go by, the task is anything but an easy one. (2) This is evidently some species of Rosefinch, very probably Carpodacus mexivanus. Some of these were imported earlier in the season, and possibly a few more have recently come through—the name you quote is merely a fancy one, though it may be appropriate according to the colouration of the bird. Will look the matter up and give you a definite reply next week.

Feather Pulling (R. Clarkson).—I suspect this bird has been treated to a bit of everything; such treatment usually ends in feather pulling. Before giving you a definite reply, please let me know how you have been dieting and treating the bird. I shall then be in a position to help you. In the meanwhile give it one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia to each ounce of the drinking water every other day, so long as the voidings are not watery. There is no reason, if properly treated, why it should not live for many more years yet. Spraying with quassia is quite correct, but to effect any permanent improvement you must get at the seat of the trouble and remove the cause of heated blood. If you give me the details asked for, I shall try and reply.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Seed Matters (Bright).—The sample is a wild seed mixture comprising in the bulk those seeds known as "bird rapes" (charlock, etc.). It is very useful as a "tit-bit" for practically all Finches. The Linnet mixture I recommended will do admirably for a Bullfinch and Redpoll, also for a Chaffinch with a little sunflower added. A Yellowhammer eats little but Canary seed.

A Yellowhammer (Yellow Bunting).—(1) I think there is very little likelihood of you obtaining the Yellowhammer—Bullfinch Hybrid. I do not write this, however, with any desire to dissuade you from trying the mating. If none try, it is a certainty, of course, that the cross will never be seen. (2) The most likely bird to mate to a cock Yellowhammer would be a hen Reed Bunting. The cross has never been successfully tried, so far as I know, and any hybrid resulting from it would be valuable, and handsome, too, I should think.

Points About the Linnet (Mr. Finch).—I do not think that anybody could state the "average age" (I presume you mean average span of life) of the Linnet when in captivity. To get into the teens of years is not at all an uncommon feat, however. I always think that when two years old the average Linnet is as good as ever he will be from the show point of view; of course, he is just as good at three, as a rule, and sometimes better (in colour, for instance), but as the years creep on, the pencilling disappears.

A Show Dark Mule (E. H. Smith).—Your question: "What constitutes a Dark Goldfinch Mule fit for show, i.e., size, markings, colour, etc.?" is not at all easy to answer. The best thing is to visit a good show and inspect the winners. Size, of course, is an open question—the bird to be as large as it can possibly be bred. The biggest bird has a useful start over its competitors in the race for prizes. The prevailing Natural colour of a good jonques is a yellowish-orange, deepening to brown on the back. This is by colour-food turned to a deep, rich bronzy-red, especially about the blaze and breast. The wing-bars peculiar to the Goldfinch should be distinctly visible, likewise the black band over the head, and the head itself should be bold and wide. In the buff Mule the area of rich colour on face and breast is more restricted, and the bird is more or less mealy in colour all over. A buff is invariably a bigger and stouter built bird than a jonque.

A Swallow (Lanton).—I do not, and never shall, advocate the caging of an adult Swallow. If you wish to keep one as a pet, obtain a youngster and hand-rear it, then you will have no difficulty in getting it either to feed or settle down to cage-life. They become almost ridiculously tame and confiding.

Brttish Lark (F. Miller).—Only two Larks—the Skylark and the Woodlark—breed in England, and neither builds in a tree, but upon the ground. The Woodlark sometimes builds under a small bush. The Tree and Meadow Pipits are frequently termed "Tit-larks" (though not in reality larks at all), but both of these birds also build their nests upon the ground.

Sex Questions (E. C.).—The hen Yellowhammer lacks the bright yellow seen on the throat, head, cheeks and under-parts of the male bird. She is very heavily mottled all over with brown (or olive-brown), showing practically no clear yellow on the surface. Absence of the bib is no sign of the hen in the Siskin; many cocks exhibit no trace of that marking. As your bird sings freely, it is a cock right enough, and the giver's story about its having bred Mules may be quite true.

A Muling Matter (A. Tripp).—If the black-legged Goldfinch is steady, it may prove a Muler safe enough in due season. It is by no means essential that a Muling Finch should be house-moulted. If steady (or fairly so), I advise you to run him with the hen Canary right through the winter, for he will not be ready to fertilise eggs until about the end of April—when his beak clears and he is in full song. The hen you mention may throw you some good Mules.

A "Crested Norwich Mule" (F. T., Manchester).—The above is rather a curious description to apply to the bird. If it is a cock, it certainly ought to sing. But you cannot expect this whilst moulting, which from your letter I should say it is now doing. You ought not to wash the "pen feathers";

British Bird Queriists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hard-bills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover togsther, 2/3 post free.

they are quite natural and will come all right in due course. You must give the bird time to complete its moult. The place on the head should be gently anointed thrice daily for four or five days with just a touch of carbolic ointment.

An Ailing Goldfinch (J. H.).—Am afraid your bird is in a hopeless plight. When so bad and weak as to "fall off the perch," 99 birds out of 100 are already beyond the help of medicines or anything else. To speak candidly, it is no use waiting till a bird is three-parts dead before seeking a remedy; treatment must begin at the very first sign of trouble, or it is seldom of use. I expect your bird will be dead before you read this answer. If alive, give at once a mixture of teazle, maw, niger, and crushed hemp to eat—plenty of the latter, and give in the drinking water (two tablespoonfuls) for two days a small half a teaspoonful of syrup of buckthorn. Allow a 24-hours' interval between each dose. Your feeding was at fault; see other replies this week concerning young and fresh-caught Goldfinches.

Feeding a Chaffinch.

Molesey.—Yes; the Finch stock cage which I recommend (all makers supply them), about 16ins. long, will be far better for everyday use than the one you now have, and help to steady the bird. The Chaffinch will sing and thrive well in it. You could improve its food by adopting the following stock mixture: Canary and teazle, two pints each; summer rape, charlock, and linseed, half a pint each. To this a half-pint of sunflower could be added. Wild seed mixture (see another reply this week), and some good maker's special packet Finch mixture can be occasionally offered for a change, while sunflower heads (gathered from the garden), full of seed, thistle, and hardheads, seeding chickweed, groundsel, and shepherd's purse, should be freely given as in season. An occasional mealworm, flies, etc., are relished.

A Magpie and Siskin.

Maggie.—A very simple and economical method of feeding a Magpie is to utilise table scraps largely. As a stock food, you could use brown-up dog biscuits, or puppy cakes, or "Melox" (or other dog meal), with coarse crissel—say two parts of either of the former to one part of the latter (by measure). Soak with hot water, giving it crumbly moist, and mixing with it table scraps, cooked meat, and potatoes, greens, gravy, etc. Give a few trapped mice, young and old Sparrows and the like (even young frogs, if you can capture them), but not over much raw meat. You will find them very accommodating in the matter of food. Eggs (raw and cooked), nuts (cracked), of various kinds, peas, berries, fruit, worms, beetles, grubs, and butter, are other things they will eat. Your Siskin should thrive well on the following seed mixture: Canary and teazle three parts each, summer rape and charlock one part each. Give a little hemp, maw and cracked sunflower (or mixed packet seed), now and again, as a change.

A Wild Seed Mixture.

Puzzled.—No; you cannot mix up yourself the seeds which are contained in the average "wild seed mixture." The latter is generally screenings which come from threshing machines. If you want a "conditioner," try my own recipe. I am sure I get good results from using such a mixture in my own stock. I get made up the following: Thistle, dandelion, lettuce, plantain, gold of pleasure, and sesame, half a pound of each, cornflower and wild mustard, a quarter-pound of each. This makes a good quantity, and is somewhat expensive (thistle, dandelion, and cornflower being dear), but there is no waste, and, of course, the quantities of each seed can be reduced. The cost can be greatly reduced, too, by the addition of wild seed mixture (such as is to be bought very cheaply), two parts of this to one of the other. It is greatly relished by the majority of seed-eaters, and grand stuff for getting them into stout song. I sometimes add inga and maw to it, for Goldies, etc.

"Bobbie" in a Cage.

Miss Wilson.—Many Robins make quite nice cage pets, being fine singers and getting very tame. Sentiment, however, is all against caging them. I know people who keep them during the winter and let them free in the spring; perhaps you would care to do this. The best house cage is a box-pattern one about 18 inches long by 14 high by 9 or 10 wide, fitted with food, etc., vessels inside. The Redbreast is an insectivorous bird, like the Nightingale, though it is true he will thrive in captivity on a plainer, "coarser" diet. Try this stock food: Powdered Osborne biscuit, five parts; best ants' egg, and dried flies, two parts each; powdered silkworm pupae, one part; meat meal, one part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold boiled potato, varying it frequently and adding a little water (but only a few spots) if necessary. "Bobbie," however, likes a few seeds—canary mostly now and again. You could buy a good stock-food, ready made up, from many advertisers using our columns (possibly at local bird-shops, or bird-food dealers), and add to it grated carrot (sufficient to just damp it), and now and again half a finely minced hard boiled egg. That would make up a very fair dietary. You can add mealworms, and black-beetles when you can get them, and other suitable live-foods. "Bobbie" likes a few ripe berries and a little fruit, too.

PARK AND LAKE AVICULTURE.

Answered by FRANK FINN, B.A., F.Z.S.

Sea and Shore Birds.

F. D. S.—I don't know of any catcher of sea and shore birds, but even if I did, I take it it would be against rules to recommend anyone. Probably some dealers reside in the districts you name, and do their own catching. Best keep an eye on CAGE BIRDS advertisements.

Breeding from Owls.

The Owl's Mistress.—I should think it would be quite possible to mate your Brown owl with a Barn owl, but, so far, I don't know that anyone has tried mule breeding with owls! At any rate, whether you do this or merely mate him with a hen of his own species, it would be best to get one now, as you suggest, and let them fly together in the aviary, keeping a careful watch on their behaviour.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Bullfinch (W. Lett).—Inflammation of liver. There was no food in stomach. These birds do not thrive on millet and canary seed alone.

Canary (M. F. Hurst).—Disease of liver and bowels. No food in stomach. General anæmic condition. Give some Parrish's chemical food in other birds' drinking water. This was a hen. Disinfect its cage.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Photos (H. Lewis).—We hope to use these very shortly now; we are keeping them for a certain issue.

A Suggestion (W. Holton).—We will endeavour to carry out your kindly suggestion, if we can find a willing breeder of the crested variety.

Learning Tricks (Old Fancier).—We don't know of any book dealing with the subject, and have no knowledge, personally, as to how it is accomplished. We will make enquiries, and will publish your letter, as some reader may be able to help you.

A Novel Cage (F. Thomas).—Many thanks for the photograph, which we shall hope to reproduce in our next Double Number, as well as the letter.

A Double Deal (Puzzled).—If you have received no replies to your letter by now, communicate the facts to the London Police, and ask if they know anything of the parties in question.

Feeding Mealworms (A Reader from First No.).—A mixture of bran and sharps in equal parts (or bran and barley meal) is all the "feed" mealworms require. The great point is to keep them in a warm place. If you want full instructions on how to breed them, you will find it given in the article by Mr. Houlton, on "British Birds," which we published some short time ago.

A Card Holder (C. C. T. Giles).—We do not think card holders meet with favour; they are generally held to be dangerous to the bird's feet.

A Leeds Challenge (A Critic).—We think it better to leave the parties to settle matters amongst themselves, so have not published your letter. If the challenge comes to nought, then the matter ends, so far as we are concerned.

Illustrated Ideas (A. Williams).—This food tin is too much like one given before.—(J. Maynard, jun.).—We are afraid few fanciers would have much success catching birds out of an aviary with a net so small as the pocket of a billiard table; further, how would they get the latter?—(P. Watson).—We have several times illustrated these husk nests for small foreign birds.—(W. Pothecary).—We have illustrated a very similar combined seed drawer and sieve.

BINGLEY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Members' show held in the Assembly Rooms recently. There were 68 birds in six classes. Mr. A. Bottomley (Laisterdyke) judged. Most points for cup (with three birds to count) were gained by R. Wade, making 21 out of a possible 21; second, M. Walton, 18; third, S. Denby, 16.

WANDSWORTH.

There was a rather small, but select collection of Cage Birds at the fourth annual show of the Wandsworth F.A., held in the Public Baths on November 30th. In the Norwich section Mr. J. Kirby carried off chief honours. The Yorkshires were especially good. A few good Hybrids and British helped to swell the numbers. Mr. F. Easterling judged and gave general satisfaction. The birds were nicely staged and well looked after, reflecting every credit on Mr. A. V. Lane, the Sec.

PAIGNTON.

The Paignton F.A. held their 19th annual show in the Public Halls, on November 24th. Entries in the cage bird classes were not numerous (being confined to members). Norwich were the strongest and contained some excellent birds, among them some winners in open competition. Winner for best in show fell to one of this variety, a ticked unflig. belonging to Mr. J. Fox. Yorksbires were good, while the same can be said of the winners in the British bird classes. The birds were nicely staged, and were a great attraction, the show being visited by a large number of people, many coming from neighbouring towns. The committee for this section are Messrs. Pack and Green, while the secretarial duties were ably carried out by Mr. A. B. Battershall. Mr. J. Davies judged, and his awards gave satisfaction.

WATFORD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Fifth annual show (confined to members) held in the Conservative Hall, Clarendon Road, on Nov. 13, when a total of 230 birds were staged, bespeaking the progress which is being made by the society. Mr. W. Quantrell, the secretary, was responsible for the very able arrangement of things, and he proved himself a capable official. He was assisted by Mrs. T. Wright and Messrs. J. Goodall, J. W. Freeman, and A. T. Sears. Messrs. J. Robson and A. Silver judged.

LANCASTER PRIMROSE.

The Lancaster Primrose C.B.A. held their 3rd annual show on November 19th and 20th, in the Central Hall, Great John street. The hall is one of the best in the North of England. The entries were not large, and a considerable quantity of the classes had to be cancelled, the reason, we think, being that so many more shows were held on the same date. Norwich and Border were the chief classes, some tip-toppers being staged. Mr. Brown carried away the elaborate tea and coffee service. Although the exhibits were few, the show was taking to the eye, being decorated with evergreens and flowers. Mr. Mundell judged and gave every satisfaction. The arrangements were carried out splendidly by Mr. J. H. Nayler, the Secretary, who lacks nothing in carrying out a show.

EDINBURGH EASTERN DIST. O.S.

The 18th annual show was held in the Free Gardeners' Hall, Abbeymount, on Nov. 13th. The entries were similar to last year's in number, but, if anything, the birds were of better quality, and in some cases were difficult to separate. But the judges, Messrs. McLennan and Buchan, gave their decisions in a manner which left no cause for complaint. Mr. J. Morrison won special for best Scotch Fancy in the hall, Mr. J. Dougall being runner up. In the Norwich section, Mr. R. S. Spence won special with a C.-B. cock (which should be heard of later on), Mr. J. Gourlay being runner up. The show was well patronised during the afternoon, and in every way was very successful. At the close the hon. president, Councillor Lorne Macleod, presented the specials, and in his remarks spoke in eulogistic terms of the pleasure to be derived from the breeding and rearing of Canaries. The hon. vice-presidents, Bailie Stewart and Councillor Hunter, were also present, and spoke a few words of encouragement to the members, and promised their support for the ensuing year.

Correspondence.

A Goldfinch with a Pure White Head.

SIR,—I sold a pure white, or rather, rich Buff (with the exception of red blaze) Goldfinch to some well-known fanciers.

H. W. BARNARD.

Is it a Record Sing?

SIR,—In answer to A. Brown's letter of November 20th, I beg to state that I consider 104 marks impossible to be done in 4 minutes. Will Mr. Brown kindly inform your readers what bird did the singing mentioned? What did it lay on when singing? What part of the country was the bird caught in? And who heard the singing done? Having been a bird catcher and singer since I was a boy, I think this to be impossible.

H. ROBERTS.

A Skylark's Coming of Age.

SIR,—You will remember my writing you in February last stating that I had a Skylark that had been in a cage for 20 years up to November last. I am pleased to say that he has now attained his majority, and is still as lively as ever. He has just got over his moulting. He has a good appetite, which I should imagine is a sign of good health. I have made inquiries of many persons, but no one seems to know of such a case of longevity, and all say it must be a record.

HARRY FORD.

A Suggested C.B.S. for Brighton

SIR,—In answer to the letters of "Visitor" and Albert Burtenshaw, in reference to the above matter, allow me to say that I think a first-class society could be formed and would be well supported on the South Coast, and that then we should see a first-class cage bird show at the Queen of Watering Places. I feel certain I could secure a room to hold the first meeting in to form same, if some brother fancier would undertake to acquaint cage bird fanciers of the project through the Fancy Press and otherwise. I hope to see a favourable outcome of this correspondence.

A. RIDDLES.

A Curious Case of Blindness.

SIR,—I have an outdoor aviary (5ft. by 3ft. 6ins. by 2ft.), containing 16 birds—Canaries and Britishers. The Canaries were bred by myself this past summer, and are now four months old. Now—just as they have finished their moult or nearly so—some of them have gone quite blind. The curious part is that the eyes, to look at, seem to be quite normal. My method of treatment has been quite the average kind—Capern's and Spratt's mixed seeds being given, and the birds being thoroughly cleaned out weekly, besides giving them a plentiful supply of sand, about ¼in. to 1in. in thickness. The parent birds are not related in the least. The father (a Roller) came direct from Germany three years ago, and the hen was purchased locally. They have been outside for two years, and all the young were hatched and reared outside. Apart from their blindness—and I notice another is going blind at the time of writing—they seem in the pink of condition and quite healthy. Can any of your readers suggest a reason and provide a cure?

PERPLEXED.

How I Breed My Canaries.

SIR,—I consider that the first step to be taken towards the simple breeding of canaries is to obtain perfectly healthy birds. Some fanciers will not breed with hens unless they are two years old, as they say they get much stronger youngsters. The same is said also of the cock bird, a two-year old one being a much better feeder than a year old one. But this is not everybody's opinion. Some prefer a one-year hen and a two-year cock; some like a one-year cock and a two-year hen. Personally I like a double compartment cage, about 35in. long, which anyone ought to be able to make. If my cages have been used before, I thoroughly clean them in the following way: I take them to pieces as far as I can and thoroughly scrub each part with hot soda and soapy water (Sunlight soap is as good as any) until I am certain I have left no red mite existing; then I rinse all the soap off and leave them to dry. When the pieces are thoroughly dry, I well soak the crevices with paraffin and leave them exposed to the air for two or three days, so as to take the smell out. After this I can at my leisure put the cages together, and they are then ready for use. The birds I intend for breeding are separated and put into flight cages about the end of February, and given a few hemp and niger seeds twice a week. A good spacious flight for about two months before the breeding season is most essential to hens, as it gives them strength to withstand the strain of the breeding season, and also prevents them from getting too fat, which often causes egg binding and the laying shell-less eggs. The time to put birds together is a point which has often been disputed, but I think the beginning of April is quite early enough, and that is about the time the birds will be ready. By starting at this time I am much surer of success than if I start earlier, and starting birds early sometimes upsets them for the whole of the season, and so spoils one's chance of rearing good young. When I have put my birds together I give them good sound Spanish Canary, and also two or three teaspoonfuls of egg food each day, and also a few niger seeds every other day before the hen sets. Cuttlefish bone is most essential to birds that are going to breed, as it is this that forms the shell of the egg and the bones of the young; it contains a considerable amount of lime. Green food is another most necessary thing, and this I give fresh each day. I find dandelion or watercress is the best, but if this cannot be obtained, chickweed and groundsel are both good. A frequent supply of greenfood generally encourages a hen to feed her young well. Water I give fresh two or three times a day, as foul or impure water will make birds ill. Egg food is most essential both before and after the young are hatched. The first two eggs I take away with a teaspoon on the morning they are laid, and put into a box containing bran, so as to prevent them from getting broken, and in their place put an imitation china egg. The morning the third egg is laid, I put the other two back, also with a teaspoon, and the hen then sets. If the eggs are fertile they hatch 13 days after I set the hen. Before retiring on the twelth night, I place a clean china vessel full of egg food in the breeding cage, so that if the young are hatched in the early morning (as they generally are), the birds can feed them. It sometimes happens the hen will only feed her young the first few days after they are hatched. If this is so they require hand-feeding. It is not of much use to try and hand feed young birds unless they have reached the age of seven days. To hand-feed, take about a teaspoonful of egg food and add a little warm water, and beat it up so as to make it have the appearance of thick cream; if too much water has been added, add a little more egg food. Then take a match stick and sharpen it at one end and dip it into warm water; now take some egg food on the end of the same and gently put some into each of the mouths of the young. This will want doing about five or six times a day. If the hen forsakes her young, I put one youngster into each nest with other hens, who may have young about the same age. When the young are about a month old they can generally feed themselves, and I put them into a large flight cage at this age and give egg food and crushed hemp, niger and Canary seed; greenfood I also give.

Concerning the Raven.

SIR,—May I ask a few questions about the Raven? (1) Where does it breed, speaking generally (and is there any instance of its breeding in Cornwall)? (2) What is the size of the Raven? Also, has it got red legs and beak? (3) Do they fly in groups or singly? A few remarks in reply by a reader would be greatly appreciated.

TRE, POL, AND PEN.

New Cage Bird Society for Falkirk and District.

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Oddfellows' Hall on November 27th, for the purpose of naming and making rules for the new society. It was agreed to call the society the Falkirk Good Intent C.B. Association. The weather was greatly against the opening meeting, but we had, nevertheless, a good muster of fanciers. A president (Mr. J. Hunter) and committee, consisting of Messrs. P. Brigden, Jarvie, Muir, Clarkson, Binnie, Penman, Marshall, Leitch, Stivert, Gillespie, Baird, Smart, Taylor, and Johnstone, appointed, and a number of rules were drawn up. The next meeting takes place on December 25th. Will members please note the change of date?

WILLIAM CLUBB, Secretary.

Is the Yorkshire Advancing?

SIR,—As an old breeder of the best of all birds, viz., the Yorkie, I can quite agree with all the remarks of your correspondent, Mr. H. E. Parrott, in CAGE BIRDS of Nov. 27. It is a fact that there is such a diversity of opinion in judging Yorkshires down South that I have been contemplating changing my variety. Personally I like the best bird to win, whoever the owner may be. I have seen birds winning first and special at one show, and at the next show standing cardless, or perhaps he, in the same company. The only claim for reversing the awards is as far as I can see, that one has more size and is like a Lancashire or Norwich. It is not only at one show that this happens, but at many. I have known birds win up North, but the same judge down South has selected a different type for a winner. I think it time all our judges were compelled to judge by the Yorkshire Club standard; failing this, that societies should select judges who will. Then we should clearly understand what we have to breed for.

J. LASHBROOK.

An Inexpensive Lark Food.

SIR,—I have great pleasure in informing your correspondent, Mr. H. Palmer, how I mix my Lark food. To 2lbs. of peameal and 2lbs. of oatmeal add the dripping got from 4lbs. of beef suet, and mix well. Any fat, bar bacon, left from the table can also be melted and added. No moisture whatever is required. If this does not make a Skylark sing there's no song in it.

REDPOLL.

A Correction.

SIR,—In your excellent report of Bournemouth Show, non-fed Norwich or Yorks., in which class I won first and second, the name is given as Brooks, and as there are at the present time at least four exhibitors of that name, it may lead to some confusion. My name ends with an E. Your report also says: "2nd, "good clear buff Yorks., fine large stock bird," whereas the Yorkie is a yellow, as is also the first prize Norwich, and to which the latter phrase might readily apply, he being a bonny big bird and a good stock bird. The Yorkie is by no means a big stock bird, but typical and fine in feather, winning first in this class last year and also the year previous. I wish your paper all the success it is indeed entitled to.

Whose Should the Prize-Cards be?

The latest Conundrum.

SIR,—I should be glad if some of your readers would give me their views on the following matter. A bird is exhibited at a show, awarded a prize, and a prize-card is attached to cage; after which the bird is sold. Whom does the prize-card belong to, the exhibitor or the purchaser? The secretary of one of the largest societies tells me that it is the rule to forward card to the purchaser with the bird, as the card was on the cage when bought; but several other fanciers do not agree with this, as they think the card is the property of the exhibitor. Personally, I think that if a man buys, or breeds, a bird, trains it, and pays entrance fees, he alone should have the credit, if he is lucky enough to win. If the card goes to purchaser he obtains it at the other man's expense, which I think is hardly fair. I should be glad to know what your readers think of it.

A Canary Fancier's Heavy Loss.

Valuable Stock Asphyxiated.

SIR,—Bird fanciers all over England will regret to hear that an irreparable loss has befallen Mr. E. J. Rippon, the well-known Canary fancier of Chelmsford. All his birds, with the exception of three that were away on approval, were found by his assistant suffocated in their cages, this meaning a loss of quite a hundred pounds. The aviary is heated by a syphon gas stove; this by some means became extinguished, and the fumes quickly killed the birds. On discovering the catastrophe, Mr. Rippon immediately attempted to restore the birds to animation, but his efforts were useless. Eighty birds were killed, including Mrs. Rippon's prize Crested Canary, and winners that had obtained prizes at Peterborough, Southall, Battersea, Eastbourne, Clapham, Bristol, Yarmouth, Braintree, Southend, Chelmsford, and Wimbledon. Some of them Mr. Rippon would not have disposed of for £10 each.

H. IGGLESDEN.

(It is with great regret that we hear of Mr. Rippon's deplorable experience. We trust that he will take heart, and in the near future be rewarded with even greater success than that he has achieved in the past. He will have the sympathy of all bird-lovers.—EDITOR.)

Rebellion in the North.

The Trouble about a Special.

SIR,—Allow me to correct some of the statements made by "Canny Toon" in your last issue, re a special prize. It would have been better had "Canny Toon" signed his name. He says that Mr. Taylor's crest was not brought forward to be judged for this special. If this is so, how can this bird be entitled to a prize if not judged? Then he goes on to say that the same birds competed for the N.C.C. medal. My crest was in competition for the special for best bird in crest or crest-bred classes, and was duly awarded the prize by the judge. How does it come about that if the judge made an error, it was not protested against before he left the show on the Friday evening? Or, why was I led to believe that the special was mine up to 7 p.m. on the Saturday before close of show? I was then informed by the assistant secretary that he had not had time to hand me the special that evening, but would send it on as soon as convenient. Strange, that up to then there had not been a word said about any error having been made by the judge; the first intimation that I got was a week after the show, informing me that the judge had made a mistake, and that they (the committee) were going to give the special to Mr. Taylor's young crest. I then lodged a protest with the C.B.U. against such unfair treatment. The case came before the No. 1 District Committee on March 25th, 1908, and their decision was that I was duly entitled to the prize. But the Newcastle Society would not entertain their decision. The case again came before the District Committee on July 15th, 1908, when it was referred to the C.B.U. Council meeting last year. Their decision was that I had to have the special. The Newcastle Society appealed against this decision, and gave notice to have the case reopened, and the final decision of the C.B.U. Council at their meeting in August last was in my favour also. So that it will be seen that all the delay is not (as "Canny Toon" says) on the part of the C.B.U.

Teaching Budgerigars and Cockatiels Tricks.

SIR,—Can any reader give me information on taming and teaching foreign birds, such as Budgerigars and Cockatiels, to do tricks, etc.; for instance, such as one sees with organ grinders and fortune tellers on the streets? I have taken CAGE BIRDS for years, but I do not remember seeing anything on the above subject, which, I am sure, would be appreciated by many fanciers beside myself.

OLD FANCIER.

A Drying Case for which High Claims are Made.

SIR,—I wish to thank the secretary of the Leyton and District C.B.A. for his kind permission in allowing me to show Mr. Reeves' "drying case," also the visitors and fellow members for the appreciation they showed me at the annual show on November 20th. I think all who saw it were pleased, and I did my best to carry out my promise to Mr. Reeves (before leaving this country) to give a detailed explanation of its working and use. I hope our endeavours may prove of some good to fanciers generally. I was very pleased with the judges' remarks. He left nothing unturned in examining it throughout very minutely, and gave us great credit for such a well-thought-out and useful appliance. I am making arrangements with other local societies, where I shall no doubt come in contact with other judges, when I hope to gain the same appreciations, as at Leyton. I shall spare nothing in bringing it before all the fanciers I can.

Even-marked Borders at Biggar Show.

SIR,—Having observed a letter in CAGE BIRDS of this week's issue, re even-marked Borders at Biggar Show, and being asked for my opinion, I hereby give it, and trust it will be properly understood by fanciers. An even-marked bird should be marked round eyes, and there should be no break in it; neither should it reach so high as to go on the crown or top of head. The wings should be marked as near the centre as possible, as they always form the best V. Six-pointed birds should have one dark feather each side of tail, but they nearly always show a darkness at base of tail which certainly counts against them, as it is a foulness and ought not to be there, the same as foul vents and foul thighs in the four-pointed birds.

M. JAMIESON,
Hon. Sec. of the Border Fancy C.C.

SIR,—As a lover of this beautful variety of the Border Fancy Canary, I should just like to give my opinion, as to what constitutes an even mark. I am somewhat surprised to see by the letters of "U.M.J." and "Critique" that Judge Gardner had given premier honours to a bird that certainly by the description given ought to have been wrong-classed. I have always been under the impression that there are only 6 places or points on a bird's body where the variegation or marks can be so placed that it can be called even, viz., both eyes, both wings, and on either side of tail, that is, tail feathers proper and not any of the body feathers at the root of the tail, a place where very few even marks are perfectly clear. I consider any bird that shows dark feathers other than underflue is not an even mark. Now here arises another question: what is it then, if it cannot be called even? Can we call it uneven? Technically speaking, we can't; it must be either 3 pointed or 5 pointed, and if there was a class for uneven marks, I take it that it could also be wrong-classed there if the class were purely uneven. Now, I hope that some abler pen than mine will give an opinion and help us who breed and exhibit this aristocrat—the Border Fancy Canary. There are some fanciers who say that because a bird is marked a little heavier on one eye than on the other, it is not an even mark, but such is not the case. But we try and get them, if we can, and as well-balanced as we can, whether the eye marks are weak or heavy.

JOHN HOCKING.

A New Cage Bird Society for Shirebrook and District.

SIR, A meeting will be held on Saturday, December 4th, at the Institute, Shirebrook, for the purpose of forming a cage bird society. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock, and fanciers in the surrounding district are heartily invited to attend. J. PICKERING, 83, Prospect Drive, Shirebrook, near Mansfield.

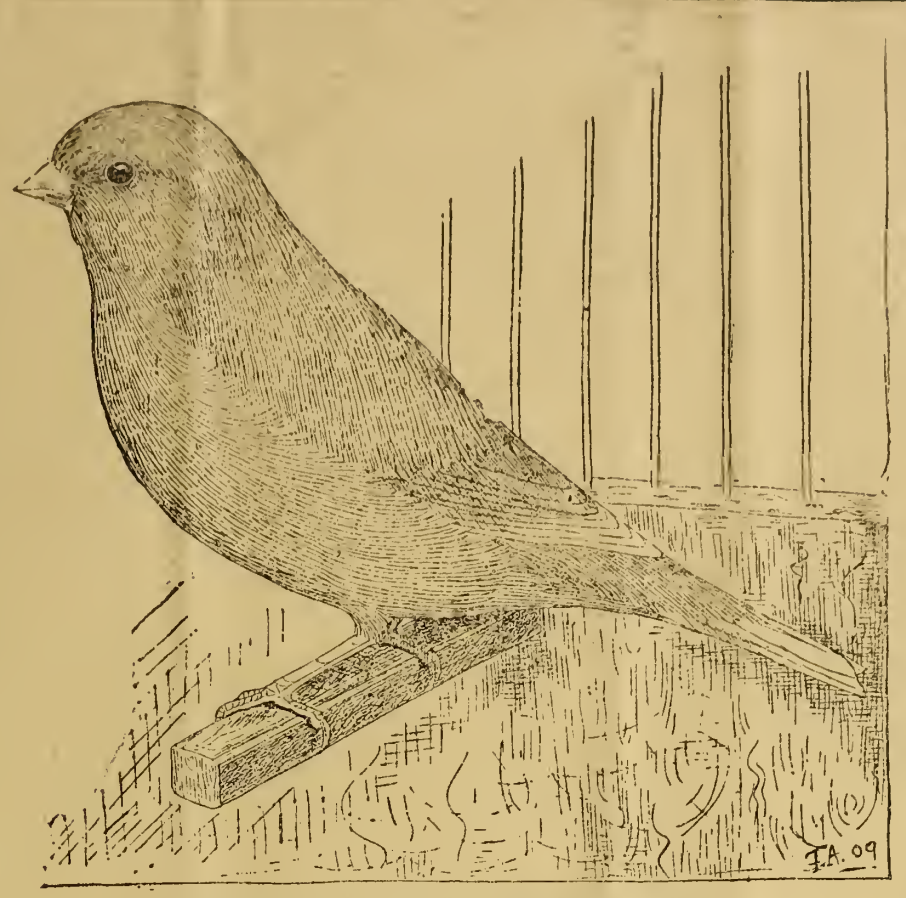
Mules as Foster Parents.

SIR, In reply to "Learner," re Mules as foster parents, I may say I had a hen Goldic-Canary Mule two seasons ago, that, with a common cock Canary, successfully incubated and reared a nest of Greenfinches, four in number, and following that they hatched and reared a nest of Mules from the same parents as the hen Mule already mentioned. I may also say I have had cock Mules feed hens when sitting, and feed the young birds when they arrived, just as Canaries would. So I advise "Learner" to pair cock Canary to hen Mule and vice versa, and in nine cases out of ten, he will be successful in getting them to act and do all the duties of foster parents. I wish him every success. A. BRYDEN.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Shows.

SIR,—With your permission I would like to tell the Fancy my experience of two weeks' exhibiting, and to ask show committees how they can reasonably expect entries when neglect is so obvious, and after plausible statements on their schedules that every care is taken to despatch birds in time to arrive home same day as show closes. Well, I exhibited at West Bromwich on November 17th and 18th, and fully expected to receive my birds on the morning of the 19th. Instead the birds arrived at my house at 6.40 p.m. on the 19th. I had attended during the day at Bradford station, but could not hear of the birds, and telegraphed to the secretary of West Bromwich Show, telling him the birds not to hand. I received my prize money during the week, but no word as to the delay. Again, this week I have shown at Sale, and my birds arrived in Bradford station at 3.35 p.m. Sunday, after waiting until midnight on the Saturday, and being kept on the run most of the Sunday awaiting trains. If this is to be the manner shows are to be conducted under the Cage Bird Union, what is the good of such a Union? It is simply a name without any strength. Committees conducting their shows in a careless manner certainly deserve to lack entries. Also we pay 50 per cent. extra in carriage, and we get 150 per cent. less attention than if our case was an ordinary parcel we had despatched. Your influential paper ought to be our means of getting more attention from railway companies, and to bring to show committees a knowledge of their laxity in dispatching the exhibits after such fair promises made to encourage entries. I trust this will do some good.



MRS. C. M. SUNDERLAND.

The Welsh C.B.C. Patronage and Swansea Show.

SIR.—Kindly allow me a short space in our valued weekly, CAGE BIRDS, to reply to an utterly contemptible contribution which appeared in last week's issue, re the W.C.B.C. patronage and the recent Swansea Show. In my previous letter I briefly detailed the despicable action of the W.C.B.C. in withdrawing their patronage practically at the last moment, doubtless with the hope of materially affecting our entries. Allow me to inform Mr. Jones that my previous letter, which he unjustly quotes as an "unworthy contribution," was written solely to expose to the public view a badly concocted, though ineffectual, attempt to boycott Swansea Show by the W.C.B.C., under the disguise of our supposed non-compliance with their classification. They demanded classes for Scotch Fancy, Crest. Crestbred and Cinnamons, notwithstanding the fact that even our entries had previously closed, and yet their patronage was readily granted us three years since, with only a Scotch Fancy class. I beg to inform Mr. J. that three years previously was 1906, not 1907, as he quotes "for his own advantage," and I furthermore state that he has yet to learn the rudimentary precepts of simple subtraction. I also beg to contradict Mr. J.'s statement that I have previously received several copies of their classification. Certainly, I acknowledge having received a single page leaflet bearing his signature, headed, "Rules and Classification." Although it contains the rules, the classification is missing. I am substantiating my statements by forwarding this leaflet to the Editor, along with our 1906 schedule, and your letter granting us your patronage. In each instance your special classification is conspicuous by its absence, and I trust our worthy Editor will verify what I have written. Considering the fact that I am furnishing absolute proof and no misrepresentation, Mr. J. would be well advised to alter his opinions, "Sabio muda conscio il asscio no." Again, surely he was sarcastically inclined when he affirmed that the W.C.B.C. are one in harmony and action. Why not dispense with abbreviations and characterise it veraciously, "harmony and underaction." I also beg to disprove Mr. J.'s remark that the main objects of the W.C.B.C. are the improvement of the Fancy, and better classification and prize money. Prize money, according to their rules, must of necessity be 17s. 6d., and as they stipulate for Scotch Fancy, Crest, Crestbred and Cinnamon classes, please note what an unbounded success were some of these classes at Treharris and Maesteg Shows recently, both of which were honoured by the patronage of the W.C.B.C. At the recent Treharris Show, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes were awarded in Scotch Fancy class, which obtained only four entries. Again, at Maesteg Show, 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes were also awarded in Scotch Fancy class containing only three entries, owned by one exhibitor, and 1st prize was awarded to the only entrant in Cinnamons. Perhaps Mr. J. will inform me where are the remaining classes, according to their "clearly written rules and classification"? For proof of foregoing account, see last issue of CAGE BIRDS. Does Mr. J. suppose that any society can tolerate such a truly miserable entry as already quoted? Perhaps he considers point specials before even the financial success of the shows. Undeniably, a truly splendid object. What a contemptible farce to demand a special classification from Swansea, and endeavour to injure the success of our show as previously mentioned, when Treharris and Maestag are taken into comparison! Perhaps Mr. J. will also enlighten me why the W.C.B.C. patronage was practically forced upon a certain society in Wales, irrespective of their compliance with the before-mentioned "clearly written rules and classification." When I applied for the W.C.B.C. patronage it was at the personal requests of several of their most prominent members, and I beg to apologise to these gentlemen for the action of their very considerate officials. Finally, I beg to inform Mr. J. that I can fully substantiate all my foregoing statements and, furthermore, warn him that even the famous and domineering W.C.B.C. cannot attempt to boycott Swansea Society with impunity.

ALF. HITCHINGS (hon. sec.).

(The leaflet sent by Mr. Hitchings details no special list of classes, so far as we can see, and the 1906 catalogue contains one Scots Fancy class, with 7 entries.—EDITOR.)

The Modern Norwich Plainhead

SIR,—The advice given by R. E. Worthington to Mr. Jowett is, to my mind, absolutely fatal to the best interests of the Fancy. To advise a breeder to pair his birds not with the idea of breeding a type as near as possible to the model laid down by the N.P.C., but to produce a type to please the individual fancy of any certain judge, is certain to produce in the long run not only a bad type of birds, but chaos in the Fancy. That there is a great deal of truth in what he states regarding judges and judging is apparent, but he is certainly not going the right way to work in giving the advice he does; that will not mend matters. I suggest that the matter is one for consideration at "headquarters." May I suggest that no judge be allowed to officiate until he has received a license from the C.B.U., that license only to be granted upon the applicant satisfying the officials that he is thoroughly acquainted with the various types laid down by the various clubs representing the different breeds of birds? No judge should have a type of his own whilst officiating publicly, whatever his ideas be in his own birdroom; he must forget these when he is accepting the money of a club, who have laid down a certain type and are paying him to select the exhibits most nearly approaching their standard. Fanciers have the remedy of all these evils in their own hands, and they have various clubs representing the various breeds; they have, too, the C.B.U. to keep an eye upon all. Demand that your judges shall prove their ability to judge to standard without fear or favour; then license them.

HARRY MOORE.

SIR,—Mr. Worthington says he was sorry to have to speak so roughly about my birds at Accrington. He also asks, what else could he do? Why, Mr. W., you could mind your own business and not pull a brother fancier's birds to pieces. I notice you advise me to be careful in what I write about other people's birds. Well, Mr. W., you just take that to yourself, and mind what you write about other people's bird in the future. I was not aware, Mr. W., that I had ever written about any one individual's birds. My letters were on the present-day winning Norwich Plainhead. I never mentioned exhibitors' names; I simply wrote, as I thought, to try and improve our present-day Norwich Plainheads, and from what I can see up to the present this season, it has had the desired effect, with the help of others who wrote on the same subject. I am pleased to see a good improvement in the winning birds this season. The judges are, I think, going in more for type than usual. I notice you say my green bird should have been "wrong classed." Mr. W., this is news to me, as I was not aware that I exhibited a green bird at Accrington. It was a very heavily marked bird, almost green, therefore it was in its right class. I think, had it been a green bird, Mr. Booth would have wrong-classed him. I notice you also say Mr. Cook's champion was not there, but only a stock bird. Then they must have been all stock birds in the class except the winner, according to your idea. How funny! You also say the present-day winning Norwich are as good as you have seen for years. Probably so. And you refer me to Mr. Sandiford's variegated bird. Well, I can't say I have seen the bird, but from reports it is a good one. Messrs. Aitchison and Winters' birds you say are a credit to Scotland; probably so. I hope, however, they are not the same type as the picture of the Scottish Norwich Plainhead that appeared in CAGE BIRDS some weeks ago, and which I wrote about, and which you should have answered like a good fancier, instead of criticising my exhibits at Accrington. Yes, I supplied those winners I mentioned, and I also bred them. So you don't wear a hat, Mr. W.? I quite understand it now—got a swelled head and can't get it on, eh? J. BERTIE.

Alleged "Rough Treatment" at Bodmin Show.

SIR,—I thank you for your footnote to Mr. Collins' letter. I fail to see where any "roughness" comes in, as Mr. Collins wrote me, and got an answer saying his bird did not win. Surely Mr. Collins does not want to claim a prize if his bird did not win it honestly? The bird in question was left cardless. I herewith enclose you my judging slip to show you no alteration of any kind has been made by me. I also enclose you the marked catalogue to see how I marked them off. The error was that bird number 784 was wearing No. 785's prize card, and the papers reported on the bird wearing the 1st prize, which was not the winner.

C. E. SILK, judge.

(The slip from the judging book sent by Mr. Silk is quite clear—No. 785 is 1st, and No. 784 unnoticed.—EDITOR.)

The Bristol F.A. Show and the Cage Bird Union.

SIR,—in answer to Mr. Maggs' letter, where he states I devote one half of my last letter to irrelevances, I would remind him of the old saying, "There's none so blind as those that won't see." If Mr. Maggs had stated that one half of my letter was in answer to his own irrelevances, he would have been nearer the truth, as anyone who understands plain English can see. Mr. Maggs accuses me of trying to hit him, and asking him not to hit back; another misrepresentation. It seems he dealt the "hit," and it appears by his letter got the "knock out" blow in return, if I might use a pugilistic expression, or why did he avoid the most important questions in my letter with the excuse "that he need only deal with one or two of these complaints," and those one or two, I may say, the least important? I think the words "I want" instead of "I need" would be more applicable in this instance, as he knows it would be detrimental to his case if he answered. In my opinion Mr. Maggs' wild charge of "misrepresentation" only recoils upon himself. As regards the position Mr. Maggs takes up, whether they were affiliated or licensed, is immaterial to me. The question is: Did the C.B.U. give their sanction for their show to be held under C.B.U. rules on the same date as the Gloucester Cage Bird Society's Show, or did they forbid them to hold their show under the said rules? I maintain, had their show been held under C.B.U. rules with their sanction, their fixture would have appeared in the C.B.U. advertised list, which it did not. Now, Mr. Maggs, not so much "around the bush" business; let us have a straightforward answer to this question. I may say my first letter was intended to solicit an answer from the C.B.U. secretary on this particular point, but for some reason he has not seen fit to answer either of my questions in the first or second letter. So I have written him asking him to officially affirm or deny my statements, surely not an unreasonable request under the circumstances? Finally, Mr. Maggs, may I ask you for the second time what you mean when you say the only objection against our date under the new rule giving first choice to purely cage bird societies was withdrawn? Who withdrew it?

A. E. WASLEY.

P.S.—I have just received a reply to my letter from the C.B.U. sec. to the effect that the Bristol Fanciers' Society was refused permission to hold their show on the Gloucester Cage Bird Society's date, viz., October 27th and 28th. He is of the same opinion as myself, that the B.F.A. have defied the Union after being warned that they must alter their date, as they were objected to according to the new rule passed at the Palace Show. So I suppose we shall hear more about it from the Council at a later date. Mr. Maggs, I hope, will agree that I have at last arrived at the point at issue, and not "irrelevances" this time. I may say that any further correspondence on my part after this will, I think, be quite unnecessary.

City of Birmingham C.B.S. held their annual function on December 1st and 2nd. The schedule issued, being of grand classification, was well responded to. The entries totalled up to 635, this being a record entry. The Masonic Hall, where the show was held, is of a very spacious character, with nice light, being lofty and well ventilated and free from draughts. The President is Mr. J. A. Eckersley, the Vice-Presidents Messrs. W. W. Butler and J. Webb. These three make a trio of capital officials. The Chairman is Mr. A. Broadhurst, and Mr. J. Burke acts as his understudy; both are good and well-known fanciers. The Hon. Treasurer is Mr. J. Harvey, who has the Society's interests at heart, and the Committee consists of a band of most willing helpers, who one and all did their level best; they are: Messrs. Collier, Dipple, Harris, Ingram, Richardson, and Silvers. The Show Stewards were: Messrs. Broadhurst, Caine, Collier, Crowther, Derry, Dipple, Eckersley, Edwards, Harris, Hughes, Ingram, Jones, Paddock, Smith, Wells, Wright, and Mole. Everything went off smoothly and well, and each and every one of the officers are to be highly complimented on their exertions. Special mention might be made as regards Mr. E. Edwards, who worked admirably all night previous to show day. Mr. J. H. de Maillet, the Hon. Secretary, is certainly the right man in the right place—quick, most courteous, and obliging, ever on the go, and nothing is too much for him to do. Much of the success of the show is due to him. The staging had been well thought out, and every bird could be seen at a glance. As each class was adjudicated upon, the prize slips were affixed and the show opened to time.

Norwich Plainheads opened the catalogue, and this being a N.P. Cup show, the cream of the variety was on view, truly a most magnificent collection, and worth many miles' journey to see. Amongst the amateur classes, too, one saw specimens far and away above the ordinary. Borders were a nice lot, and the green-marked Yorkshires were a treat, the best lot we have seen this season. Messrs. Ogden Bros. captured three 1sts here out of a possible four with topping exhibits. The Yorkshires made a very fine display, and included some clinkers. The winning unflighted buff (beating yellows), was a topper, and no mistake. Take care of him, Mr. Price, he will do you good. The best Yorkie in the novice section was the buff hen, successfully staged by Mr. H. Martin. The British added greatly to the attraction of the show. The Goldies, most of them, were not quite fit, but the Bullies were a hot lot. Linnets here we have seen in better condition, but Mr. T. Marsh deserved his win. Greenies we liked, and the Redpoll (Silver King), the property of Mr. A. Tonks, rightly deserved this name. Amongst the insectivorous, Mr. S. L. Cocks stood 1st with a slashing Tree Creeper, the 2nd being a Bearded Tit, in full bloom, the property of Miss E. Saywell. Hybrids, although not over numerous, were a very fine lot. Foreign gave tone to the function and were greatly admired. Special winners: Hyde's, Mr. S. N. Naylor; Ramsden's, F. Race; Sandiford's, Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor; best yell., Mr. J. E. Davies; buff, Mr. T. Sandiford; best C.-B. by a member, Mr. A. J. Smith; best Nor., Mr. F. Derry; best novice Yorks, Mr. J. Hughes. Judges were: Messrs. C. A. House (Walthamstow) and J. C. Barnes (Sheffield). Mr. R. J. Howe, also an appointed judge, wired that he was unable to attend through illness. Mr. House therefore took his place. The awards appeared to be well received.

Mr. J. C. Barnes' Classes.

MELBOURNE (Derby).

Sixteenth annual show held December 1st and 2nd in the Public Hall, a splendid place for a show. Entries came up very poorly, there being but 22 in four classes, but the quality was very good. We were very sorry to see the entries so bad, and we are afraid the Canary class will be "off" another year. The birds were nicely staged, the management good, and judging was, of course, over very early. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

YELL. YORKS. (5): 1, spl, Wall, cl. yell., very slim and upstanding, splendid quality, neat wings, and tail; 2, Wall, long and stylish, neat wings and tail, nice even col.; 3, York, head and wing mkd., nice racy exhibit, capital length; vhc, Dykes; hc, Skow Bros. FALKIRK O.S.

Club show held in the Union Hall, Graham's Road, November 6. Judges: For Scotch Fancy, Mr. J. A. Stewart (Glasgow); and for Norwich, Border, British, Mule and Hybrid, Mr. P. McDougall (Edinburgh). The Scotch Fancies were twenty up on last year, and the Norwich twenty down. Mr. Muirhead won cup for best Scotch. Mr. Maxwell had the best hen. Mr. Patterson won the Norwich cup. The judges gave every satisfaction, and there was a fair turnout of visitors. The secretary, Mr. W. Niven, had the arrangements well in hand, and everything passed off well.

CARDIFF.

The 13th annual show of the Cardiff and Dis. C.B.S. was held on Dec. 1st and 2nd in Andrew's Lesser Hall, a room quite free from draughts. The entries came up well, numbering over 700, an excess of 200 over last year, and the quality all through was first-class; in fact, in many of the classes two sets of winners could have been found. As usual, the British birds were a show in themselves, the competition being exceedingly keen, the winners in many of the classes having all on to get at the top. The exhibits were nicely staged, and as usual at this fixture had the best of attention from a body of genuine fanciers, whose enthusiasm seemed contagious. It would be impossible to speak too highly of the hon. secretary, Mr. W. Sampson. As usual, he went about his duties in that quite methodical manner which has earned for him so much high praise in the past. He is a born secretary and manager, and the embodiment of tact and courtesy, and we think the society are extremely fortunate in having such a capable officer at the helm. Mr. J. H. Payne judged Norwich and even numbers in the other sections, Mr. J. Robson taking the odd numbers and Yorkshires.

"Cage Birds," 154, Fleet St., London

PORTSMOUTH.

Held in the Hampshire Fortress Engineers' Drill Hall on December 1st and 2nd. The hall is a well-lighted building, spacious and lofty, and the cage birds arranged along one side of it made a most imposing display. Interest was added to the scene by the presence of Mr. F. G. Foster, late Mayor of Portsmouth, who is also chairman of committee of the society, and who in years gone by played such an important part in the interests of the Crest Fancy. Mr. Foster has long since left the exhibition arena, but his love for the cage bird Fancy is as deep, and his interest as keen, as ever. Many of the principal inhabitants visited the show during the time it was open. The joint hon. secretaries, Messrs. W. T. Hawes and G. Frampton, had no light task set them to manage successfully a mixed show in which there were 1360 odd entries, but they acquitted themselves very satisfactorily, and the committee and stewards lent willing aid. They were Messrs. Bonker, W. J. Coffin, Marshall, Abrahams, Carrier, A. Coffin, Kilbury, Lean, Shott, Woodhouse, Squibb, Shotter. Norwich Plainheads made a splendid show, both in numbers and in quality; Yorkshires were also a nice collection, but Crests and Crest-breds were but a shadow of what we have seen at Portsmouth in past days. Goldfinches were a magnificent collection both in open and members' classes. The British came up grandly, and the Foreign were excellent. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were generally well received.

DUNDEE.

The City of Dundee C.B.S. held their annual show on November 26th and 27th, and, taken all over, it proved a great success. This year the Society held a two days' show, and the gratifying entry proved that they were correct, as many birds were from a long distance and the night's rest did them good; also all birds were dispatched so as to reach home on the Saturday night, which is a great inducement for fanciers to support such well-conducted shows. Crests and Crest-breds opened the programme, and such an array of champions in this section have seldom been on view at Scotch fixtures. Young Crests and Crest-breds included some real high-class stock, many likely champions being among them. Keen competition prevailed in these classes for the splendid trophies given, and the winners were found in Mr. Adamson's Crest hen, and Mr. Whitton's young Crest-bred. The members' cup was secured by Mr. Paul. Taken all over these were the keenest contested classes in the show, and deserved to be so after the splendid classification given to them. Plainheads followed, and here we have seen larger numbers, but never quality so equal in merit. All classes were keenly contested, and the winner of the cup was found in Mr. Davidson's buff cock bird. We believe this gentleman wins this special outright. The fed classes all over were nice, and some real high-class birds were among the non-feds. Scotch Fancies were a nice collection, some rare exhibits being staged. The cup winners proved to be Mr. Muirhead's well-known buff, and Mr. Rumsay's yellow hen. Borders followed, but here we were sorry to see two classes cancelled. However, what were left were good, some of the classes being exceptionally well contested. The winner of the B.F.C. medal was Mr. Hamilton's uneven buff. Mules and British were a grand collection. Cup for best in section was secured by Mr. Crockett's well-known Waxwing. The British, taken all over, were well up to the best of shows, and some hot ones were on view. The show was held in the gymnasium, an ideal show room, free from draughts and well lighted, while the birds were snugly and carefully staged. The management was perfect, Mr. Miller having everything well in hand and being ably assisted by an enthusiastic committee. The show was well patronised, and was one of the best held in Dundee. The judges were:—Mr. Campbell, for Crests and Crest-breds; Mr. Malcolmson, for Plainheads; Messrs. Black and Fulton, for Scotch Fancies; Mr. Hamilton, for Borders; and Mr. Livingstone (of Livingstone and Sharp), for Mules, British, etc.

LAUNCESTON.

The annual show of the Launceston F.S., held on November 30th, proved a great success, the entries being over 100 in excess of last year's, and the quality was first-rate all through. Some capital birds were staged in the Norwich and Yorkshire classes. In the latter section exhibitors from the county of broad acres secured all the first prizes, with birds of much merit. The special for best bird in show went to Mr. Collins' six-pointed buff Goldfinch Canary Mule. The exhibits were nicely staged and had the best of attention from a good committee of genuine fanciers. Mr. N. H. Reed, the hon. sec., had everything in thorough working order, and makes a most admirable officer, being tactful, courteous and obliging. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

WOODSIDE (N.B.).

Annual exhibition of the Woodside O.S. took place in the Burgh Hall on Nov. 20th. The show turned out a record for this society. The entries numbered 450, compared with 340 last year. All the classes were well filled, especially in the natural coloured classes. The committee thought it fit to open two extra mulighted classes, which were well patronized, viz., buff cocks and buff hens; also two Border classes. The Society is undoubtedly most flourishing and are well served by a hard working, honest set of fanciers. The Norwich were the great feature of the show, and birds of grand type and quality were on view. The Mule class was also particularly good. Hyde's special was won by Mr. C. Thomson, Mr. A. Thomson being runner up. The special for best Cinnamon was won by Mr. Wm. Kay, and that for the most points in wild birds by Messrs. Ewen and Anderson, while the £1 1s. challenge prize was gained by Mr. A. Paterson, Ramsden's special was won by Mr. C. Thomson. The stewards were Messrs. Lyon and Jamieson; president, Mr. P. Stewart; vice-president, Mr. F. Scott; secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. Thomson, and these gentlemen carried out their respective duties in a very efficient, satisfactory and obliging manner. They were also well backed up by a large committee: Messrs. C. Campbell (Glasgow), and D. Ross ceived.

AVONBRIDGE.

The sixth annual show of the Avonbridge O.S. was held on November 20th, in the Public School. The entries were an improvement on last year's, especially in the Border Fancy and British Bird sections. The S.B.B. and M.C.'s handsome shield trophy no doubt accounted for the large entry in the British bird classes. The judges officiating were, for Norwich and Borders, Mr. John Holmes, and for British birds and Mules, Mr. Alex. Cockrane (Edinburgh). The hon. secretary is Mr. P. Gentleman, who carried through the arrangements in really capital style. Cup for most points over the whole show was won by Mr. J. Shields, and the jelly dish for second most points by Mr. R. Gentleman, who also won the pipe and case for most points in British. A Linnet shown by Mr. P. Waugh was disqualified for alleged staining. (Owing to our representative missing his train connection, we regret we are unable to give a detailed criticism of this show.—Editor).

BLACKWOOD (N.B.).

Sixth annual show, held in St. John's School, Nov. 20th. The room of the school was kindly lent, and the society are to be congratulated upon having such liberally inclined gentlemen amongst their patrons. The school is a nice place for a show, very comfortable and free from draught. We found the officials all lanciers of true grit, in Mr. J. Hamilton, as secretary, the society have the right man in the right place. He is young, but has a rare command of tenson for his years, and had every thing in the pink of order. The entry was up upon that of all previous shows, and the quality high class. The best Scotch Fancy was a real good one. The Border section was the feature of the show, special for best cock, also cup for best Border, going to a splendid buff green. A really tip top clear buff won special for best hen. Norwich, Crests and British, were a nice lot, a very fine Crest and Crest-bred leading, and capturing the specials. A very nice Redstart was the pick of the British. We noticed an Albino Lark which has the making of a good one, but not bring well staged, did not command the eye of the judge. Judges: Messrs. Allardice (Scotch Fancy), J. Patterson (Borders and common), and J. Mc Lay (remainder); their awards were well received.

The Members' Classes.

Members' entries came up well, some 200 exhibits facing the judges. Silver cup for most points in members' classes went to Mr. H. Fenwick, silver cup for best bird to Mr. T. Taylor, the silver cup for most points with live nominated birds also going to the same exhibitor. Special for best Finch went to Mr. C. Waters, and Hyde's Special and Sandiford's were both secured by Mr. W. Reid. Mr. Heath judged Nor., Crests, Cinnamons and Yorks., and Mr. Stanger the remainder, and their awards were well received.

LOWESTOFT AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Third annual show held in the Hall, Mill Road, South Lowestoft, by kind permission of Mr. A. A. Kirk, on Nov. 25th, when a first-class lot of birds faced the judge, Mr. W. E. Greaves. During the past three years great improvement has been made by the Lowestoft breeders in the Norwich, Crests, and Cinnamons, most noticeably in the Norwich Plainhead; with broader heads and a bit thicker in the neck they would be about perfect, the type, quality and colour, being of the best. Mr. Hart's clear yellow has, we hear, been out twice, winning 2 firsts and 2 specials, and on the last occasion there were 18 in the class. Mr. F. Rackham's winning clear buff is a bonny bird, and was well shown; this also has been out six times, winning six firsts and three specials. The hen classes brought out some good specimens, the winners being typical and of rare quality. The Crests of Mr. Corke and H. Hart have previously been commented on, and again were shown in excellent form: the same may be said of the Cinnamons of Messrs. Lang, junr., and Hart. Mr. Rackham again won the challenge cup, for the 2nd time in succession, presented by Mr. R. Leach, a very handsome piece of silver under a huge glass shade. Our old friend Hart said he was unable to compete for it, as he had no room large enough to stand it in. Mr. W. Lang, junr., carried out the secretarial duties in the best possible manner, and with Messrs. Hart in charge, assisted by Mr. Kirk, Hatch, Rackham, and others, everything passed off without a hitch.

CL. YELL., CHAMP.: 1, 2, Hunt; 3 extra 3, Hatch. BUFF: 1, 3, Rackham; 2, Hart. TKD. YELL.: 1, Hatch; 2, Rackham; 3, Castleton; extra 3, Kirk. BUFF: 1, Parke; 2, Rackham; 3, Hatch. YELL. DENNY AND DUNIPACE.

Denny and Dunipace P.P. and C.B.A. held their annual show on 27th November, in the Foresters' Hall, Denny. Office bearers.—President, R. Waddell, Esq.; vice president, J. Marshall, Esq.; committee: Messrs. J. Herd, W. Blair, T. Lowrie, D. Robertson, H. Parker, A. Parker, R. Anderson, senr., T. L. Henderson, R. Anderson, junr., Gavin M. Murdo; treasurer, J. M. Murdo; secretary, Mr. A. France. The entries all over were much in excess of last year's. This was specially noticeable in the C.B. section. Several of the classes were small, but the quality was very nice. This is the first occasion the show has been held in the Foresters' Hall, which is well adapted for the purpose. There was a large turn out of visitors and fanciers. Secretary France and President R. Waddell, backed up by an able committee, had everything in thorough working order. The principal honour in this section was Provost silver cup for most points over all the show, won by Mr. R. Esson, the runners up for points being Messrs. A. and H. Parker. Mr. Esson also won silver medal for the best bird confined to members. Mr. J. McLay judged cage birds. In the yellow clear or tick Plainhead cocks, the bird placed second and special was wrong classed, being a Crest bred bird, and must have escaped the judge's eye. With this exception the awards throughout were well received. Plainheads and Borders were a creditable lot, also the British classes. The show was a great success in every way.

LUDLOW.

The Ludlow C.B.S. held its second annual show in the Town Hall on Nov. 24th and 25th. The hall is admirably adapted for the purpose, having excellent light, and being very spacious, without being draughty. The exhibits, too, were seen to every advantage. Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales was in Ludlow on the opening day, and doubtless the show profited by the big influx of people into the town. Entries, although in excess of last year's, were not perhaps so good in quality, but some fine specimens were on view, notably Mrs. Cotton's Hawfinch, Mr. Poole's Greenfinch, Mr. Bessell's Yellowbunting, and the Hybrids of Messrs. Edwards and Callear, winners in their respective classes. The secretary (Mr. J. Bessell) and his committee had matters well in hand, and are to be congratulated on their able management. Mr. J. H. Roe judged.

LOOK OUT

BERWICK-ON-TWEED.

Third annual show, held on November 25, and the cage birds proved to be the attraction. Scotch Fancies were rather down in numbers, but the quality was good, and the Norwich Plainheads taken all over were a fine collection, some splendid birds being staged. The A.O.V. class included a varied lot, and the judge was happy in his awarding first to a grand clear cap Gold Lizard. Mr. Anthony Hay judged these classes, and his awards were well received. Borders, Mules, and British birds, however, were the feature of this section. Some gems of the first water were staged, and all the classes were keenly contested. Mr. J. W. Bruce judged these classes, and he drew a really first-class entry, his awards being well received. The hall is an ideal place for a show, being well lighted, and the cage birds were comfortably staged. The committee are composed of genuine fanciers, and were ably assisted by their secretary, Mr. Smart, who had everything in apple-pie order, and his colleague, Mr. Gray, was a grand second. The show was well patronised by fanciers.

CIRENCESTER.

This show was held on Nov. 25th in the Bingham Hall. The cage birds were staged in a separate room, which was most comfortable, being well lighted and quite free from draughts. The quality was excellent, several grand birds being staged. They had the best of attention from the stewards, Messrs. Habgood and Mead. Special for best bird in show went to Mr. H. Davies's well-known King Parrakeet. Mr. W. G. Poole captured special for best Britisher, with a lovely grey Wagtail, in grand feather and very steady. Mr. W. G. Inward, the popular and energetic hon. secretary, had everything in capital order, and as usual, was most courteous and obliging. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

HETTON-LE-HOLE.

Second annual show of the Hetton-le-Hole C.B.S. was held (in conjunction with their 13th annual members' show) on Nov. 27th in the Miners' Hall. The hall is very large and roomy, and heated to a suitable temperature, and with a little more top light would be really an ideal place for the holding of a cage bird show. Entries came up splendidly, totalling about 350, an increase of nearly 200 over last year, which speaks volumes for the management. Mr. A. Brown was engaged to judge the whole of the show, but owing to the large entry the committee thought it advisable to engage another judge, and Mr. W. Reid, of Sunderland, was sent for to officiate upon the members' section. The arrangements for the show were splendid, everything being in first-class order, with all birds staged at a correct height. In Mr. A. J. Notley the society possess a really first-class secretary, who thoroughly understands the running up of a cage bird show, and the manner in which he performs his duties is really an eye-opener; he is hard-working, energetic, yet withal most courteous and obliging. He was ably supported by the assistant-secretary (Mr. R. Allen), whom we always found working hard, and both were well supported by a most enthusiastic band of funciers, headed by the chairman, Mr. H. Wilson. The show was opened by the president (Mr. Fred Piper), who, in a very happy speech, said that this was his first visit to a cage bird show, but after what he had seen it would certainly not be his last. He said he was charmed with the beautiful birds he had seen, and the splendid manner in which they were looked after. He was glad to note the presence of so many ladies, which most surely proved to him that the hobby of keeping cage birds was one of the very best. He offered to present to the society a cup or bowl for next year. (Loud applause.) Mr. A. J. Notley, in a racy little speech, thanked the president for his attendance, and on behalf of the society presented him with a beautiful bird and cage, and Mr. Piper returned thanks. We regret to record another case of alleged Linnet staining, Mr. Reid's suspicions falling on a bird while judging the members' Linnet class. As the bird was also entered in the open class, Mr. Reid decided to obtain the opinion of Mr. Brown before testing the bird. He also thought the bird was stained, and the two judges thereupon tested the bird in the presence of witnesses (including the owner), and an alleged stain was taken from both back and breast. Prize money was paid out during the afternoon to the successful exhibitors present, and all birds were packed and sent off in good time to reach home same night. We are pleased to record a splendid attendance of visitors. Mr. A. Brown (Gateshead) judged all the open classes, and Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) all members', and their awards were well received.

DUNBAR.

Fifth annual show of the Dunbar and Dis. F.S. took place on November 24th, in the Assembly Rooms. We regret to say that the entries showed a considerable falling off on last year's. The whole of the Scotch Fancy classes were cancelled, the reason no doubt being the cold weather. Mr. J. Patterson's even mark "Perfection," though not yet quite up in bloom, some thought should have been 1st. Mr. Wm. Hamilton, of Hamilton, officiated as judge. Mr. A. Spence, the hon. secretary is deserving of every praise for his able management of affairs.

ECCLESHILL.

Eccleshill B.F.A. held their fifteenth annual open show on November 26 and 27, in the Mechanics' Institute, under the rules of the Y.F., and the patronage of the Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., N.C.M.Y.C.C., and the O.N.F.C. A liberal schedule and a good special list had been issued, but the response from the fancy was not altogether satisfactory, there being only the moderate entry of 388 in the 31 classes, an average of 12 per class. Mr. J. Greaves officiated as judge, his awards being well received. Messrs. Ogden Bros. secured special for most points in champion classes, also that for most points in first 6 classes, and that for most points in classes 7 to 13, which apparently constitutes the "bat trick." In Nor. the principal scorers were Messrs. Haigh and Son, who secured spl. for that section. In Novice Cin. mkd. classes, Mr. W. Richmond secured premier honours in both classes, and also spl. for most points gained by a novice, Mr. E. Dinsdale taking 2nd place. Sandiford's medal for best fed bird fell to Mr. J. W. Holmes. Mr. T. Elsegood is an efficient secretary, and had everything in shipshape order, he being ably assisted on the judging day by Messrs. F. Gelder and J. Chippendale as stewards, the cards being up in good time.

LEEDS C.B.S.

Very successful members' show, held on November 13th at St. George's Schools. The total entries numbered 266 in the 32 classes. The room is a grand one for a bird show, and was well patronised by visitors. Owing to the heavy entry, we were obliged to call in the assistance of our old friend, Mr. Fred King, to help Mr. H. E. Wilkinson, of Stocksbridge, to judge. Mr. King judged open Yorks., A.O.V., and British; and Mr. Wilkinson, open Norwich, novice Yorks, and novice Norwich, and right stiff classes these novice classes were. The judging was over by 5 o'clock, and the show opened. The awards gave general satisfaction.

INVERNESS.

The Inverness O.A. held their 29th annual show in the Music Hall, on November 24th. The hall is an admirable one for the purpose, although somewhat cold in the forenoon. If the staging were placed lengthwise it would be a great improvement both in comfort to the exhibits and in light. The total showed a slight increase on last year's entries, 304 being staged—an average of about 7 per class. Although there was only a slight increase in entries the quality of the birds showed a great improvement on any previous fixture; especially was this apparent in the Border and British bird sections, where two sets of winners could have been found in almost every class. The Border Fancies showed far and away the greatest improvement, and some real gems were staged. The Britishers came next in order of merit, and some "tough nuts" were to be found here, notably the Bearded Tit and Linnet shown by Mr. E. Todd, also the Goldfinch exhibited by Mr. D. McMillan. A slight sensation was caused by the judge leaving out of the cards Mr. T. Mackie's Crest, which appeared to be an easy first; this, however, was no doubt owing to the bird's being defective in eyesight. The Roller Canaries, although only provided with one class, contained some birds of the first water. Mr. J. F. Dewar judged all but Rollers, which were taken by Mr. W. R. Christie; both gentlemen got through their work in a methodical manner.

The Critique.

SCOT. FCY. (6): 1, Denoon, very reachy green, all there for quality; 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, Todd, grand team, former cl. buff of magnificent quality, not large, but a stormer for a hen; 3, grand sided buff, plenty of reach and top end, gets tail close in a good third. YORKS. CK., NAT. COL. (4): 1, 2, 4, Mackenzie, yell., leading very slim and long, some thought had had a dip in the pepper pot; 2, buff of good length, cronches sometimes; 3, Brodie, really good Yorkie, finely drawn, stands well up, another some thought had had a smell in the pepper pot. HEN (4): 1, Brodie, good Yorkie, slim and leggy, stands well, close in feather; 2, Todd, good length, close in feather; 3, Mackenzie, bronzy-green, very leggy bird, wants handling; 4, Cumming. BORD. WINDSOR & DIS. C.B.A.

Annual members' show held recently in the Guildhall, in a room beautifully warmed and quite free from draughts. The Mayoress of Windsor kindly opened the show. The Mayor was also present, and showed considerable interest in the exhibits. The society is strong in Yorkshires. Mr. Montgomery won special for best Yorkie in show. The British bird special went to Mr. W. R. Temple, who exhibited a lovely bearded Tit. The show was well attended by visitors. Mr. E. A. Stickland makes a good secretary, being ably assisted by Messrs. Simms, Turner, Green, and Collyer. Mr. H. Norman judged.

BLACKPOOL AND FYLDE.

Blackpool and Fylde O.S. held their open show on Nov. 26th and 27th, in the Alexandra Cafe, Victoria Street. The room is an excellent one for a C.B. show, and is very convenient for the station. Considering the prize-money and specials offered, we were disappointed at the support accorded, and think more fanciers might have sent birds, and given the management more encouragement for another year. We trust, however, that matters will turn out better than we at first anticipated, and that we shall have the pleasure of seeing a big show at Blackpool next year. Although not strong in numbers, the quality of the exhibits was all there, grand birds being staged in every section. Hyde's special was won by Mr. Bevan, and Sandiford's by Mr. J. E. Davies. The special of £1 1s., generously given by Mr. W. Binns for most points in show, was won by Mr. T. Sandiford, and the 10/6 special given by the society, by Mr. J. E. Davies. Of the management we cannot speak too highly. Mr. A. J. Winterbottom makes an ideal secretary, and under his able management everything passed off in AI order. He was ably supported by the chairman, Mr. G. Young, the vice-chairman, Mr. W. Binns, and the treasurer, Mr. S. Morrison. Mr. H. W. Battye judged, and his awards were well received.

CREWE.

Held November 26th and 27th, in the Co-operative Hall. The cage bird section was staged in the anteroom, which has nice light, and is suitably heated. Entries were not quite so numerous as they might have been, considering the half-prize money system so much in vogue was not resorted to here—a fact we should have thought exhibitors would have appreciated. Several classes of Norwich and Yorks unfortunately had the pen put through them. The British birds were a grand lot, both for number and quality. Some big winners turned up in this section. The hon. secretary, Mr. G. W. Dutton, was here, there and everywhere. A better man to fill the post it would be very hard to find; he is a thorough worker, very methodical and obliging. The cage bird stewards were Messrs. Measures and Hancocks, who gave the exhibits every attention, having everything in order. Cards were put up as each class was judged. Mr. A. C. Brotherhood judged, and gave every satisfaction.

DUBLIN (Y.C.C. of Ireland.)

The Yorkshire C.C. of Ireland held their sixth annual show in the Central Hall, Westmoreland-street, Dublin, on November 25th and 26th. The chairman of the club is Mr. C. A. O'Reilly, the hon. secretary, Mr. J. R. Hyland, hon. treasurer, Mr. R. F. Dnigenan, and the following gentlemen comprise the committee: Messrs. Kenny, McKenzie, Lambert, Dowling, Thompson, Dr. Lavery, Hawkins, Neale, South, Keatinge, and W. C. Sholedice, who all worked hard amongst the exhibits, and did all they knew to make the show a success. We must congratulate Mr. J. R. Hyland, the capable hon. secretary on the way the birds were staged; every one could be seen. The prize cards, too, were placed as soon as handed in by the judge, Mr. W. Mundell (Bradford), whose awards appeared to give every satisfaction. The Yorkshires were a fine lot, and Mr. Fleming staged a beautiful Cinnamon-marked buff hen, which took special for best Yorkshire in show, his yellow hen won 3rd, but looked a little soft, and we should advise him to give this bird a rest. Messrs. C. O'Reilly, Hawkins, and Devins staged some fine birds, and Dr. Lavery staged a nice clear buff, which won 1st and special in its section. The Norwich were a fine lot, and the Belfast exhibitors, Messrs. Thompson and Stewart, won most of the prizes. British turned up well, and keen was the competition in the Linnet and Goldfinch classes. The attendance during the day was good, and we wish the club every success.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.

Fifth annual show held at the Kursaal, on Nov. 23rd and 24th. The President is his Worship the Mayor, Mr. G. Larman is chairman, and Mr. O. M. Howard, vice. Mr. B. P. T. Jones and Mr. G. Darbon are hon. secretaries, and made most excellent arrangements for the success of the show, the only drawback to which, so far as we could see, being the unfortunate coldness of the building, there being no means of obtaining anything like a sufficiency of artificial heat. This may also have had something to do with the failure of entries in this section, no fewer than half the classes having to be cancelled. What few cage birds were on show, however, were of splendid quality. Cup for best bird was won by Mr. L. Parish, with a beautiful buff Yorkshire. Mr. Wheat won special for best Mule, with a rattling specimen of the Cinn. Greenie-Can. cross. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

YORKS., BUFF, ETC. (5): 1, cup, 2, 3, r, vhc, Parish, splendid team, leader topping bird, rare quality, well up on leg, 2nd very close up, well up on leg, sweet head. YELL. HEN (5): All prizes to Mr. Parish, winner tkd. bird, grand size and feather. BUFF (5): Again all to Mr. Parish. The fifteen birds in the three classes were a grand team, and did the owner credit. MULES (7): 1, spl, 2, 3, r, vhc, he, c, Wheat, another grand team, put down by one fancier, leader beautiful glossy feathered bird, cross apparently between the Greenfinch and yell. Cinn. Can.; there were also some fine dark Linnet-Can. Mules in the team.

ILKESTON.

Ninth annual open show held on Nov. 27th and 28th in the Victoria Hall, Bath Street. There proved to be a record entry. A very liberal classification is always given here for Norwich, Yorkshires and Crests, and a good number of Hybrid, British, and Foreign classes filled up the rear. Norwich came up in very good force; so did the Yorkshires. Crests and Crest-breds came up well for quality, but we would like to see more birds per class where seven classes and a specialist judge to boot are provided. Hybrids, British, and Foreign came up splendidly, and the committee were highly pleased with the excellent entry. Some of the best birds in the kingdom were staged. What a fine list of patrons who subscribe from 1s. up to 10s. 6d. each there are—some 80 odd, far too many to enumerate here. It speaks volumes for the workers; no wonder they make the show a success. The committee is composed of Mr. H. Hunt (chairman), Mr. E. Beardsley (vice-chairman), and Messrs. J. H. Booth, W. Henshaw, J. Straw, W. Cliffe, W. Eaton, R. Pender, W. Brocklesby, J. Gregory, G. E. Shaw, Chas. Martin, A. Thompson, J. Martin, R. Smith, and S. Keightley. Mr. M. Marriott is treasurer and Mr. Thos. Smith secretary. The latter gentleman works in an efficient manner, and leaves nothing to chance. A good three-tier staging give plenty of room for the birds. A fine stall of cages and all accessories and appliances and foods was fixed up at one end of the show by the secretary, Mr. Smith. The birds were all staged in good time, and the three judges got through their work well, so that catalogues with awards were on sale in good time in the afternoon. Mr. J. C. Barnes judged the Norwich and Yorkshires, Mr. M. Norwood (of Norwood Bros.) the Crests, and Mr. C. Houlton the Hybrids, British, and Foreigners.

WOOLWICH.

The few classes provided at the 36th annual show of the Woolwich F.S. were not as well supported as could have been expected, exhibitors probably objecting to the curtailment of prizes according to entries. The exhibits were comfortably staged in the Windsor Assembly Rooms. Mr. Kirk makes an ideal secretary, and is to be complimented upon his successful management. Mr. A. E. Enfield judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

SALE.

C.S. held their second annual exhibition on Nov. 26th and 27th at the Technical School. A finer room for a carnival of this description would be almost impossible to locate. It is unsurpassable for light (electric by night), spacious, lofty, absolutely void of draughts, nicely warmed by patent heating apparatus, and correctly ventilated. To sum up in a nutshell, the "ideal." The chairman is Mr. J. Walker, who acts with good judgment and courtesy. The Show Committee consists of a band of most willing workers, viz.: Messrs. J. Leigh, J. Hurst, J. Gray, W. McCormack, E. Morgan, G. Whitney, F. Fields, C. Fields, T. Critchley, and J. D. Dunkley, with Treasurer W. Fields. Very valuable assistance was rendered as regards unpacking and re packing of exhibits, stage fixing, and general show management by Messrs. F. Fields, C. R. Fields, W. McCormack, T. Fielding (who gave special help to the secretary), and J. Grey. Great credit is due to one and all for the manner in which they got through their task. Mr. Jas. Irlam, the hon. sec., assisted by Mr. H. Whitney as his "understudy," proved themselves experts in directing operations so as to ensure success, nothing being too much for them to do, whilst they were always smiling and courteous—a bruce of the "right straln." One must not omit a word for Mrs. J. Irlam, who acted as assistant for her "worst-half" in no mean manner. She worked hard (so "Jim" said). The staging of the specimens had been well thought out; every bird could be seen at a glance, and those responsible are to be complimented. The stewards were Messrs. G. Alcock, T. Critchley, and A. Holt, a trio of excellent fanciers, who got through the tremendous amount of work that an entry of upwards of 500 birds entails. Mr. Wm. Whalley attended to the feeding and watering of the exhibits, also rendered capital assistance to the secretary. All long-distanced birds were despatched on the Saturday at 7.10 p.m., so as to arrive at their destinations the same evening. Everything went off smoothly as "marriage bells." Special for best-conditioned bird in show went to Mr. J. W. Walsh, his Cornish Chough being in perfect bloom. Carter's special fell to Mr. F. F. Field; best Norwich to Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor; best Yorkie, Mr. W. Broughton; best open Novice Nor., Mr. F. Hargreaves; Hyde's, Messrs. Cleminson and Taylor; Sandiford's medal, Mr. J. Irlam. For the members' cup and gold medal, Mr. W. Fieldes and Mr. F. Field tied with same number of points and same amount of prize money. To bring about an amicable arrangement, Mr. W. Fieldes decided to accept the medal, presented by T. Shield, Esq., president, and the cup went to Mr. F. Field, this latter trophy being given by W. P. Pearson, Esq., one of the vice-presidents. Members who won honours were Messrs. G. Hickson, E. Jones, R. Griffiths, E. Morgan, C. R. Feild, W. McCormack, and J. Spencer. The judges were Messrs. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) and A. Wellings (Prescot), and their awards appeared to give general satisfaction.

BEDALE.

The Bedale F.S. held their annual open show on November 25th, in the Drill Hall, a most suitable place, it being well lighted and free from draughts. Mr. W. J. Merrin makes an ideal secretary. He had all his work well in hand, and was assisted by a lot of hard-working fanciers. The show was a real success, and some very fine birds were on view. Mr. Merrin had a team of really good birds down, a credit for any man to possess. He took the majority of the prizes, including a splendid cup presented by Mr. Kay-Pearson for the member gaining most points throughout show, this becoming his own property. Mr. J. W. Barrett (Harrogate) judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

SOUTHALL AND DIS. F.S.

Southall and Dis. F.S. annual open show held in the Mission Hall, Harlington Road, on Nov. 25th. Mr. A. Smith, hon. secretary, fulfilled the duties of his office with courtesy and complete success, and received the assistance of Mr. Percy Evans (chairman), together with an energetic committee consisting of Messrs. J. Timberlake, G. Brant, H. W. Allwork, J. R. Higgins, A. E. Argyle, A. Allwork, T. Hocken, and F. J. Brooks. The hall is a capital one, and the arrangements were well carried out. The entry was by no means a large one, the glut of shows on that date militating against the entry at Southall. Quality was excellent, if numbers were somewhat meagre. Special for best members' exhibit was won by Mr. A. E. Argyle, with a topping Linnet, very stout, close as boxwood in feather, and rattling size, with nice markings. Norwich were few, but nice; and the same remark applies to the Yorkshires. Goldfinches were good. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and his awards were up and catalogues out promptly.

YORKS., YELL. (5): 1, 3, Hawes Bros., plenty of length, good quality, nice whip, stands well up, and full of fire; 2, hc, Jeffery, former tkd. bird, rare mover, just a trifle open at chest, else a nice one; vhc, Pankhurst. BUFF (3): 1, Hawes Bros., spanking bird, lovely feather, just a trifle heavy at shoulders, perhaps, grand back, whip and wing carriage; 2, Potter, very pretty, good second; 3, Pankhurst, very shapely, fails a wee trifle in quality. HENS (5): 1, 2, Hawes Bros., yell. and buff respectively, both of fine character, feather and pose, leader very nice colour, level back, nice taper and wing carriage; 3, spl, vhc, Jeffery, 3rd very smart Yorkie, needs a little more finish in toilet, etc., good one; hc, Potter. NOR., CK. (4): 1, 2, Kilby, former bonny tkd. yell., lovely feather and col., in very high condition, 2 smart cl., very chubby, rich quality. HEN (3): 1, 2, Kilby, both buffs, former a perfect Nor. model, has splendid feather, uniform shape and grand wing carriage, 2nd very sweet bird, well put down; 3, Tebbutt, good bodied variegs., nice head and carriage. SIDMOUTH.

Sidmouth 14th annual show held November 25th at the Drill Hall. The cage birds were nicely staged in a well-lighted room, and made a first-class show, some of the exhibits coming from as far as Bradford. The cup winner was Mr. Dykes, of that city, with a splendid Yorkie. There was also a good show of Crests and C.-B. Although this show clashed with Bristol and Bideford there was a good entry. A few classes were cancelled, but no classes were amalgamated, and full prize money was paid. Mr. A. R. Tremlett makes a very capable and a capital hon. sec. and is to be congratulated on the results of the venture. Mr. J. Robson judged.

CREST (10): 1, spl, vhc, Rev. Joyce, variegs. dark Crest, massive body and a splendid crest; 2, Hobbs, similar bird to 1st, must have pressed winner; 3, Davey, another good dark crest, even mkd.; res, Adams; vhc, Barton. C.-B. (9): 1, Hobbs, massive Green, good head, well lashed; 2, Bale, large variegs., fails only in head to winner; 3 name missed, good tkd. buff, all three birds close up, and must have given the judge some trouble; res, Adams; vhc, Davey; hc, Bale. DARLINGTON.

The Darlington C.B.S. held their fifth grand exhibition in the Corn xchange, Feethams, on November 27th. The entries did not reach last year's total, but the society closed with a grand entry of 520. The open section increased in number, but the members' section was not so well filled, on account of the disastrous breeding season in the North, also of the depression in trade generally. The Yorkshire in the six classes numbered 59, and were well represented. The Norwich (6 classes) had a good entry of 66. The Borders were a good lot, in the two classes; 27 birds made their appearance here. Mr. Brunskill, the secretary, is hard working, courteous and obliging. He was assisted by the hon. assistant secretary, Mr. Underwood, and the way in which they handled the business reflects every credit on them. The committee and stewards were busy in good time; they soon had the birds in good order. The judging did not commence until 10 o'clock on account of the dull morning, but the cards were placed on the birds as they were judged. The Lord Mayor opened the exhibition at 2 o'clock, with a good company present. Visitors rushed the door, and the place was packed in a very little time. It is to be hoped the society may have a balance to carry forward for another year. Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham), judged the Canaries, and Mr. Maddison (Newcastle) the remainder, and their awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

STAMFORD.

The Stamford and Dis. F.A. held their second annual exhibition in the Oddfellows' Hall on Nov. 25th. The hall far supersedes last year's, and is capable of holding quite 500 birds, being also very spacious, with plenty of good light. Entries were a record—a total of 250 birds were staged; but they not only excel in number but in quality too. The Yorks., Nor., and Mule or Hyb. classes were exceptional. The most sensational class was that for Goldfinches, with an entry of 17; some noted winners had to take a back seat here, the winner being a good all-round bird. That able and hard-working secretary, Mr. Ludlow, was at the helm, and with such practical fanciers as Messrs. Harrison, Grimes Bros., Clitherow, Halford, Locke, Scholes, Sendall, Swanson, Woods, and Spriggs, who one and all did their best to make their show a success everything passed off well. It was an encouragement to them to have 90 more entries than last year, and with a more liberal classification they will, we feel sure, double the number of entries another year. Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham) judged the Canaries, Mules, Hybrids, and Foreign birds, and Mr. S. H. Mays (Winsford) the remainder and their awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

GOOLE.

Goole F.S. held their fourth annual show on Nov. 25th. The Market Hall was the venue, in which the exhibits were staged. President, Councillor R. G. Bickerton; chairman, Mr. G. Houldridge; treasurer, Mr. W. Maw, a trio of capital and generous officials. The committee consist of a band of willing workers, viz., Messrs. F. Roberts, W. Hilton, T. Blearsdale, C. Harrison, C. Greensides, S. Weatherall, J. Peters, and T. Duckles, all of whom are to be complimented on the exertions they have put forth. Mr. A. Roberts, the hon. secretary, is a genuine trier, courteous and obliging, and controls capitally. This is a mixed show, and the cage birds (£5 limit) were staged at the top end of the room, as far away from the doors as possible. The C.B.U. rules were in evidence. Staging was of a neat description, and every bird could be seen at a glance. The stewards were Messrs. J. Wheldrake and Harrison. Members' specials were won as follows: Best Yorks. and best Nor., J. Wheldrake; Goldie Mule, R. Sutton; Linnet-Mule, Harrison Bros.; best Brit., R. Sutton. Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judged, and his awards appeared to give every satisfaction.

The Man Who Won

Was the man who had good birds and the knowledge of HOW TO SHOW THEM to the greatest advantage. If you want to win you must also have this knowledge, and the best and cheapest manner for all Norwich Canary Fanciers to obtain the latest and most up-to-date information on BREEDING, MANAGING AND PREPARING their birds for the show bench is to purchase at once a copy of "Cage Birds" latest handbook, entitled:

NORWICH CANARIES

How to Breed, Manage and Exhibit.

By C. A. HOUSE.

Price - - 1s. 1d. post free.

This Handbook, complete and comprehensive in every detail, supplies in a concise manner all the information that it is necessary to know to become a successful breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Canaries.

FROM THE EGG TO THE SHOW BENCH.

It explains fully the best methods of pairing up the stock birds; how to feed and treat when the young are hatched; the art of colour feeding, and the best methods of washing and preparing for show. It contains a coloured plate and numerous illustrations of the different varieties, and is a veritable encyclopædia on the Norwich Canary, which no breeder, whether novice or old hand, can afford to be without.

How to Promote Your Hobby.

"CAGE BIRDS,"

Dec. 11th, 1909.

Three coupons of the same date entitle you to a free advertisement of 12 words in our "Sale and Exchange." All coupons of this date to be sent in by 1st post Friday, Dec. 17th (latest).

"SALE AND EXCHANGE" ADVERTISEMENTS FOR READERS WHO DISTRIBUTE TWO COPIES OF "CAGE BIRDS."

Novel Scheme to Benefit Our Readers and Ourselves.

Everyone at some time or another wants to sell some article for which he has no further use, or to exchange it for something he wants. Amongst the 50,000 other readers of "CAGE BIRDS" there must be some who are ready to buy from, or exchange with you.

To enable our readers to dispose of, purchase, or exchange various articles, we have decided to insert private advertisements free of charge for those who are willing to promote the circulation of "CAGE BIRDS." All you have to do is to get two extra copies of this week's issue, and give them to two friends who you know would be interested, tell them what your opinion of the paper is, and how much they too can benefit by the articles and advice contained in each issue. Send the coupon which appears on this page, from the two extra copies and your own—three coupons in all—together with the advertisement you want inserted. For three coupons sent bearing the same date, we will insert twelve words free of charge. Every additional word will be charged at ½d. per word. Not more than three coupons can be accepted for any single advertisement.

This plan benefits you by finding a market for anything you wish to dispose of, at a cost of only threepence, including postage, and benefits us by bringing "CAGE BIRDS" before new readers. We are helping you in return for your help towards the increase of our circulation.

If you have anything to Sell or Exchange fill in and post this Form, sending three coupons of the same date, for free insertion of twelve words, and stamps to cover additional words (½d. per word).

Please insert the following Advertisement in your next issue.

Coupon advertisers must have replies addressed direct to them and not to a box number at this office. Three coupons of the same date pay for twelve words. One halfpenny is charged for each additional word.

Not more than three coupons may be used for any single advertisement. Coupons cannot be accepted for Trade advertisements, the charge for these being 20 words for 1/-. The proprietor reserves the right to decline any advertisement that seems to him undesirable.

ALWAYS USE OUR DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 12 words, 4d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MY CLAP NETS

Are made from the finest and strongest thread obtainable, and to convince you that they are put together better than any net advertised, I will send them carriage paid, 4yds. 5/-, 5yds. 6/-, 6yds. 7/-, 7yds. 8/-, 8yds. 9/-, 9yds. 10/-, 10yds. 11/-, all 5ft. deep, two nets to each pair, with pegs, poles, and pull lines; loose netting, ½in. mesh, 7ft. deep 5d. yard, ¾in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d.; 10ft. deep, 4d. yard; bird brace swivels 2d., all post free.—Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

MY SELF-ACTING SPRING NET TRAPS

catch birds of every description without any attention, price 1/6; larger size, 2/-, carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are worth double the money of any trap advertised. Read two, and beware of cheaper imitations that are not worth the cost of carriage: "Sir,—I received the net trap; it is honestly worth a dozen of some of the nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon and caught more birds in two hours than I have caught in other traps in two months.—George Matthews, Bird Catcher, 2, Lucas-street, Stockport." "Sir,—Trap arrived. It is far superior to all others. I have to-day caught fifteen Linnets, six Redpolls, four Chaffinches, three Greenfinches.—J. Scragg, The Old Brewery, Armitage-road, Rugeley." Entirely self-acting and self-setting trap cages, warranted to catch birds and reset without attention, 1/6.—Henry Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

can catch birds equally as well as the expert catcher providing he has the proper appliances, but let me tell you that nets which are only 3 feet deep are practically useless, as birds have time to fly out before you can pull nets over. All my clap nets are guaranteed 5½ feet deep, and to fly 4 feet high, this allows 18 inches of "kill," which is most essential part of nets, as all experienced catchers will tell you. This fact alone is sufficient to prove that my nets are by far the best on the market, but as they are the only nets on the market which are properly "geared," or "armed" all round, it naturally follows that for practical use they stand supreme. Clap nets, made from real thread netting, ¾ inch mesh, 3 yards long, 4/-, 4 yards 5/-, 5 yards 6/-, 6 yards 7/-, 7 yards 8/-, 8 yards 9/-, 9 yards 10/-, 10 yards, 11/- per pair; all guaranteed full measurement, and to be 5½ feet deep and 4 feet fly. Clap nets consist of 2 nets to the pair, and are fitted complete, with hemp lines, ash pegs, beech poles, and everything ready for immediate use. Hundreds of other sizes in stock. Send stamp for full list. Self-acting spring net traps, 18 inches long, 9d. each; ditto 24 inches long, 18 inches wide, 1/- each. These net traps are by far the largest and most effective traps on the market. Will catch and hold any bird, from Wren to Rook; are entirely different to any others on the market, can be baited for Hard or Softbills at same time, and call-bird can be used inside them, if required. (See testimonials below.) Bat folding Sparrow nets, fitted on 15 feet bamboo poles, 5/6 pair; ditto, on 17 feet poles, 6/- pair; ditto, on 19 feet poles, 6/6 pair, complete. Single trap cages, 6d. each; double ditto, 1/- each; treble ditto, 1/3 each; patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, requiring no attention whatever, 1/6 each; round-topped call cages, 3d. each, 2/6 dozen; ditto, square-topped, 4d. each, 3/- dozen; all wire tops and wood bottoms. Real Japanese bird lime, ¼ lb. 6d., ½ lb. 10d., 1 lb. 1/6; sample, 3d., all post free. This lime is the original Japanese lime, guaranteed the strongest lime made, and will hold any Hawk or Rook that flies. It will leave birds' feathers clean, and will stand any quantity of frost and rain. Real Italian hemp pull-lines, specially spun, without snarl or back twist, 68 yards long, 1/4 each, post free; Russian hemp lines, 80 yards long, 1/- each, post free, but not recommended for hard wear. Loose netting, specially knitted from fine thread, for bird netting, ¾ inch mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; ditto, 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; ditto, 12 feet deep, 5d. yard. Lark netting, 1½ inch mesh, 10 feet deep, 4d. yard, carriage paid. Full printed lists of all catching appliances and hints on net making, send one stamp. See following letters, which prove my statements for me:—Gillyburn Cottage, Banff, November 13th. Sir,—Received trap cage and net trap safely, and am highly delighted with them both. Please send following. Yours, T. Raffan." "303, Grosvenor Road, Belfast, November 10th. Sir,—Please send clap nets as follows. I had some nets, etc., from you last year which pleased me, and all who saw them. Yours, S. Hill." "17, Grove Street, Norton Malton, November 9th. Sir,—Please send ½ lb. lime. I have tried all the other dealers, and I fail to find the right lime like I had from Mr. Markham two years ago. I had it set 14 days in frost and snow, and then I caught two Hawfinches with it. He told me to-day that he got that lime from you, so I am sending for some. Yours, M. Burgess." "Windmill Row, Carlton, November 4th. Sir,—I am very pleased with the netting. Please send another 8 yards. Yours, S. Armstrong." "Meal Bank, Kendal, October 26th. Sir,—I duly received net trap, and am delighted with results. It is a marvel, every time I or my boys have set it we have made a capture, and have already caught two birds which we had previously tried to catch by various means many times. Wishing you a large sale for your marvellous spring net traps. Yours, Thos. Crossley." "9, Harbour-rd., Larne Harbour, Ireland, October 29th. Sir,—Have tried clap nets this morning, and they work all right. Yours, J. Harte." "30, Cambridge Street, Doncaster, October 29th. Sir, I am delighted with spring net trap, it is a marvel, cheap at double the price. Thanks for straightforward manner you despatched it. Yours, F. Rimington." Please note, I do not talk of thousands of testimonials and never publish one as proof. I publish more testimonials than all others together. Everything is sent on approval at my risk, on receipt of cash, or CAGE BIRDS deposit system, and I ask all inteuding purebasers to try my appliances against those from elsewhere at higher prices, and keep those that suit the best. All my men are bird catchers as well as net makers, and so know exactly what is required for successful catching. All the leading professional catchers throughout the world are using nets, etc., supplied by me, so if I can suit them, I know I can suit you. THE HUMAN LINNET.

Gentlemen, I am not a self-made Linnet King, but get my title from CAGE BIRDS. I have sat judge at hundreds of contests, and won hundreds of prizes. Look up back numbers of CAGE BIRDS. I take interest in my birds; hence my title. Big, fine cock Linnets, singing beautifully, 1/- each; a few, will sing anywhere, 1/6; cock Linnets, been used to catching, with back cage, and my secret of making them mad in song, 2/- lot. Look, the pride of England. Beautiful cock Linnets, taught under my well-known champion, quality song, only 2/6 each; with splendid fancy cage, and my secret, only 3/6 lot. It is really giving them away, could not be equalled if you gave 7/0 elsewhere; they are fit for the finest drawing-room in England. Cock Linnets, well pencilled, Norwich type, finger-tame, 1/- each; specials, 1/6. My specials are winning all before them. Yorkshire specimen Peartree cock Goldfinches, with deep, square-cut blaze, broad heads, 2/6 and 3/- each; a real gem, 3/6; not small rubbish, with dull colour. Cock Bullfinches, ready for show, real pictures for shape and colour, 2/6 and 3/- each; massive hens, 1/- and 1/6. Greenfinches, like paint, finger-tame, 1/-. Chaffinches, in splendid feather, cannot be beat, 1/- and 1/6 each. Cock Larks, singing opened mouth, 1/- and 1/6. My secret of how to make them mad in song, with sample of my mixture, 1/-. I am giving this mixture to show what can be done with birds. "98, Hook-rd., Epsom.—Sir,—Received Linnet safe; am well pleased with it.—Mr. Bullin to F. Allen." "139, Llangyfelach-st., Swansea.—Sir,—Goldfinch arrived safe; quite pleased with it; send one of your Linnets, P.O. enclosed.—J. Davies to F. Allen." I could fill a page with testimonials. All my birds are on seven full days' approval; cash or deposit. Please give me a trial order, and you will never regret it, no matter how hard you are to please.—Fred. Allen, Bird specialist, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull.

ALMOST EVERYONE

Knows that the first consignment of Siberian Goldfinches always contains the finest specimens. As I have that first consignment, it naturally follows that I have the best. I have 500 grand cocks in perfect health and feather and full song, at 4/6 each, or 28/- stick of seven. A few grand exhibition specimens with full complement of show points, real deck sweepers, 7/6 and 10/- each. Please note I have sold more winning Siberian Goldies than any man alive. I know exactly what is required to suit present-day judges, and when I call a bird an exhibition specimen buyers may rest assured that it really is fit to win. I also have 200 Snow Buntings in perfect condition, cocks 1/- each, three 2/6, six 4/6; hens, 6d. each, three 1/3, 4/- dozen. Few exhibition cocks in superb condition, fit to win anywhere, 2/6 each. All on approval, cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system as usual. See large advertisements for other birds.

LARGEST VARIED COLLECTION OF CANARIES IN THE WORLD.

I AM FULLY PREPARED AT ANY TIME TO PROVE THIS BY INSPECTION. NOT BEING A SHOPKEEPER, I MUST ASK THE FAVOUR OF AN "APPOINTMENT."

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 5/-.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

NORWICH CRESTED AND CRESTED-BRED IN GREAT NUMBER AND RARE QUALITY AND VALUE.

£10 FOR YOU
or anyone else that can prove that the testimonials given below are not thoroughly genuine, and entirely unsolicited. These letters prove without shadow of doubt which is really the best singing Roller on the market. I have an enormous stock of pure Leipzig Rollers, direct from Hans Weber, of Leipzig, all in full song, day and gaslight, with long, hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccalo trills, bell, harp, flute and gong notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from any harsh or chopping notes whatever, price 6/- and 7/- each. Special Schoolmasters, which are very soft, melodious singers, and excel in the deep bass, and hollow bell rolls, 10/-, and 12/6 each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/- each, 3/6 couple; also a few genuine Seifert contest masters, fit to win contests immediately, 15/-, 17/6, and 21/- each; pure Seifert hens, 2/6 each, two 4/6; these contest birds are guaranteed of the original Seifert blood (not merely Seifert in name only), and among them are birds which have actually won contests in Germany. I also have an enormous collection of loud, free singing Hartz cocks, all in full, free vigorous song, price 4/6 each, seven for 28/-; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are real ceiling-lifters, and just the thing where plenty of noisy song is required. Roller box cages, 1/-, 1/2, 1/4, 1/9, and 2/- each; special Roller cabinet cages, with folding doors, 2/6 each. Please notice name and address, with date given with each letter below:—"10, Grayson Street, Brndford, Manchester, November 15th. Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller on Friday, and am proud of him, he is a splendid songster, with nice, soft rolls, etc. I have paid 20/- for one not half as good as him. Yours, W. Tovy." "11, Wade Avenue, Larklands, Ilkeston, November 9th. Sir,—Please send Leipzig Roller. The one I had from you two years ago is still singing as well as ever. He is one of the best I ever heard or had, and I have had a few from different firms. The Hartz cock I had few weeks ago is turning out a champion. Yours, E. Aldred." On November 12th Mr. Aldred again writes: "Sir, Leipzig Roller to hand. Thanks kindly for prompt attention, and also for selection. He is a grand bird, and sings most beautifully. I shall do my best to recommend you." "52, Skipton Road, Earby, via Colne, November 12th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller is a splendid bird, it commenced singing directly I unpacked it. I have several other birds here which cost much more money, but I wouldn't exchange him for the lot of them. Yours, P. Watson." "106, West Street, Glasgow, November 15th. Sir, Roller arrived in very pink of condition, and gives entire satisfaction in every way. Thanks for prompt attention. Yours, W. Collins." "35, Orford Street, Buttermarket Street, Warrington, November 13th. Sir,—Many thanks for bird. It is a good one. It is singing all day, and as soon as gas is lighted it starts agaiu, and is doing splendid. I also thank you for prompt dispatch and cheapness of bird. It is a beauty at price. Yours, T. Miller." "Globe Hotel, Blaina, Mon., November 12th. Sir,—Roller arrived safe, and started singing as soon as unpacked. Yours, J. Jones." "2, London Road, Tooting Junction, November 11th. Sir,—Roller to hand. It has been singing all day. I am thoroughly satisfied and must compliment you on the clean way you send birds out. Some send them with feet all clogged with excrement. I must admit I have paid more for inferior birds. Yours, A. Sammons." "Broomhill, Honiton, Devon, November 11th. Sir,—I am most pleased with Leipzig Roller cock. He is a real marvel, singing morning till night; I shall be most pleased to recommend anyone wanting a good Roller to you. I must thank you for prompt dispatch. Yours W. Criddeford." "The Station, Fordingbridge, Hants, November 5th. Sir,—Leipzig Roller received safe, and singing beautifully. Many thanks for manner you treated me. Please send following. Yours, P. Bartlett." "44, Loughboro' Park, Brixton, November 8th. Sir,—Have decided to keep bird you kindly sent for trial. I am very pleased with it, and shall certainly order again shortly. Yours, W. Greenwood." "Cwmgarw Road, Brynamman, November 8th. Sir,—Rollers to hand. Thanks for your selection and proper packing. They give me very great satisfaction. I shall send for more shortly. Yours, Johnny Evans." "242, Price Street, Birkenhead, November 6th. Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller in best of condition. It is a marvellous singer; you cannot get such value round here for 9/-, let alone 6/-. Thanking you very much. Yours, C. Ellis." "53, Scolefield Lane, Wigan, November 4th. Sir,—Many thanks for sending such nice bird. The cock sings nicely. I should think you are the man everyone is looking for who wants a bird good and cheap. It is not the first time I have proved your offers to be genuine. Thanking you for favours past and present. Yours J. Simms." "Bermuda Cottage, Warren Road, Guildford, November 3rd. Sir,—Seven Hartz cocks received safely, and am very pleased with them, they sing lovely. Many thanks for sending such good songsters. Yours, T. Moore." I could fill this page with similar letters to above, and all unsolicited. I only ask all intending purchasers to have a Leipzig Roller from me, and a Roller from elsewhere, at any higher price, test them side by side for a week, and keep one which suits the best. I am the sole importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, and no other dealer can sell you one feather of this strain unless he has purchased it from me. All are stamped on wing "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and are safely and warmly packed, with seed and water to last 48 hours, free of extra charge, and sent on full week's trial, entirely at my own risk during whole time, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, and money freely and fully refunded if entire satisfaction not given. Remember this, when dealing with me you are dealing with a man that has been a continuous advertiser for past 18 years, with a reputation second to none for straightforward and honest transactions. No connection whatever with any other advertiser. See British Bird and Appliance Columns for further interesting items.

TURN OVER.
If you will carefully turn over the question of where to get the best possible value at the lowest possible prices, you will give this small announcement your most careful attention. Singing Canaries are my speciality. I have bred, trained and imported direct many thousands, and know exactly what you require. It is quite possible to get the same quality birds at much higher prices, but it is utterly impossible to get such good quality at lower prices. My stock of St. Andreasburg, Trute, and Seifert Rollers are second to none. The quality of my birds defy competition. Genuine trained birds free from harsh or choppy notes. Cocks in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; pure Roller hens, 2/6, 3/- each. If you want a high-class loud songster my Hartz cocks will delight you. The best loud free, day and gaslight sougsters in the world; cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3 each; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6. Send stamp for my illustrated price list of Rollers, Yorkshires, Norwich, Border fancies, etc. Neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra, and make a special note of the fact that I send all my Canaries carriage paid on seven clear days' approval at my risk, and guarantee every customer satisfaction.—Miss E. L. Storey, Practical Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

3/10 Songster on approval.

How is it done? Well, there are lots of reasons; but, so long as the purchaser is satisfied, what does it matter? However, I ought to say, perhaps, they are paid for, and in my possession. Cages 3d. extra.

Now for some other Songsters and cages; well, send for Free Catalogue for them.

Thousands now on hand, specially selected, not haphazard birds; quality sent to each, according to price sent, and in all cases, the best I can do, and what I cannot do in this line, no other man (or fictitious trader) can in the world. Norwich or Yorkshires. Note prices—6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Cages 3d. extra in all cases, and all sent on one week's approval to any part of Great Britain. I pay all carriage back, and either refund your money in full, or exchange the bird, whichever you prefer. This seems to me straight sailing enough for any reasonable person to be satisfied with.

GEORGE TAYLOR,

The Yorkshire Bird Specialist, BRADFORD.

Hundreds of testimonials from old clients are being received daily. Here is one example to prove to intending buyers that I give satisfaction and value for money:—

1st AT CARDIFF.

"Casker Green, near Stroud, December 3rd, 1909.—The pair of Norwich you sent me last season bred me a good buff cock that took 1st at Cardiff this week, in a class of 18. H. Bennett to G. Taylor."

Those fanciers desirous of obtaining good class Yorkshires, should remember my stock is large, varied and choice. I have recently added four large stocks, being the entire birdroom contents of four of our best-known local breeders. My aviaries contain no artificial heat, and are lighted throughout by electricity. Customers, therefore, can rest assured that only healthy, hardy, and robust specimens are sent out. I have some clinking specimens, just the sort to breed champions, perfect type, and feathered like wax, including some grand Yorkshire cocks, that can win at local or members' shows, at 12/6, 15/-, 20/- and 25/-, colour-fed to perfection; Buff Yorkshire cocks, at 4/9, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- upwards; yellow Yorkshire cocks, at 5/6, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6 upwards; buff and yellow hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, in clears, cinnamon ticked, pure cinnamons, and greens, and a few evenly marked. Properly matched pairs, matched to breed your own winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- and 21/- upwards. Grand value in dealers' lots of five, ten, or twenty pairs.

Plainhead Norwich, colour-fed or natural colour, at the same prices as Yorkshires, including many that have won, and that can win again, in good company.

CRESTED and CREST-BRED NORWICH.—Cocks and hens, at 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- and 25/-; matched pairs, cock and hen, 12/6, 15/-, 21/-, 25/-.

Lancashires, Copples, and Plainheads, grand birds at right prices; see current price list. Specially selected Yorkshire and Norwich songsters, at 6/-, 7/6 and 10/- each.

In addition to the above, Scotch Fancies, Lizards, Border Fancies, Cinnamons, Dutch Frills, cage-moulted Linnets and Goldfinches, and Sib-bred hens. Further large arrivals of Hartz Mountain Rollers, Siberian Goldfinches, etc. Remember, full week's approval with every bird sent out. Travelling cages, 3d. extra.

My 52 page Descriptive Catalogue, which fully describes and illustrates cages, aviaries, etc., printed in colours, and has been described by fanciers and the Press to be the most complete and compact birdy catalogue published gratis and post free, or current price list of birds only, post free.—

GIVING up the fancy.—The whole of my high-class Yorkshires for disposal, including some good show and stock birds; also all cages and accessories; seen any evening after 7.30.—Dell, "St. Helens," Estella Avenue, New Malden.

HAVING been most successful, I have for disposal a few champion Yorkshires, cocks 6/6 to 10/6, hens 4/6 to 6/6, matched pair properly mated to produce winners 10/- to 15/-; winnings well known; approval willingly.—Hatton, Windmill, Belper.

DYKES' Yorkshires

Winners wherever shown! Read this testimonial from—Hope Street, Mile Town, Sheerness, December 6th, 1909,—Received bird safe, in good condition. I am very pleased with it, and it got 2nd prize at our show. Shall send you more orders shortly. A. Hayes to L. Dykes. This was one of my 8/6 Yorkshire cocks. Another from—Edith Street, Tynemouth, December 4th, 1909,—I am writing to let you know how I have gone on at the shows. The yellow cock I had from you won 1st and special, and the buff cock won 1st and special, and the Cinnamon-marked hen 2nd, at South Shields, and she also got 3rd at Newcastle. M. Wigglesworth to L. Dykes. Another from 9 and 10, Great Tower Street, London, December 1st, 1909,—Received the three birds in good condition, and they are, as usual, when got from you, in splendid health, and well worth the money, and is another proof to me of your fair and honourable dealing. Wishing you every success, and again thanking you. Wm. G. Bruce to L. Dykes. I have hundreds similar to above which I cannot find space to publish. Open for inspection at any time, as, also, are my up-to-date bird rooms, and the best and largest collection of high-class Yorkshires ever seen. Long, stylish yellow cocks at 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/- each; buff cocks at 5/-, 6/-, 7/-, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each, all on full song, and seven inches long, some over. Hens, feathered like wax, and well on leg, yellows at 4/-, 5/-, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6; buffs at 3/6, 4/6, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, each. Pairs, carefully matched, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- per pair; clears, ticked, green and cinnamon marked, and clear, pink-eyed; also some clinking Norwich, at same prices as Yorkshires. Travelling cages, 3d. extra. Exhibition cocks and hens, fit for keenest competition or local shows, including some of my recent winners, at reasonable prices; easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers, and all sent on seven days' approval, at my risk. Satisfaction guaranteed by placing your orders with the old reliable breeder, exhibitor and judge (with a life's practical experience), who breeds his own winners, and has won over 40 1sts, and numerous cups and specials for best birds, etc., during the last few weeks at leading shows, in keenest competition. See reports weekly for my winnings. State wants.

Only Yorkshire varieties kept; cold-room bred, reared, and kept; not exhibiting; few suitable for show, 20/- each upwards; approval three clear days after receipt.—Jonas Knight, Copp-st., Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire.

Are here, and the most important thing for purchasers to note is, that as I never show, they are for sale, and not at "fancy" prices, but at prices within the reach of nearly all. The stock birds are equal in quality to those usually sold at double the price, and I say this quite sincerely.

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words. I have some of the best extant Yorks Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-; Pairs, matched for breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Cages 3d. extra.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH

C. MABEY.

C. Mabey has some of the finest Yorkshires in the Fancy, from 15/- a pair; stamp.—5, Anerley-st., Battersea.

CLEARING OUT OF THE FANCY.

A. Spencer, 17, Robert's-st., Nelson, formerly of Spencer and Son, the noted challenge cup fighters. Genuine prize-bred stock. No better blood in the Fancy. Giving away prices to clear. Write early for particulars.

CAREFULLY READ.

My system is the best way of giving entire satisfaction to all purchasers; on receipt of 2/6 with order, I will send one cock or two hens, balance when satisfied. Matched pairs for breeding, not selected at random, but carefully mated; deposit 4/-, balance after; easy payments allowed of 1/- per week. Following varieties and prices: Yorkshires, true, typical birds, clears, variegated, green and cinnamon-marked, cocks, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6; hens, buff, 2/6, 3/-; yellows, 3/-, 3/6; pairs, 7/6, 9/-, 10/6; Norwich Plainheads, Crests, Border Fancies, etc., same prices and terms.—Edgar Broadbent, The Millhouse, 57, Lime-st., Sheffield, Yorks.

ARTHUR HARRIS,

West Haddon, Rugby, is selling his entire stock of Yorkshires, including all his noted winners at Southall, Hanley, Bristol, Wolverhampton, Cambridge, etc.; cocks, 5/-, 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; hens, 5/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; matched pairs, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; all on approval; cash or deposit with "Cage Birds."

OGDEN BROS.

Have for disposal some real clinkers from 15/- to 60/- per pair; odd birds proportionate. These are all bred from or related to our noted winners at Crystal Palace, and all Yorkshire Union shows. All birds sent on approval, cash or deposit with Editor.—Dudley Hill, Bradford.

CHAMPION WINNING YORKSHIRES.

As I am not competing for the Yorkshire Challenge Cup this season, I have for sale some real clinkers, none reserved except those required solely for stock. My strain needs no puff, and this is undoubtedly the chance of a lifetime to secure the cream of the Fancy. Properly matched pairs from 15/- per pair upwards; winners in keenest competition at prices according to quality; stamp for particulars.—W. H. Shackleton, Melrose House, Lytton-rd., Girlington, Bradford.

SUTCLIFFE & SON.

Our winnings in Cinnamon-marks and Green-marked Yorkshires for the past ten years exceed those of any other fancier. We have a few show birds and stock birds for sale, also a few clears, price from 15/- to 60/- a pair; approval; if not satisfied, your full money returned; stamp for reply.—1, Back Kitson-st., Windhill, Shipley, Yorks.

OVER 80 PRIZES

and Cards won by me during the last five weeks. See this week's report at West Auckland, Altrincham and Great Horton, all on Saturday last. I do not bother with local and members' shows, some so-called fanciers will be local all their life. I send to most of the first-class shows. Will be compelled to show less in the future, owing to this advertisement doing so well for me. I am sending birds to every quarter of England. I still have a few winners left, the best have not yet gone. Be in time. Also the birds that have bred the winners for sale. Write, state plainly what you require, and you can be fit up if it is possible.

W. RICHMOND, 16, Mayfield Grove, Harrogate.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

Club Reports.

LEIGH AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A very successful table show of Redpolls was held at headquarters, the Railway Hotel, on Dec. 1st, Mr. Ordish being judge. The awards were as follows: 1. Hart; 2, Slater; 3, Charlson.—P. Hart, secretary.

GREAT HORTON (Good Intent) O.S.

The society held a team competition on Nov. 27th, at headquarters, Horton Church Schools. The exhibits were a very nice lot and a credit to their owners. Mr. Alf. Hartley (Great Horton) judged to everybody's satisfaction. Result: D. Bartle, first, leading by one point, with S. Briggs and A. Holden tieing for second place, followed closely by Messrs. G. Riley, H. Schofield, and H. Worshop, who were only two points behind winner.—H. SCHOFIELD, Hon. Sec.

BONNYRIGG AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

First annual financial meeting held in the Foresters' Arms, on November 27th, Mr. Edward Weighly in the chair. The Secretary read the balance-sheet, which the members considered grand for a start. After paying 6s. per class, we have left a balance of £4 2s. to be carried over for next season. The secretary was re-elected. We finished our evening with songs by Mr. Thomas (Bickerstaff and Mr. Alexander Jardine, which they rendered in their best style.—GEO. HARPER.

LEEDS O.B.S.

Monthly meeting held December 4th, Mr Farrar in the chair. The classification for our members' show on Boxing Day, at St. George's Schools, was arranged on somewhat similar lines to that of our November 13th show, with these exceptions: All clear classes and Border Fancy class withdrawn, and two hen classes for each Novice Section (Yorks and Nor.), and three pair classes (York, Nor, A.O.V.) added. Mr. F. King will judge all classes. Birds to be staged by 9.30 a.m., show opens at 1.30, and closes at 7. The following names are those nominated for various positions for our society for 1910 for election at our annual meeting on January 8th, not January 1st as stated in syllabus. For chairman, Mr. P. Whiteley; hon. treasurer, Mr. J. Moir; hon. sec., J. Chambers; assistant secretary, Mr. J. W. Medley. This brought a very enthusiastic and well attended meeting to a close.—J. CHAMBERS, hon. secretary.

BLAYDON-ON TYNE & DIS. C.B.S.

At the monthly meeting there was a large turnout of members. The report of the last show was given, and considered very satisfactory. We also decided to have our next annual show on Nov. 4th and 5th. There were four new members proposed.—GEO. HAYNE, secretary.

CHESTER C.B.F.A.

Special meeting held on November 30th, at the Nag's Head Cocoa House, Mr. Crane presiding. There was a good attendance. The secretary reported a capital entry for the annual show. An impromptu discussion on the Norwich Canary was entered into with much interest. It proved that we have some pastmasters in the art of Norwich breeding. J. SWINDLEY, hon. secretary.

LANCASTER PRIMROSE C.B.A.

The association spent a very enjoyable evening on December 1st, when they invited the workers of the show to a rabbit pie supper. The rest of the evening was spent in singing and card playing. The balance-sheet was read and approved; it shows a satisfactory balance in hand. It was agreed that we hold a show much earlier in the season next year, as so many shows clash later. We hope fanciers will help us then to make the show even a greater success than our last.—J. H. NAYLOR, hon. secretary.

ENGLISH AND WELSH B.F.C.C.

Result of the Border Fancy International Contest at Altrincham, on December 3rd and 4th. Class 19, Eng. 13, Scot. nil. Class 20, Eng. 13, Scot. 5. Class 21, Eng. 11, Scot. 10. Class 29, Eng. 13, Scot. 7. Class 30, Eng. 11, Scot. 1. Class 31, Eng. 7, Scot. 12. Class 32, Eng. 9, Scot. 13. Class 33, Eng. 3, Scot. 11. Class 34, Eng. 13, Scot. 6. English total, 145; and Scottish total, 120. England therefore wins for the first time.—S. HADWIN.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A.

Annual general meeting held in Gothenburgh on November 30th, a large number of fanciers being present, Mr. J. Fotheringham, vice-president, taking the chair. The financial statement for the year showed a balance of £12 12s. 7d., and after the secretary and treasurer had been rewarded for their services it was agreed to bank £9, and keep £1 in treasurer's hands. The following officials were elected: Mr. J. Stenhouse, president; Mr. J. Fotheringham, vice-president; Mr. D. McConville, treasurer; Mr. J. Ford, secretary, with a strong committee of working fanciers. It was also agreed to hold open show on same date as this year, viz., October 22nd, 1910. This closed a very interesting meeting.—JOHN FORD, Secretary, Eldon Place, Kelty, N.B.

MARYHILL AND DISTRICT O.C.

Annual general meeting held in the side room of the Conservative Hall. The president (Mr. T. Ferguson) presided over a large attendance. The Secretary gave particulars of the show, and the treasurer submitted his balance-sheet, which showed the club was in a very satisfactory condition. The following office bearers were duly elected for next year: President, Mr. T. Ferguson; vice-president, Mr. T. Stirling; secretary, Mr. G. Blackstock; treasurer, Mr. A. Hannah; auditors, Messrs. J. N. Anderson and J. Wilson; trustees, Messrs. Ferguson, G. G. Aitkenhead, and A. Jardine; committee, Messrs. A. Martin, A. Nairn, A. Jardine, G. G. Aitkenhead, R. Taylor, and R. Baird. Prize money was paid to the successful exhibitors. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the meeting to a close. Next meeting in Conservative Hall last Monday of January, 1910.

SCOTCH F.C. (Nat. Derby) O.A.

Annual meeting held at Grand National Hall, Glasgow, on November 30th, with Mr. Wright (president) in the chair. The balance-sheet was submitted and adopted. It was agreed to have next show on September 17th, 1910. The following office-bearers were appointed for 1910: Hon. President, Mr. W. Hart (Paisley); president, Mr. R. Wright (Greenock); vice-president, Councillor J. Hogg (Oakley); secretary and treasurer, Mr. Thomas Smith, 56, Minard Road, Crossmyloof, Glasgow; auditors, Messrs. Bullions and Porteous; committee, Messrs. G. G. Aitkhead, J. W. Anderson, E. B. Bullions, C. Bell, J. Begg, W. B. Cobb, H. R. Caldwell, R. Carmylie, H. Crawford, J. Dalgleish, J. Donnelly, R. H. D. Fernie, T. Ferguson, J. Fleming, G. Fulton, A. Galston, W. Gibb, W. Gray, J. Hannay, J. Hart, W. D. Hogg, D. Holden, W. Hutchison, William Hunter, A. Jardine, R. Johnstone, J. Kennedy, sen., J. Lawery, W. Lees, W. McClure, R. McQuillan, P. McDougall, J. McLennan, J. D. Maxwell, J. Y. Miller, W. Mitchell, J. Morrison, A. McDonald, J. Muir, R. Neil, W. Niven, Neil O. Donnell, J. Park, A. Porteous, J. Price, J. Raine, J. F. Renwick, J. A. Stewart, R. Thoms, W. Thornton, F. Strathearn, and J. Ward. A sharp discussion arose on a proposal to refuse entries from every member who fails to fill up the schedule correctly in every detail, particularly in reference to price of exhibits, or, alternately, to withdraw the clause giving the privilege of stating price to have a sale on show day. Ultimately the secretary undertook to return, where time admits, all incomplete schedules for completion by the member. A vote of thanks to chairman terminated the meeting.—T. SMITH, secretary.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting, held at Mr. Johnston's Rooms, 6, The Broadway, on December 6th, when Mr. W. H. Stoakley, the chairman, presided over a large muster of members. Before the ordinary business, the chairman said he thought they should tender their hearty congratulations to the members of the society who had done so splendidly at the Horticultural Hall show the previous week. Mr. Randall had won for the third year in succession—indeed, outright—the champion silver cup, and many other prizes in the classes for Rollers; Mr. Smith, their secretary, had won cup for best unflig. Yorks, in the champion classes, Mr. Dixon silver cup in the Norwich amat. section, and Messrs. Reade and Whittome had taken diplomas, besides which many other members—both ladies and gentlemen—had taken first and other prizes. Mr. H. Smith, the hon. secretary, presented a most satisfactory report of the recent show. Its success was achieved, he pointed out, in spite of several adverse conditions, and he thought they might well congratulate themselves. In point of numbers it was the largest by a long way of any cage bird show held in Wimbledon, while as regards quality, he referred his hearers to the Fancy Press. He was pleased to be able to report that he had not received a single complaint, but he had had a number of letters thanking those who had looked after and packed up the birds. The show closed at 8.45 and by 10.30 all the birds had been sent to the stations, and the hall was practically cleared. The total number of exhibitors was 135, as compared with 120 last year, while the number of entries was 642, against 525, and the entries in members' classes 184, against 165. The interim balance sheet showed the total expenses to have been £67 6s. 1d., and the receipts £67 14s. 9d., which left a balance of 8s. 8d. in hand. The Chairman said that, taking everything into consideration, he thought the statement extremely satisfactory. They had had the satisfaction of having a very fine show splendidly managed by their assiduous and indefatigable secretary. He thought under these circumstances, although they would have liked a larger balance—and it might be larger when the final balance-sheet was made out—they could be well satisfied that they had come out of it so well. (Applause.) A somewhat lengthy discussion took place as to whether the Society was to continue its membership of the London Federation of C.B.S., and in the end it was decided by a small majority—many not voting—to continue for the present. Judging competition, Messrs. E. J. Whittome and A. H. Dyke acting as final judges respectively. Points gained: G. W. Baker, 21; Miss N. Cooper and Mrs. Owen, 17 each; L. G. W. Owen, 16; F. W. Owen, 14; A. W. Reade, 11; A. J. Shipton, 10; E. W. Dell, 9; A. Hare, A. L. Priest, and G. Griffiths, 8 each; J. Cross, R. Birch, W. Wallis, and Mrs. A. M. Collins, 6 each; F. P. Found, 4; Mrs. L. M. Thynne, 3; E. B. Skinner and S. Wright, 1 each; Mrs. Griffiths, F. Whiting, H. Dixon, C. Taylor, and E. J. Whittome, 0. It was decided to hold annual show next year in November on the dates corresponding to those of this year's show, and to hold a judging competition for Yorks at the January meeting.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

Washing exhibition was given by Mr. J. Wilkinson on December 1st, at the Railway Hotel. A good number turned up. Mr. Wilkinson put the birds through in a masterly manner, explaining all the good points in washing. No doubt many fanciers learned something they never knew before. Many questions were asked and answered. A vote of thanks to him brought a very instructive evening to a close.—A. BOTTOMLEY, secretary.

FALKIRK AND DIS. C.B.S.

Usual monthly meeting held in Oddfellows' Hall, President Robert Dickson presiding. Balance-sheet was adopted, and we considered the hall in which to hold our next annual show and club meetings. We had a table show of Norwich Plainheads. 1, 4, Simpson; 2, 3, Hamilton and Wallace. Mr. Hugh Moreland, hon. president, judged, and gave the members the opportunity of asking questions, which proved educational to all.—R. HAMILTON, secretary.

YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

The Council of the Yorks. Union held a meeting at Great Horton Show on December 4th, when the following business was transacted by the delegates present. Bradford East O.S. made application to the Council for a day's extension in closing entries for their annual show, as Boxing Day falling on the Monday the postal arrangements will be interfered with; it was unanimously passed that the society be allowed to close their entries on Wednesday, December 29th. The Brighouse Society again made application to consider the position they are placed in with regard to their annual show, and arising from this application arose the question as to whether a society shall retain its position by paying its equal share of judges' fees, although not holding an open show, or whether they should remain stationary, so long as they don't hold an open show, taking up the position where they left, when resuming their annual shows. Many opinions were expressed, and in order to get a fair understanding of the feelings of different societies in the matter, the President (Mr. R. Halliday) recommended that the question be thoroughly thrashed out by the societies in the Union, who should instruct their delegates how to vote in the matter, and that the question should be placed on the agenda for the next Council meeting. This arrangement was agreed to, and it is hoped societies will give the question every consideration, so that the Council can come to a satisfactory conclusion on this question. It was unanimously decided that we again have an annual prize distribution on the same lines as previous years, and the following sub-committee was elected from the Union to act along with the other specialist clubs, in making the necessary arrangements:—Mr. R. Halliday, Mr. H. Hill, and Mr. E. W. Johnson. A few show irregularities were notified to the Council, and in each of the cases where exhibitors were using other than the Union's uniform watertin, the secretary was instructed to write the said exhibitors, and warn them that unless they conformed to the rules of the Union serious steps would be taken in all future cases reported to them. In respect to a case reported from the Great Horton Show Committee, it was decided by the Council that the secretary of the Union should write the said exhibitor, and ask for an explanation in regard to the matter. Another question referred to the various societies was in regard to the annual ballot, whether a Union member who is in membership with two or three societies should receive a ballot paper for each of them, or whether he should only receive one. The business was then brought to a close, the President thanking the delegates for their attendance.—H. HILL, Sec.

DULWICH AND PECKHAM C.B.S.

A Successful Bohemian Concert.

Annual Bohemian concert held on December 2nd in the spacious hall attached to our headquarters, the Montpelier Hotel, Choumert Road, Peckham. In spite of the wretched weather some 50 members and friends, including many ladies, were present, presided over by the ever-popular chairman, Mr. H. E. Tringham. The concert arrangements had been entrusted to Mr. W. Hodson, and Mr. H. W. Tomsett, who provided a programme that will not easily be forgotten by those who had the good fortune to be present, some 20 artistes contributing to the evening's enjoyment. Mr. H. Reader Grey, who was at the piano, opened the proceedings with a brilliant pianoforte solo, Mr. D. Reeks following with a song, "Roger Rough, the Plowman." Mr. Reeks also sang "Asleep in the Deep." Mr. L. J. Richardson, a very sweet tenor, sang "Anchored" and "Yeomen of England." Our old friend Mr. J. W. Norris, of Roller fame, sang "The Flight of Ages" and the "Last Watch." Mr. Arthur Bolton sang "Love, if I only knew," and Mr. Joe Lee, a baritone, always a favourite, sang "Thora." The humorous element was provided by Mr. Harry Symonds, in "Down where the Breezes Blow" and "John Willie, Come On," and by Mr. Fred Putner, in "Bertie in Love." Mr. Will Putner sang "Tax the Bachelors," causing much merriment. About the middle of the evening a rare treat was provided by Mr. Stephen Morecroft and Mr. Stephen Mason, who very kindly came down and sang for us. I am sure all present were highly delighted, and much indebted to these gentlemen. The Cameos Operatic Concert Party (some 10 in number), who kindly provided the second half of the programme, came down with all their costumes and paraphernalia. They provided a large number of individual and concerted items. Miss Ruby Helene, in her coon songs, was very fine indeed. Miss Almens Courtneridge, Mr. Geo. Cole, Mr. J. Sheffield, Mr. Cliffor Travers, and Mr. Frank Dickeson contributed to a most enjoyable time. The D. and P.C.B.S. are very fortunate in having such friends ready and willing to help entertain them. Before leaving, the Cameos very kindly promised to provide an evening's entertainment early in the New Year at the Central Hall, Peckham, the proceeds to go to the funds of the society. Fanciers should make a note of this. The Chairman, after reading letters of apology from many well-known fanciers, reluctantly had to bring the evening to a close. He proposed a vote of thanks to the artistes. Mr. Cole supported, and it was carried with much acclamation. The singing of "God Save the King" and "Auld Lang Syne" closed the most memorable evening in the long history of the society.—W. HUDSON, hon. secretary.

COVENTRY (Godiva) C.B.S.

A washing exhibition was given by Mr. J. Symonds on December 6th, at the Chequers Hotel, and it proved very interesting to members and other fanciers. After Mr. Symonds washed about half-a-dozen birds, Mr. Busby also washed one or two, after which several of our members were invited to try; and they made a very good show of it, considering it was their first time. We spent an enjoyable evening, all being satisfied with the way the birds came out of the ordeal.—W. H. BRAY, Hon. Sec.

WOOD GREEN AND DIS F. & F.A

First annual show held on Dec. 4th at Alexandra School. The entries, which numbered 220 all over, were very good specimens of the different varieties. The principal winners in the cage bird section were: Messrs. Penney, Brooks, Pledger, Johnson, Griffin, Ayling, Green, Boston, and Cobden, and many splendid specimens were staged. We had a great crowd of visitors, and all were delighted with the show. We hope to considerably increase our membership in consequence.—T. CALLEGARI, Sec.

HARTLEPOOLS C.B.A.

Monthly meeting held at headquarters on December 1. The chair was occupied by Mr. Robinson. Mr. B. Evans gave us a washing exhibition, he being watched with great interest. Mr. Evans explained how essential it was to use three bowls of warm water, also the way in which he used the soap. Birds were washed by Messrs. Woodhead, Robinson, and Ronald in very good style, and while the birds were drying some very interesting discussions took place. The meeting proved very interesting. A vote of thanks to Mr. Evans brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.—J. W. PAPPLE, hon. secretary.

Perch for Flights and Aviaries.

Sent by Mr. James Lisle, 25, Ridley Street, Cramlington.

Enclosed is a sketch of a very useful perch for flights and aviaries. It consists of a piece of cage wire about 8 inches long, bent at a right angle at both ends, with a hook at one end and about an inch at the other end; the latter is to go into the perch. The perch can be made any length to suit the fancier, and can be hung any way—in the flight, on the wire netting, or punch bars, as the case may be. It also prevents red mite, and can be easily taken out and cleaned.—JAMES LISLE.

No. 369.

To Frustrate Red-mite.

Sent by Mr. A. Stockton, 20, Baden Street, Chester-le-Street, near Durham

Here is an idea for the making of cages with a view to preventing red mite getting so much refuge as usual in the backs of same. I cut away ¼in. ("A") from the sides and top and also front the top of front, and I use three-ply wooden backs, which are all of one piece. The idea of cutting the pieces away is, it will be seen, to do away with the joints, where red-mite mostly congregate. The wires of the cage are not drawn, so that the idea will be the better illustrated.—A. STOCKTON.

The Artful Rooks.

When Rooks are really hungry or want some food they are especially fond of, they are very persistent and daring. At present they are busy rifling the walnut trees in the gardens and parks. In the severe weather they will visit the stocks close to the farmhouse, cleverly pulling the straws out to obtain the ears. This they will generally accomplish in the early morning before anyone is about.

Magpies in Cheshire.

The beautiful Magpie still manages to exist in spite of constant persecution. In the eastern part of Cheshire the species is very abundant, but in the west hardly a bird can be seen. In some parts of Essex and Cambridgeshire it is plentiful. The Magpie and Jay are seldom found in the same wood. The latter bird is scarcely so hardy as the 'Pie.

Shore and Marsh Birds in Norfolk

An order was made for the protection of shore and marsh birds in Norfolk to prohibit the taking of any eggs on a number of the broads, rivers, and foreshore, until 1912. If this order is enforced, many birds of great interest will probably establish themselves along the shingle, sandhills, and creeks which make up the Norfolk coast. The county is already very rich in bird life, but many birds are prevented from nesting, through the greed of the egg collector.

Jackdaws at Home.

Jackdaws evidently pair for life, as two birds will remain together all the winter, seldom straying far from the nesting sight for many days. These birds are evidently peculiarly attached to a district, and a hand-reared nestling will frequently remain where reared if allowed its liberty.

The Adult House Sparrow.

The common House Sparrow does not attain its full adult plumage until its third year. Young cock birds of this season are quite devoid of the black throat and other distinguishing marks. The black will appear in the spring, but not of the same density as in the following season.

The Shows.

SIX BELLS (Abertillery).

This show was held on December 8th in the Alexandra Hall, and proved a success, entries in most of the classes being good. The quality all round, too, was most excellent. The exhibits were nicely staged, and were quite out of the way of any draughts. They were thoroughly well looked after by competent stewards, Messrs. Parfitt, Mortimer, Carter, and Hill being most assiduous in their attention. The special for best bird in the show, a silver cup presented by that well-known old-time fancier, Mr. J. R. Leech, went to a grand King Parrakeet. Mr. W. J. Edwards, the hon. sec., had everything well in hand, and was most courteous and obliging. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards.

HENFIELD.

First annual show, held November 24th, in the Assembly Rooms. The show was opened by the Mayor of Hove (Alderman Capt. A. B. S. Fraser, J.P.), and proved a great success, it being the first held by the Henfield and District F. and F.S. The entries numbered 400 in all. The cage bird section was comfortably staged by an able committee, and Mr. J. A. Betchley, hon. secretary, being a cage bird man, had an eye to their wants, and will he well supported, we should say, at their second attempt. Mr. W. Swaysland judged.

BRADFORD EAST.

The 5th Members' Show of the present year was held in Park Chapel Schools, on November 16th, Mr. W. A. Cowgill officiating as judge, with a total entry in all three sections of 171 birds. Some grand birds were staged, and the quality throughout was of an excellent character. The winners of most points in the champion section were: Messrs. H. Hill 23 points, J. Northrop 23, G. White 23; in the novice section, Messrs. F. Gelder 25, C. Walker 22, E. Dinsdale 21; and in the extra novice section, Messrs. Wilman and Barker 23, W. Walker 18, J. Nichol 7. The judge gave every satisfaction.

LLANELLY.

The classification provided at the first show of the Llanelly and County Fanciers' Association was hardly of the character to draw a big entry, whilst the entry fee, 1s. 6d., was heavy for the prize-money, 14s. Some nice birds were staged, and competition was good. The arrangements were most creditably carried out by the committee, and Messrs. Gascoign and John, the hon. secs., did everything they possibly could for the welfare of exhibits and exhibitors. Mr. C. A. House judged.

EDMONTON F.A.

Held in the Town Hall, December 2nd. The hon. secretary, Mr. A. Burgess, did his utmost to get an entry together, but failed to succeed, mainly owing to other shows clashing, and members of the society being also members of others. Only three classes stood—Norwich, Crests, and Brit. Cup for best cage bird was awarded to a nice Crest shown by Mr. F. Richer, while Mr. J. Irving won special for second best, with a good Crest-bred, and Mr. E. A. Terry, jun., special for third best, with a yellow Norwich.

NOR. (6): 1, spl, 3, E. A. Terry, jun.; 2, r, vhc, hc, J. A. White. CREST OR C.B. (6): 1, cup, r, vhc, F. Richer; 2, 3, hc, J. Irving. BRIT., A.V.: 3, E. A. Terry, jun., nice Yellow Bunting, in good feather.

FRAMLINGHAM.

Annual show of the Framlingham and Dis. F.S. was held on Dec. 2nd in the Castle Hall, where a grand lot of cage birds were brought together. Messrs. F. D. Nicholson, M.D., and J. Tongeman, the hon. secs., had everything in perfect order. Mr. Augustin De Winton (Cambridge) judged.

MACCLESFIELD AND DIS. C.B.S.

The fifth annual show (eight-mile radius) was held in the Assembly Rooms on November 27th. The show-room, which is a good one for the occasion, was fitted with a new stage, this being a step in the right direction, giving one a better view of the birds. The entry was not quite so good as last year's, but the quality was much improved, many birds having won in open amateur competition. The opening ceremony was gracefully performed by Mrs. W. Frost. Mr. R. Brown presided, and was supported by Councillor and Mrs. W. Frost, Mrs. R. Brown, Miss J. Galloway, Councillor W. Thompson, and Mr. F. Broadhurst (secretary). There was a good attendance. As on previous occasions the opener of the exhibition was presented by a pretty bird and cage. The judges were Messrs. W. Bowyer (Leek) and J. Garner (Hazel Grove).

Bristol Show report gives h.c. Rutherington instead of Etherington.—A. Etherington (Chippenham).

Entries for Pontypridd are extended to 1st post Monday, December 13th. Send along your entries at once.—(Advt.)

Entries for Broxburn close December 11th. Splendid classification. Send along your entries without delay.—(Advt.)

Hull Show report credits F. Potter with first in class 53 A.O.V. I claim that honour with my cinnamon Border hen.—A. Hinsom (Hessle).

In the members' unflighted Yorkshire Class, the Hull report credits Girling with second, whereas I won that prize.—J. Precious (Hull).

At the recent Cirencester Show, I won third prize in the Goldfinch class, writes Mr. W. Hussey (Bath), and not Mr. Strange, as reported.

I was h.c. in the Redpoll, Siskin, and Twite class at Bristol Show, writes Mr. J. Brighty (Bristol). The bird (one of mine) was a Lesser Redpoll.

All birds were in the railway company's hands by 7, and the room cleared by 7.30 o'clock.—G. Hy Barnwell, hon. secretary, Harrogate C.B.S.

At the Blackpool Open Show held recently, in Class 25, clear yellow Norwich, I was first and special, and not Thomson, as reported.—S. Morrison (Blackpool).

City of Dundee report in the clean or foul buff cock class should read: first, special, and cup, Muirhead, and not Mr. Melville.—William Muirhead (Bonnybridge).

The Rochdale O.C. Club Show will be held on Saturday, December 11th, when Mr. L. Butterworth will judge, writes Mr. J. Butterwerth, the hon. secretary.

The Perfect Drying Cage (patent applied for) is having a good sale. It is different from all others, and can be had from And. Wilson, 247, Argyle Street, Glasgow.—(Advt.)

Birmingham Show report credits Mr. Eckersley with v.h.c. in Open Norwich Ticked or Variegated Buff Class; this should have been credited to me.—S. Silver (Birmingham).

In Cardiff Show report, in class 13, I won 3rd prize, and not Wilson. Mr. Wilson won 1st prize in this class. And in class 18 I won v.h.c. and not Mr. Howard.— G. Thomson (Cardiff).

Sidmouth Show report should read in the Yorkshire hen class, second and third, also in unflighted class v.h.c., h.c., J. C. Miller, and not Mitter, as printed.—J. C. Miller (Exeter).

Allow me to wish Cage Birds and its staff every success. Many thanks for the grand report of our show in your ever ready journal.—T. Smith, secretary of the Ilkeston and Dis. O.S.

We are pleased to say we have made rapid strides since putting our notices in your paper, Cage Birds, writes Mr. Wm. Cottingham, secretary of the Hyson Green (Nottingham) C.B.S.

I have read Cage Birds for four years, and find it a great help to me in the breeding and showing of Canaries. I wish it every success. The plates which I get are beautiful.—J. C. Miller (Exeter).

Sheffield and Dis. C.B.S. are holding their last members' show for this year on December 11th, Montgomery Hall. We have three cups and specials to be competed for.—Lindsay and Bingham, secretaries.

At Cardiff Show report in the Yorkshire novice buff, I won 3rd prize; also in novice hens the 2nd prize was mine. The omission was caused by a careless mistake of my own. Mrs. M. Gill (London, S.W.).

We have another special for the foreign section—5s. cash, given by Mrs. J. M. Duncan for the best pair of Budgerigars in the show, writes Mr. A. E. Wigginton, hon. secretary of the Long Eaton and Dis. C.B.S.

We hear that Mr. A. C. Brotherhood (Newport, Salop) is engaged to judge the cage birds at the annual show of the Manx Canine Society, to be held in the Derby Castle, Douglas, on St. Stephen's Day (Boxing Day).

All exhibits were dispatched in good time from our show; in fact, the showroom was completely cleared of birds by 9 p.m. This, I think, speaks exceedingly well for our stewards.— Jos. Oldham, secretary of the Middleton C.B.S.

We have decided to hold our 14th annual show on the 1st Saturday in November, 1910, and have engaged the Parish Church Schools as before. We have also secured the services of Messrs. J. H. Roe and W. Hardy (Oldham). It is hoped other societies will avoid clashing with the above date.—Wm. Adams, hon. secretary of the Rochdale "Good Intent" C.B.S.

I was very proud of the honour I received per last week's Cage Birds, by having my Goldfinch depicted on your front page, writes Mr. Frank Jones, sen. (Wrexham). My thanks are due to your artist, Mr. Norman, for such a good portrait.

At Market Rasen Show, in the British Goldfinch class, "no name" refers to me, it being a late entry. My name has been misprinted in the report of several shows recently. It should be Hillier and not Biller, or Hillian.—James Hilaire (Paisley).

Mr. Gavin Alston (Darvel), is reading a paper to the members of the Ayr and Dis. C.B.S. on December 13th at 7.30 p.m., in the Good Templar Hall, New Bridge Street, to which meeting all fanciers are invited, writes Mr. C. C. Irvine, the secretary.

I have sold my unflighted buff Yorkshire cock, 1st Rochdale and Tideswell, to Mr. A. Price, of Thackley, Bradford, writes Mr. H. Foden (Ashton-under-Lyne). It added another first to its list of winnings at Birmingham last week for its new owner.

Please state that the Watford and Dis. Cage Bird Society held their show on November 12th and 13th, writes Mr. W. Quantrell, the secretary. The show now being advertised as Watford, is the West Herts. Fanciers' Association, so this is somewhat misleading.

The first annual members' exhibition of the Lincoln and Dis. C.B.S. is being held this Saturday, December 11, in the Central Hall, with Mr. W. P. Barnes (Grantham), as judge. Eighteen classes are provided, and visitors are invited to go and see the exhibits.

Kindly note that Mr. R. Edmunds has resigned the secreteryship of the King's Lynn C.C., and I have been elected to that office. All communications therefore are to be addressed in future to me.—A. R. Kent, hon. secretary, 15, North Everard Street, King's Lynn.

In the Border Fancy section of the late Avonbridge Show, instead of being first with a green hen, I was first and special, and special for best Border and B.F.C.C. medal. And in cock selling class I was second, instead of Mr. Watt, as reported.—A. Forrest (Whitburn).

Catalogues for the late Manchester Show (which were sold out) may now, writes Mr. E. Jones, be obtained at 6d. each, as we have had a new lot printed to oblige exhibitors. Applications to be made to Mr. G. W. F. Lythgoe, 76, Shrewsbury Street, Old Trafford, Manchester.

OBITUARY.

MASTER OLIVER (Ashton).

I deeply regret having to announce that one of our members, Mr. Joel Oliver, has suffered a great loss in the death of his only son, age 8 years, writes Mr. H. Foden, hon. secretary of the Ashton-under-Lyne O.S. All fanciers, I feel sure, will sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver in their sad bereavement.

Walkley and Dis. C.B.S. is throwing its society open to a twenty-mile radius. Will all fanciers wishing to join attend the special meeting, December 16th at 8 o'clock, at the St. Philip Mission Hall, Westmoreland Street, Upperthorpe, Sheffield?—W. E. Clarke, secretary.

At Ferryhill Show, my birds had been entered under the impression that it was a Union fixture, writes Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland), and as soon as I found out my mistake I telegraphed for my birds to be sent home at once; therefore, all my entries were absent from the show.

Mr. Wm. Lewthwaite, hon. secretary of the Egremont (Cumberland) P.P. and Cage Bird Society, writes: I desire to thank the many fanciers who have written expressing their gratification at the promptness with which they received their prize money, all accounts having been settled within the week.

The members' annual show of the Hyson Green (Nottingham) C.B.S. will be held this Saturday, December 11th, at "The Cricket Player," Lindsay Street, Radford Road, when Messrs. R. Rhodes and J. Bertie will judge. The schedule comprises 39 classes, and the show will open at twelve o'clock noon.

Kindly accept my best thanks for the grand report you gave in Cage Birds of our show (at Banbridge). The critique was splendid. My name, I notice, is misprinted Laith; it is Faith. But I don't mind what he calls me so long as he does not call me too early in the morning. —C. J. Faith (Banbridge, Co. Down).

I have had the pleasure of securing 47 cards in three years, writes Mr. G. Mitchell (Topsham), which I don't think is bad. I sent six birds to Exmouth Show last Wednesday, and gained 1 first and special, 3 seconds, and 1 third; all birds of my own breeding. I have, too, only been a breeder three or four years.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Cardiff Show report credits Mr. Barrow with winning first in Class 21 open novice hens. I had that honour, and special in a class of 18, also in Class 19, open novice yellow, I gained 3rd, v.h.c., and c. in a class of 21—not mentioned; also special for most points in Classes 19, 20, and 21. I wish your valuable paper, Cage Birds, every success.—R. Brown (Cardiff).

Mr. Walter Bayley won president's prize, and not Mr. F. Fields, at the recent Sale Open Show. Also Mr. Bayley won special for best Border shown by a member. Mrs. Fildes and not Fields gave way for the cup to go to Mr. F. Fields, and Mrs. W. Fildes to take gold medal for runner up.—Jas. Irlam, hon. secretary, Sale Open O.S.

Two years ago I started bird breeding with Norwich Plainheads, and had fairly good luck. I think the following is very good for a novice of two years' experience. I sent to Gloucester Show this year and secured 4th in a novice class of twenty; I won 3rd and 4th at Cirencester, and 1st and h.c. at Cardiff in a class of 18. I owe my success to the valuable information given in your paper, Cage Birds.—H. Bennett (Gloucester).

We have received a copy of the price-list of Mr. B. Hollins (9, George Street, Hull). All kinds of birds, animals, fish, etc., are quoted in it at prices very favourable to purchasers. A sample of Mr. Hollins' "Sea grit" also comes to hand—a splendid article, quite free from dust and all deleterious matters. His new food, "Dryko," customers say is an article "long been wanted," and Mr. Hollins has laid down a special plant for making it.

Notwithstanding, write Messrs. McLucas and James, secretaries of Pontypridd, Pwllgwaun and Dis. Society, advertising our show widely and sending out over 1,000 schedules, we have received up to writing not one entry per class. We urgently appeal to fanciers to come to our aid and give us a good entry. Prize money was promptly paid last year, and the same is intended this year. Entries extended until first post Monday morning next (December 13th).

The officials of the Boston Show Association have turned over to us the entire management of the cage bird department of the forthcoming show, writes Mr. Chas. A. Murray, secretary, New England (U.S.A.) C.B.A. We are getting out a separate premium list, which will be mailed to every breeder or fancier of cage birds in the New England States, and some even in N. York. I have been searching for names ever since we organised nearly a year ago.

I am compelled to extend the date of entries closing, writes Mr. Fred King, hon. secretary of Carmarthenshire Christmas Show. If entries are posted on December 11 they will be in time. At time of writing there are only 9 entries in the cage bird section. This kind of thing is enough to make a secretary go bald-headed. So I hope fanciers will give us their support. If this year's show does not prove a success, it will be the last, and this after nearly seventy years.

The handbook of the Cage Bird Union, a copy of which reaches us from the hon. secretary, Mr. J. Raynes, 9, Richmond Road, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Manchester, comprises not only the rules of the Union and the last balance-sheet, but also a list of the societies affiliated (together with the names and addresses of the secretaries of same), the compensation scheme rules, the conditions of the medal competition, etc. This useful little production reflects credit on Mr. Raynes.

Kindly allow me through the columns of Cage Birds to thank those exhibitors who responded to our appeal. Previous to your issue of November 27th, we had only about 300 entries, but we finished up with 635, and had a grand show, the same being well patronised by visitors despite the wet weather. In the award slips, fourth prize in class 2 should be No. 1, not No. 4, the latter being commended. I regret to say that Mr. Coffey's Goldie Redpoll (winner of Messrs. Trowers' gold medal for best bird) arrived home with a damaged wing and died two hours later. The bird was in grand condition while at our show, and the damage must have been done in transit. It is naturally a great loss to Mr. Coffey. Mr. Hingley, of Brierley Hill, had the misfortune to have his team delayed in transit by rail, and same did not arrive until after 12 p.m., being too late for judging.—J. H. de Maillet, hon. secretary.

Lost and Found.

An old friend of mine "found" me after a number of years by means of the advertisement columns of Cage Birds. He said he looked there to see if my name appeared. I did not know before that Cage Birds was a paper for "lost friends."—W. Nichols (Twickenham, late of Norwich).

To Readers.

Despite the issue this week of another huge 36 page number of Cage Birds, the reports of the shows have once again proved so extraordinarily heavy that we find it impossible to print them all, even in the amount of space such a number of pages enables us to utilise solely for them. The whole, we hope, will appear next week.

The Migratory Robin.

The familiar Robin is much more of a migratory species than most people suppose. It has even been met with as far north as the Faeroe Islands, and swarms pass through certain districts in Southern and Eastern Europe during the autumn. The majority of Robins evidently seek warmer quarters in winter. The birds that stay with us are possibly more Northern bred, and simply take the place of the Southern birds which migrate further south.

A

NEXT WEEK.

Why it will break all records.

BECAUSE it is the greatest value for the money ever offered to bird lovers.

BECAUSE it will bring a coloured plate of some birds we all know and love, and so charmingly executed that it must win the admiration of all.

BECAUSE it will contain the most beautiful art supplement it has ever been our good fortune to be able to put before readers.

BECAUSE the articles are of a most varied and entertaining character, and will appeal to everybody.

This is suggestive of boasting, you may think. Well buy next week's Xmas Number and you will find

We More Than Make Good Every Word.

Tell all your friends of the treat in preparation, and order your own copies early. "Cage Birds" Xmas Number will be on sale everywhere on Friday next, Dec. 17th, price 2d.

ADVERTISERS will know from past experience the remarkably ready way in which every description of birds and appliances find purchasers when offered for sale in Cage Birds Double Numbers. We would only remind them that they should send along their announcements early to ensure their appearance in this Record Breaking Christmas Number. Its circulation will be World-Wide.

The Closing Date is Tuesday, December 14 next.

Post all advertisements early to reach us on Tuesday certain or we cannot guarantee insertion in this great Special Issue.

Results.

The results of my advertisement re Scotch Fancies in "Cage Birds," have been very good. I have sold the whole of my stock.—Arthur Lang (Rutherglen).

I am pleased to say that we are so busy that we are "making overtime"—all due to our advertising in "Cage Birds."—E. E. Pass (Hucknall Torkard).

I had one advert. appearing in "Cage Birds" for Border Fancies, and had replies from all over England, Scotland, and Wales, and have sold all my birds. So anyone who has birds for sale should not miss using your columns. I used no others.—Jas. B. Y. Murdoch (Kilmarnock).

The last advert. I had in your paper, "Cage Birds," I had twelve replies to, from different places (for Goldfinch). I could only answer one or two, but to the others I tender my thanks.—W. Ratcliff (Grantham).

Allow me to thank you for the good results I had from my advertisement in "Cage Birds" re Yorkshires.—H. Foden (Ashton-under-Lyne).

To Know a Falcon.

The true Falcons have the outer toe of each foot longer than the inner one—a characteristic which is doubtless useful to the Peregrine or Merlin in striking a quarry.

Robin and Centipede.

It is said that a Robin does not eat a centipede directly it catches one, but injures it so that it cannot escape, and leisurely devours it afterwards.

Where the Chough Once Dwelt.

Many years ago the bold Chough nested on the cliffs near the Selway Firth, but it has disappeared, like other interesting species, never to return.

The Thrush Family.

In ornithology Thrushes are separated from the Flycatchers and Warblers by the spotted plumage of the young, a peculiar feature by which we learn that the Nightingale, Robin, and the Chats are all Thrushes.

Birds in Southern Seas.

In the account of his journey in search of the South Pole, Lieutenant Shackleton refers to the extraordinary tameness of the birds, especially the penguins. They had no fear of human beings; never probably having seen them before, and consequently they had no cause to fear them.

Range of the Gold-crest.

The little Gold-crest, our smallest bird, is resident throughout Europe, actually reaching as far north as the Arctic circle, where to obtain sufficient bodily heat he must be exceptionally active. Its range also extends right away to Japan, although the Eastern birds vary slightly in plumage, but hardly enough to be recognised as distinct species. The Japanese bird is only distinguished from ours by a greyish nape.

Ramblings in the Garden.

The Bramblefinch is one of the last birds to visit gardens and to take advantage of refuse thrown to the feathered flock. He is only when he is almost starved that he will venture near, and then he does so in a shy and humble manner, picking up a crumb here and there, as though thankful for small mercies. But as soon as he has fed for a day or two and has got his strength back again he becomes quarrelsome, and will only give way to larger and more powerful birds.

The Shows.

LEICESTER.

Magnificent Show in the Midlands

The Leicester C.B.S. held their annual exhibition on December 4th and 6th. The County Rooms (old Free Library), in which the exhibits were housed, is of a very spacious character, lofty, and free from draughts, centrally situated, nicely heated, and with excellent light (electric by night). The schedule offered a more extended classification than in past years, and brought together a most capital entry; in fact, a finer show has never been experienced in the city. Mr. W. Stevens is the genial Chairman, with Messrs. E. B. Hunt and H. Chrishan as "understudies," a trio of very enthusiastic and hard-working officials, fanciers to the core. The committee consists of a band of well-known and highly esteemed fanciers, in Messrs. G. Wheatley, J. Heighton, T. H. Ride, J. W. Hartshorn, J. Wood, T. Claypole, and F. Harrison; each and every one did his level best to help things along in the way they should go, and deserve high praise for their untiring exertions. Mr. J. A. Tyler, the worthy secretary and treasurer, is the right man in the right place, always most courteous and obliging, and everything appeared to go smoothly and well. Much of the credit for the success certainly falls to his share, and for getting together so fine a show he is to be very warmly complimented. The staging of the exhibits had been well thought out, those responsible deserving all the good things which were said about them, as every bird could be seen at a glance. Messrs. How, Blastock and Co., and Draper and Hubbard (local seed and accessory factors), had nicely arranged stalls in the showroom.

The catalogue opened with the Norwich Plainheads, which were voted a choice lot. The Var. Buff, owned by Mr. T. Sandiford, is an eye-opener, and the marked yellow cock, the property of Mr. E. Fox, is also a real charmer. Mr. J. Needham (local) won well in the buff cocks, and Messrs. Walton and Noakes (local) took premier honours in the unlighted buff cocks, both birds being gems of the first water. Yorkshires were nice, the pick being the yell. tick, owned by Messrs. Halliday and Chittenden, and the buff tick shown by Mr. J. W. White. The Borders were a neat lot, Mr. J. A. Tyler (the sec.) taking the bulk of honours with some lovely "wee gems." Cinnamons were grand, the "cream" being present, staged by Messrs. W. Dormer, W. Yates, and Mrs. F. E. Deacon. British and Hybrids were truly a magnificent lot, and far and away the best sections of the show, a real treat to observe. Those who swear by our national songsters and their hybrids, could not have wished for a more choice collection. Once again Mr. R. Bond got in with his unbeatable clear buff Goldie-Can., looking as well as ever (how he wears). Mr. A. Shellam staged a magnificent yell. dark Siskin-Can., which was greatly admired, while the yell. Greenie-Can., successfully shown by Mr. A. Coffey, is a real "knock-out," and the best that has been seen for a very lengthy period. In the British, Mr. S. H. May's Goldie, Mr. G. Lawrence's Bullie, and the Linnet shown by Mr. A. J. Marley, are "toppers," without a doubt. Mr. R. J. Howe's Greenie, of wonderful size, and Mr. H. Christian's (local) Siskin, fully deserved their wins. Messrs. Seal and Jones stood 1st and 2nd respectively, with very choice Hawfinches, which must have took some separating. The Black Redstart, which won for Mr. W. Lowne, Mr. W. Howe's Great Grey Shrike, and Mr. T. Judkins' White Blackbird, were much admired. The Foreign were good, and a great attraction. Lovely specimens were shown by Mrs. W. M. G. Stocker, Mrs. E. Galloway, and Messrs. W. H. Raven, W. Oakey, S. Beaty, and W. Howe.

Specials went to the following:—Hyde's, Mr. J. A. Tyler, with a hot-coloured yell. Nor., the same exhibit capturing Sandiford's medal. Ramsden's cruet went to Mr. W. Stevens, a grand coloured yell. nunlight, answering to the call. Trower's, Mr. W. H. Howe; best vhc Cinnamon, Mr. H. Riding.

The stewards were: Messrs. Harrison, Wood, Claypole, Moore, Christian, Turner, and Stevens, who all worked with a will, promptly affixing prize slips immediately each class was adjudicated upon, and attending to all the many other items in a very fine manner. The judges were Messrs. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh), Hybrids, Brit. and For., and J. H. Roe, the remainder.

The Norwich, Crests and Cinnamons.

NOR. NAT. COL. YELL. (7): In this class we think Mr. Roe committed an unfortunate error of judgment, awarding 2nd prize to a bird we consider a clear buff, and which should have been "wrong classed." This incident created no little stir amongst the fanciers present, and on one occasion quite a heated debate took place over the matter. 1, Christian, green, good body shape, but weak in head and neck, with superfluous feather around thighs; 2, Howe, clear buff, without a doubt; 3, Claypole, cl, grand shape and colour, rare feather and carriage, short wings and tail, far best in class; 4, Brooks, mkd wings, head and tail, tight as wax, good head neck and chest, wee shade long in tail, but easy second; vhc, Dyson; he, Hales; c, Herbert. BUFF (15): 1, gold medal, 2, Howe, leader cl, rare substance, good shape and carriage, A1 feather; 2nd, varieg., lovely feather, very shapely, nice head, neck, and chest, clean cut; 3, Beardall and Walker, cl, magnificent quality, short and thick-set, nice size and carriage, true Norwich, the choice of many to win; 4, he Collohy aud Brown, mkd head, A1 quality, good head and neck, bold front; vhc, Notley; c, Needham. HEN (12): 1, Howe, yell. green, rich quality, fine substance and shape, jaunty carriage, gem all over; 2, Brooks, cl buff, short and thick set, capital substance, close feather, not far behind, in the pink; 3, Elliott, cl yell, good col, tight as wax, grand substance and body shape, neat carriage; 4, Hales, var buff, cobby, and as tight as a Java, round as a ball, true type, easy action, could have been higher; vhc, Dormer; he, Burchnall; c, Herbert. YELL. (10): 1, 3, Sandiford, brace of gems, former cl, red hot, beautifully feathered, real model, well-known winner; 3rd, very warm fed cl, short and thick-set, A1 quality and substance, we preferred to second; 2, Moore, cl., good in col. and feather, very nice body, will improve in head and neck; 4, Fox, cl, lovely texture of feather, rare size, grand head, neck, and front; vhc, Hollis; he, Vardy; c, Tyler. BUFF (11): 1, Needham, very shapely cl, shone like satin, richly frosted, good substance and carriage; 2, Seed, cl, hotter than winner, magnificent quality, grand shape, beaten, perhaps, in substance; 3, Walton and Noakes, cl, well up in size, capital type, A1 quality, richly frosted; 4, spl, Houghton, bouncer, grand head, neck, and front; vhc, Drakeley; he, Christian; c, Wagg, could have been higher up. MKD. YELL. (8): 1, Fox, mkd wiugs and eyes, true type, full of fire, clothed to perfection, beautiful mover, well known winner; 2, Walton and Noakes, mkd wings, eyes and head, well up in size, nice shape, rare col and quality, very bonny; 3, Tyler, mkd wings and head, very nice, wonderful substance, rattling fine feather and carriage, takes Hyde's and Sandiford's specials; 4, Dormer, mkd wing and head, beautifully feathered full of col; vhc, Beardall and Walker; he, Stevens; c, Drakeley. BUFF (11): 1, Sandiford, well known varieg., Pendleton, Birmingham, winner, real knock-out, will take some stopping; 2, Houghton, mkd wing and neck, teeming with quality and col, richly mealed, rare head, neck, and chest; 3, Vardy, mkd wings, eyes, and neck, rich col and quality, short and thick-set, A1 carriage, nice meal; 4, Christian, lightly varieg, rattling col and feather, nice size; vhc, Beardall and Walker; he, Nutt; c, Shore. YELL. UNFLIG. (12): 1, Dormer, richly fed cl, unbeatable for shape and quality, lovely carriage of flights, clean cut away, topper; 2, Needham, red hot cl, shade more substance, capital feather, most promising youngster; 3, Roberts, mkd tail, very shapely, capital feather and carriage, not the col, still well worth its place; 4, Clews, mkd head, cobby, and of rattling fine col and quality; vhc, Rathbone, we much liked; he, Seed; c, spl, Stevens. BUFF (17): Good lot; 1, Walton and Noakes, cl, teeming with col, richly frosted, lovely shape, rare size; 2, Seed, mkd wings and head, full of fire, wonderful substance, neat carriage, a beauty; 3, Nutt, mkd over beak, good size and shape, in moult and bit lucky, some thought; 4, Vardy, mkd eyes, very shapely, good size and carriage, nice mealing; vhc, Beardall and Walker, very bonny cl, worthy of one of the money prizes; he, Rathbone; c, Judd. SOUTHAMPTON.

The Southampton F. and F.F.A. 21st annual show, held at the Carlton Drill Hall, on November 24th and 25th. This old society has been in low water for several years having to be content with a members' or local show annually. This year they ventured to a 12-mile radius, and success attended their venture. They have succeeded in getting a really good hon. secretary in the person of Mr. J. S. Finmore, who, in the course of less than a year has been the means of putting new life into the society, and bringing lost members again into the fold. Cage birds turned up very well, the quality being exceptionally good—the best that has been seen here for many years. Norwich and Yorkshires were, perhaps, the best, and Bullies among the Britishers. Mr. Haysom, unfortunately through indisposition, was unable to send his fine team of Crests and Crest-breds. Mr. G. T. Webb judged.

NOR. (8): 1, Mortara, good bodied yell., nicely fed, good quality feather; 2, 3, r, Schneider, 2nd another good one, close up, perhaps not quite so good in feather; vhc, Roberts; he, Mortara. FROME.

Frome and Dis. F.A. held their 11th annual show in Mechanics' Hall on December 2nd. The association is one of the most popular in this part of England, and has a patronage second to none, and an able chairman in Dr. Cockey, and a hard-working hon. secretary, Mr. C. I. Young, backed up by an able cage bird committee, consisting of Messrs. Austin, Hodge, Edwards, Hillier, King, Needs, Pickford, Pinnell, Sheppard, Singer, Wells, and D. and J. Yeo. The hall is nicely situated for a show of this description, and is well suited for the purpose. The birds were comfortably staged and free from draught. Again, we have not seen shows so well patronised by the children as the Frome shows; they take a great interest in the exhibits. The show was held under the patronage of the Lanes. C.A and the S.Y.C.C., members of both of which put down some grand specimens. Mr. J. Robson judged. The other sections of the show necessarily cramped the cage bird section for staging room; nevertheless, the committee did exceptionally well in the space available.

The Critique.

CREST: 1, 3, Rev. Joyce, 1st large buff variegated, well radiated, drooping crest, best of feather; 3rd, another variegated, close up to 2nd; 2, Greenwood and Burson, another grand bird, not quite so good in radiation, nice bird; 4, Ind; vhc, Hobbs. C.B.: 1, Greenwood and Burson, buff variegated, grand bundle of feathers, nice and browy, one of the best; 2, 4, Rev. Joyce, 2nd another splendid bird; 3, Hobbs, clinking good green, but looking ragged; vhc, he, Ind. NOR. CL. ETC. YELL.: 1, Rennie, grand bird, hot col., good head flights and tail, well proportioned throughout; 2, Edwards, another splendid bird, hard to choose between these; 3, Brown, lovely feather, good quality; 4, Pickford. BUFF (6): 1, Rennie, we could not find; 2, 3, 4, Brown, 2nd nice salmon buff, good bird; 3rd, lovely feather, fine short flights and tail; 4th, another grand bird, a really good trio. VARIEG.: 1, Rennie, even mkd. buff, beautiful frosting, showing that rich salmon tinge, we liked. HEN: 1, 4, Turner, 1st grand little lady, good head, nice short flights and tail, fine Bullfinch type; 2, James, good specimen all through; 3, Rennie, good bird, fails only in head; vhc, Brown. NOR. 1909 YELL.: 1, Pope, grand yell., variegated, well fed, beautiful gloss, best of feather; 2, Brown, another good bird, fails only in feather and col. to winner, good bird; 3, Pickford, another hot yell., good breast, splendid feather, not quite so nice in tail; 4, Miss Bulter, fine bird, nice substance; vhc, Roff and Strange; he, Bragg; No. 7, Turner, wrong class. BUFF: 1, Pope, grand feather, good head, worth being in a larger class in the same position; 2, Pickford, good wing carriage, and nice feather, fails only in size; 3, Brown, again a good bird. NOR. NOVICE CK.: 1, Trigg, well done novice, splendid yell., good head and wing carriage; 2, Master Pool, really fine bird, but fails a wee trifle in wings to winner; 3, 4, vhc, Master Pool, 3rd eye tkd. buff, will do better later on; he, West; c, Pinnell. HEN: 1, Master Pool, grand hen, plenty of substance, good head and neck, in A1 condition; 2, Pickford, fails just a wee trifle in body properties, nice one otherwise; 3, West, really good hen. YORKS. YELL.: 1, Rennie, fine long-sided bird, sweet head, well-filled back, good pipe tail; 2, Rogers, another good lengthy bird, well shown; 3, Gappy, again grand exhibit; 4, Bousfield. BUFF: 1, Pool, very nice position and lengthy, well shown; 2, Elsmore, straight as a pencil, good feather, stands like a guardsman; 3, Lang, not quite so good in position perhaps, but a grand bird; 4, Rennie, good bird, well placed; vhc, Lovell; he, Poole; c, Gappy. TKD. ETC.: 1, Lang, well mkd., variegated, very steady, grandly put down; 2, Lovell, neck-mkd. buff, grand neck, well-filled back, fine carriage; 3, Rennie, good bird, unfortunately has rather heavy thighs; 4, Holliday, nice bird, a wee bit smaller; vhc, Poole. YELL. HEN: 1, Rennie, grand hen, lovely feather, perfect flights and tail, nice carriage, very steady; 2, Lang, good long-sided hen, beaten to-day; 3, Conant, another good hen, well shown; 4, Rogers; vhc, Boyes. BUFF: 1, Holliday, lovely hen, rather small perhaps for a buff, but sweet head and good quality of feather; 2, Rennie, topping bird, well up to first; 3, Poole, heavy mkd. perhaps, but most useful stock bird; 4, Hill. YORKS. CK. 1909: 1, Rennie, proper leggy show bird, good back and position, pulls himself together grandly; 2, Elsmore, grand buff, rather shorter perhaps, but good head and neck, well cleaned out; 3, Rogers, neck-tkd. yell., grand bird; 4, Conant; vhc, Holliday; he, c, Pinnell. HEN, 1909: 1, Rennie, lovely specimen, we liked much; 2, Elsmore, better if anything in head but not quite the length of winner; 3, Conant; 4, Mrs. Stepheus. YORKS. NOVICE CK.: 1, spl, Cooper, very nice exhibit, leggy, well-filled back, grandly put down; 2, Cooper, excellent feather, well shown; 3, Boyes, nice bird all through; 4, Richards; he, Payne, bird of good position; c, Bousfield. HEN 1, Boyes, nicely mkd. hen, sweet head, well shown; 2, Cooper, clean, and straight as a pencil; 3, Stephens, good cinn. mkd. buff; 4, Turner; vhc, Boyes; he, Knight; c, Durnford, a nice class altogether. LANCS. COPPY YELL.: 1, spl, Adams, grand bird, good frontal and col., well staged; 2, spl, Edwards, nice size, not quite so good perhaps in head properties; 3, 4, Edwards. PLAINHEAD: 1, Ind, good head and feather, worth its position; 2, Adams, nice size and substance, good bird; 3, Edwards, grand exhibit all through, good 3rd; 4, Edwards. LANCS. 1909: 1, 2, 3, Ind, a grand team, 1st Yell. Plainhead, good bird, nice substance and head well browed; 2nd, good buff coppy; 3rd, better spread perhaps than 2nd; 4, Edwards. BORD. CK.: 1, Rennie, rich solid green, nice chubby, good head, nicely proportioned; 2, c, Dodge, another splendid little bird, hard to choose between these; 3, Weaver, grand little yell., but not quite so perky as previous two; 4, Weaver; vhc, King; he, Hooper. HEN: 1, Weaver, a fine bird, but some thought should have given way to next; 2, Dodge, really good bird, but somewhat badly staged, might perhaps have won; 3, King, again a good bird, nice head; vhc, Dodge; he, Hopgood; c, Hooper. BORD. NOVICE: 1, Edwards, perfect and perky little specimen, best of feather, very steady, no fault to find; 2, King, four-pointed buff, nice exhibit; 3, Hooper, grand bird. DUTCH FRILLS: 1, 2, 3, Young, really good team, 1st variegated, good feather; a claw gone; 2nd, buff, nice head frills, well wrapped, not quite the feather of winner; 4, Brooks; vhc, he, Young. A.O.V.: 1, Dart, Belg., nice bird, good feather; 2, Dart, another grand Belg., better drive than winner if anything, good 2nd; 3, Miss Price, nice Lizard, broken cap, lovely markings. SELL. Rennie, Pope, Cooper, Adams, Edwards, Hocking, Young, Stephens, and Pickford. CAGE BIRDS' special was won by Mr. Adams. The children's show of drawings of cage birds was a great attraction during the day.

NEW STEVENSTON.

Second annual show of the New Stevenston C.B.S. held in Masonic Hall, Dec. 4. Entries were about the same as last year's, but quality was good, which speaks well for local breeders. Cups were won as follows: For Scotch Fancies, by Mr. Murdoch, for Norwich Mr. Clarke, and for Borders by Mr. Wood. The President, and the Secretary, Mr. Lamb, had every detail well arranged, and to these gentlemen the credit of the event is due. The judges were Messrs. Marlin (Falkirk) and Hailstones (Wishaw).

NEWARK AND DISTRICT F.A.

The 24th annual show of cage birds was held at the Corn Exchange on November 25th. There were some grand exhibits on view, better in quality than in number, owing no doubt to the several other fixtures clashing with this. The judge's steward was Mr. W. G. Clarke, and the penning stewards Messrs. W. Ellis, W. Lidgett, T. Pulford.

STONEHOUSE, N.B.

Stonehouse C.B.S. second annual show was held in the Public Hall on December 4th. The weather was excessively cold, and the cage birds, which were staged in the main hall, suffered by the journey to the show. The competition was not as keen as might have been expected, perhaps, but this was owing to so many shows being held on the same day. But the total entry of 300 in the cage bird section was satisfactory. Scotch Fancies, unfortunately, had six classes cancelled, but the remaining three classes contained some very typical specimens. Mr. D. Holden (Muirkirk) judged this section, and his awards seemed to give satisfaction to all. Borders were a select little lot, and were ably handled by Mr. D. Hamilton (Hamilton). Norwich averaged seven per class, and the quality all-round was good, and gave Mr. J. Winter (Edinburgh) little trouble to sort out. The feature of the show was undoubtedly the British bird section, and Mr. G. Marlin (Hamilton) had his hands full picking out the winners. The office bearers were a very capable lot, led by Mr. John Whitelaw (president), and Mr. Alston (vice-president), while the secretary (Mr. J. Govan), assisted by Mr. W. Melvin, had everything in apple pie order, everything passing off without a hitch. In the afternoon the show was well patronised by the public, and we trust this, the society's second, attempt will turn out successful financially.

The Canary Classes.

CRAMLINGTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

First show held in the Co-operative Hall, on Nov. 27th, and was successfully carried out by Mr. J. R. Chestney, the secretary, and a strong working committee. The hall, which is well lighted, and heated by pipes, makes an ideal place in which to hold a show. The entries numbered 110, which was fairly satisfactory, seeing it was a club show, and the membership is under 30. After the show the members arranged for a dance, and a large patronage was the result. Through the financial success of this show it is probable that next year open classes may be arranged for. Mr. J. Gray (Bedlington Station) judged.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

Great Horton O.S. annual open show held on December 4th, in the large room of the Congregational Schools, under the rules of the Yorkshire Union and the patronages of the Y.C.C., C.M.Y.C.C., N.C.M.Y.C.C. The room is one of the very best, with plenty of space and light. A good schedule had been issued, with 28 classes and a grand list of specials, which resulted in a total entry of 515, an average per class of over 18—truly a good response. In the champion section, Messrs. Ogden Bros. secured special for most points, Mr. J. Bailey being second, Mr. W. H. Shackleton third, and Messrs. Thornton and Bower fourth. Mr. W. Richmond secured special for most points in novice cinn. mkd. classes, and in selling classes Messrs. Jennings and Robinson and Sharp tied for most entries. Messrs. Thomas, Ball, and Swales were placed first, second, and third respectively in the novice section, the medal for best bird in this section being secured by Mr. Fowle. The management is in capable hands, with the Secretary (Mr. J. Holroyd) at their head, ably assisted by Messrs. Mann (President), Barraclough, Jennings, Dean, Ormonroyd, Hainsworth, Simonett, Benn, Morley, Stansfield, and others. Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield) was the judge elected by the Union, and he officiated on all open Yorkshire classes and the Norwich novice classes, Mr. W. Cruise taking the Yorkshire novice classes and the two selling classes.

AMBLE.

The Amble and Dist. C.B.S. held their 2nd annual show in the Church Schools, Queen Street, on November 27th. Here we were introdnced to a young novice society, and the management deserve great praise for the way they conducted their show. They had a grand hall tastefully decorated with evergreens and chrysanthemums etc., which gave the hall a very attractive appearance; there were also many nice pot plants on view, and many open shows would look much nicer by taking a pattern from this one. At intervals during the afternoon we were entertained by Mr. A. Ashton to gramaphone selections. Mr. Cracket, the secretary, had everything well in band, while in Mr. Whittle they have a good treasurer. The committee aro a friendly, homely lot of fanciers. Mr. Anthony Hay (Berwick) judged, and we heard no criticism.

HASLAND (nr. Chesterfield)

The second annual show of the Hasland, Grassmoor, and Dis. C.B.F.S. was held on December 4th in the Assembly Rooms. This proved a much better show than the society has ever before had. A very liberal classification was given for Norwich and Yorkshires. The latter did not come up quite as they were expected, but the Norwich were a splendid lot for both numbers and quality. The unflighted buff class was extra strong, many good birds having to stand down to cards only. The Hardbill class was one of the best in the show; and what a fine show of Bullfinches there was in this class. The winner was a really good one, as well as the second Hawfinch, this being shown in perfect feather. We think this society hardly gets the support it is worthy of, as the management is all that could be desired. The birds were grandly staged, and all could be seen at a glance. The officials, we hear, are now applying for a Cage Bird Union licence, and we hope in future they will have a much larger entry. The room is a splendid place for a show of the kind, and that ideal secretary, Mr. C. H. Naylor, had everything well in hand and cards up as soon as the slips were handed in. The committee is a small one of true fanciers in Messrs. L. Goucher (chairman), W. G. Naylor, G. Wilson, G. Gee, F. Gill, C. H. Baker, E. Dowson. Mr. W. Vardy judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. Judging was over early, and catalogues with awards were on sale in good time. Mr. Gee won special best Yorkshire.

HARROGATE.

Harrogate C.B.S. held their annual open show in the Y.M.C.A. Lecture Hall. The birds were well staged and looked after by a fine lot of stewards, and the society are fortunate in having such capable men as Mr. Duncan (chairman) and Mr. Barnwell (secretary), who look after arrangements wonderfully well in hand, and were most obliging. The society had the patronage of the Y.C.B.H. and M.C., whose members' birds made quite a show in themselves, which was greatly admired by the visitors, who turned up well in the afternoon. Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington) judged, and his awards were well received. The show was in every way well arranged, and the society deserves to prosper. Mr. W. H. Shackleton won spl for most points; Mr. H. Robinson, Hyde's and spl for best novice's bird; Mr. W. Ascough, Sandiford's and the Barnwell challenge cup for most points gained by three nominated birds. All birds were in the hands of the railway company by seven o'clock, and prize money was paid to the successful exhibitors attending the show.

ELLESMERE.

Eighth annual show held Nov. 11 in the Market Hall, when the cage bird section proved not the least attractive. Mr. F. Roberts, the secretary, had the arrangements well in hand, and was ably assisted by genuine fanciers. Mr. Ledwith judged.

YORKS.: 1, P. V. Williams; 2, 3, Brotherhood. NOR.: 1, 2, P. V. Williams; 3, Giles. GOLDFINCH, BRIT.: 1, Castle; 2, r. Hughes; 3, P. V. Williams. A.O.S. BRIT.: 1, P. V. Williams; 2, Brotherhood; 3, Mrs. Cotton.

COCKERMOUTH.

Fifth exhibition of the Cockermouth and Dis. F.S. took place on December 3rd and 4th. The tweed mill in which the show was held is in everyway suitable for a show of this description, being roomy, well lighted, and within a few minutes' walk from the railway station. The officials consist of Messrs. H. Oglethorpe (chairman), T. Crowe, W. P. Dearon, J. Ellwood, J. Fulcon, W. Gorley, H. Rennicks, J. Jackson, R. Jennings, J. Lindsay, R. Litt, H. Harrison, A. J. Rea, F. Wright, J. Simon, J. Henderson, Jos. Jackson, W. M. Walker, J. J. Lennox, S. Barnes, J. Wilkinson, R. Crozier, J. Little, and J. Millington, and Mr. E. Limb, the capital secretary. No detail, either for the comfort of exhibits, the benefit of exhibitors, or the visiting public (who turned up well) appeared to be too small to escape the eyes of the officials, who one and all worked well. Most courteous and obliging in every way possible, we trust their efforts met with the success they well deserved. A new scale of prize-money was adopted here, viz., classes of from 4 to 6 entries, 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s. 6d.; from 7 to 9, 8s., 4s., 2s.; of 10 or over, 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s. 6d. Judging from opinions expressed by exhibitors we talked with, this appeared to meet with approval. Borders, a favourite variety here, were well represented, all the principal local exhibitors having teams forward. Several exhibits in the Green class were, we understood, passed as having been colour fed. We think, however, that Cinnamon blood is largely responsible for the colour of these specimens. Such are the ups and downs of natural colour classes. Yorks. were grand in quality, and the British were a nice show. The Foreign were the best and most attractive class seen round this district this season. Judge, Mr. H. W. Battye (Huddersfield), whose awards were well received.

MILNGAVIE, N.B.

Milngavie, Bearsden and Dis. O.S. held their annual open show in the Burgh Hall on 4th December. President, Mr. P. Fenwick; treasurer, Mr. G. Henderson, committee of management, Messrs. R. Ogg, J. Lillie, R. Michie, W. Brown, T. Blair, A. Lillie, D. McNicoll, and J. Stewart; secretary, Mr. Maxwell Frame. Cage birds in numbers were much in excess of last year's, but some expected an even larger entry considering the generous classification. What was there certainly made a very nice display indeed, the birds being of excellent quality. Norwich were a good lot, the Borders nice, and the Mules, light and dark, and Hybrids, included some very fine birds. The hall has splendid light, and was well warmed. The show proved a success, and a source of great pleasure and interest to the large crowd of visitors who patronised the show during the afternoon. Secretary Maxwell Frame had everything in really capital order, backed up by an able committee, courteous and obliging, and ready to do anything for visitors and fanciers alike. The awards, about which very little grumbling was heard, were placed by Messrs. J. McLay and T. McCreadie.

MIDDLETON.

The old town of Middleton, in close proximity to Manchester, Rochdale, and Oldham, was again honoured by the cage bird fanciers connected with the Middleton Society, holding their tenth annual exhibition in the Assembly Room at the Co-op Hall. The room is an improvement on their last venture, being nicely heated and ventilated, and free from draughts. A long list of specials was allotted, and the extra ones were won by:—Messrs. Turner (two) for best Lancs., and L.C.A. medal for best vhc; Hampshire, for best Liz. Mr. Rukin won "R.P."; Sharples, medal for best coloured (Sandiford's). The cup was won by Mr. Adams, with his fine team of Lancashires. The officials were ever busy attending to the various wants, ably led by Messrs. Oldham (secretary), Thomas, Wagstaffe, and Taylor. The judges, Messrs. Croft (Bradford), and Hardy (Oldham), were set very hard tasks in some of the varieties, as the quality was very good.

A Library For Bird-Lovers.

Brief particulars of some of "Cage Birds" SPECIAL PUBLICATIONS for keepers of birds, with post free prices.

THE HYGIENE OF BIRD-KEEPING, 1/1.—By W. Geo. Creswell, M.D. Thoroughly treats of modern hygiene (the science of health) in bird-keeping.

SEPTIC FEVER OR CANARY PLAGUE, 7d.—By R. H. Clarke, M.D. The only booklet published concerning this dread disease, which Dr. Clarke has given very special study.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEAD CANARY, 1½d.—By J. H. Payne. Pronounced by all experts to be a most valuable pamphlet concerning the breeding of the variety; written by one of our leading judges.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

MEATING-OFF AND FEEDING SOFTBILLS, 6½d.—By John Frostick. No fancier of Insectivorous Birds who wishes to succeed in his hobby can afford to be without a copy. It also contains notes on Bird Trapping, Cages, etc.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockatoels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives very full details upon how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds. Replete with useful hints.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds; full of extremely valuable hints.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3½d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages, and many invaluable "Hints for Emergencies."

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book many times over.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and illustrations from photographs. Another charming gift book.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and 12 words of description, 250 2/-, 500 2/6, carriage paid.

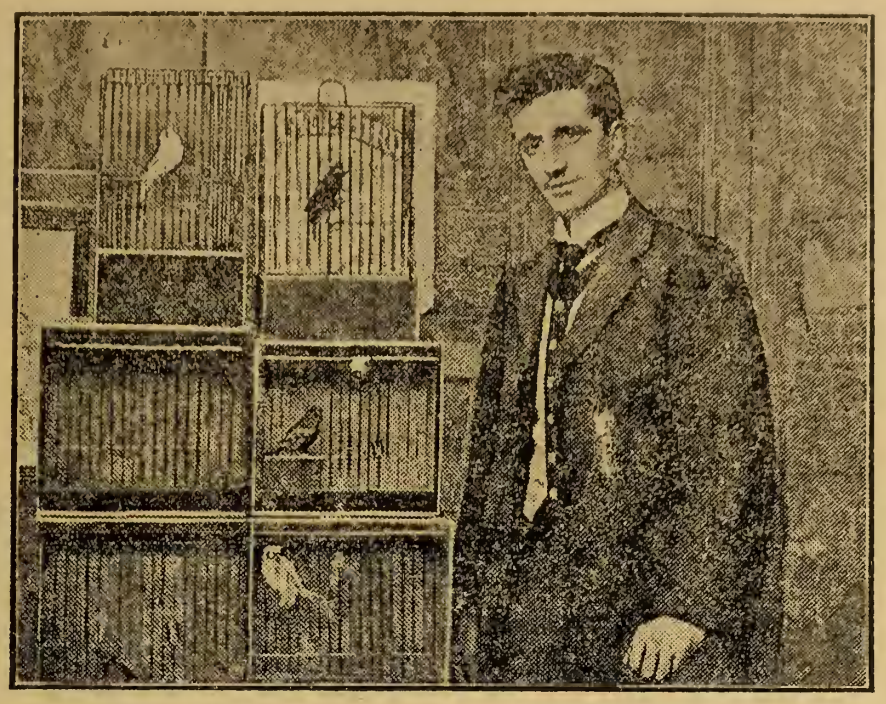
Under the White Rose.



SHOW of the Great Horton O.S. held on Saturday last, was a decided success. The entries came up exceedingly well, totalling 515 in the 28 classes provided, averaging over 18 per class, and this for a show in December and the 10th in the season, must be taken as highly satisfactory, and the financial side should come out all right. Practically all classes came up well (with the exception of green-marked buff hens, which only contained 8 birds), with the two selling classes an easy first in regard to numbers, no less than 76 birds being entered therein, with novice Yorkshires in close attendance—148 entries for 6 classes, an average of over 24 per class.

HARROGATE Show, held on Saturday last, did not come up anywhere near expectations. Twenty-two classes were provided, and the entries only reached the total of 296, slightly over 13 per class, and where 24s. 6d. per class prize money is provided this cannot be called exactly good, and it is hoped that another year better support will be given this enterprising society, who always take good care that birds from a distance are off in time to reach home on the Saturday night. British were the feature of the show, the entries being good in this section, and some grand birds on view, providing visitors, especially non-fanciers, with something to really interest them; and the fact that the show was held under the patronage of the Y.C.B.B. and M.C. probably had much to do with the entries received, the members having exhibited no less than 47 birds in the 6 classes.

MANY fanciers have been enquiring this last week or two if the half-time score for the competitions of the various clubs were again to be published in this column; but having got into hot water with societies who have to hold their shows after half-time, I don't know whether to risk it or not. I don't like hot water, an' I don't like cold water being thrown on me; I like it just "aired" sufficient to feel just nice and pleasant. But, as I have before me the points of the Y.C.C. up to and including Huddersfield, I will risk it, and I hope no society will think my doing so will cause any fancier not to send entries, but that it will cause some to enter more birds. Notes from Erin.

THE Y.C.C. at a recent committee meeting declined to grant their patronage to the N.P. Club's forthcoming show. The reason given is the lack of support by Norwich fanciers at the recent Y.C.C. Show. But will such action help to further the progress of our hobby?

I AM informed that the Great Northern Railway Company have charged usual rates for birds returning from the two recent Dublin Shows, although the usual indemnity forms were stamped and duly signed by exhibitors, and submitted to the secretaries. I think I heard it mentioned that a similar thing occurred at Banbridge. Perhaps the secretaries concerned will take the necessary steps to have the matter cleared up on behalf of their members, and thus put a stop to the risk of having birds "held" by railway companies until their demands are paid.

ULSTER O.A. held a very successful Show on Friday and Saturday last. It is a pity that some other days cannot be arranged, as Friday and Saturday will not suit fanciers at a distance in consequence of their exhibits having to remain away for four days. They cannot get their birds returned until Monday. If shows were fixed for Wednesday and Thursday, I believe the entries would be well increased.

GREAT trouble and inconvenience have been caused by the mismanagement in dispatching birds from some of the shows held recently. Although one show closed at 10 p.m. on Friday evening, the birds were not dispatched until next evening, and birds arrived at their destination much the worse for their journey. At another show, although it was distinctly stated in schedule that birds would be dispatched by 5 o'clock on Saturday evening, so as to arrive at their destination by last train, some were not dispatched until the 10 p.m. train, and I know one or two fanciers who had to get out of their warm beds and meet the train arriving at 3 a.m. on Sunday morning in order to avoid having their birds locked up in their cases on the railway company's premises until Monday morning. At another show I know of birds being packed for an evening train, but the carter did not turn up to bring them to railway in time, hence the birds had to remain until next morning. All these little things prove that somewhat better management is essential if committees wish to obtain good support from fanciers at a distance. Avoid causing all this trouble, anxiety and inconvenience to exhibitors. I know at least one man who will not be in a hurry to rise out of a comfortable bed and proceed a couple of miles on a cold frosty night so as to meet his cases at 3 a.m.

A RUMOUR is in circulation that Mr. Birse, of Dublin, lost a Yorkshire at Dundalk recent show. This is not correct. Mr. Birse did not lose a bird, and the originator of this erroneous statement would do well to carefully investigate such matters before he gives them publicity.

*The Sparrow's Diet.

"I'm only a little Sparrow,
A bird of low degree;
My life is of little value,
But there's One who cares for me.

Though my meal is sometimes scanty,
Close picking makes it sweet;
I have only a Sparrow's portion,
And life is more than meat."

Copied and sent by Mildred Hacking (age 9), 102, Bold Street, Accrington.

* Bird's Nest in a Church.

A bird built its nest immediately above the hymn board on one of the pillars in the church at Lumsden, and during worship the congregation could see the mother endeavouring to teach the young how to fly. The young birds were hatched out in the church. The nest was not disturbed, and the bird never seemed frightened during the services.—Sent by Nettie Sharpe (age 10), Cora Linn, Union Street, Motherwell.

A Nest in a Bucket.

One day two brothers were shown a family of young Pied Wagtails inside an inverted cattle-feeding bucket, which had been worn out and thrown away. The parent birds entered and left by the hole in the bottom of the upturned utensil. A few days afterwards they happened to pass that way with the camera and were just in the nick of time to get the whole family of five chicks sitting outside waiting for their parents to bring them a supply of flies.—Sent by D. T. Dyer (age 14), Mountain Hare, Penceed, near Bridgend.

 A Frightened Sparrow.

One morning when my neighbour had come downstairs to light her fire, she noticed a little Sparrow in the corner of the fireplace. It must have come down the chimney, for it was covered with soot. She was frightened, and came and asked me to catch it, which I did. The Sparrow was afraid I was going to hurt it, and it quickly flew away when I took it to the door.—Sent by Fred Hewitt (age 10), 12, Knowsley Road, Norwich.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Post cards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES.

Dietetics.

Canariensis.—(1) For Hartz Mountain Canaries, or any other variety of German under other names, give a mixture of two parts canary to one part summer rape seed as a staple. Twice a week give separately half a teaspoonful per bird of mixed seed. The elaborate mixtures put up in packets do well enough for this purpose, or you may make a mixture of one part each of hemp and inga and a half part each of teazle, maw, gold of pleasure, and millet, with the lenst sprinkling of linseed among the bulk. Once a week give a little bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, which may be varied with a small teaspoonful of egg food, crushed sponge cake, or crushed plain biscuit, from time to time. Three or four times a week give a little green food, or sweet fruit when green stuff is not in a fit condition for use. (2) Yorkshires kept as song birds may also be treated as above, with the single exception that the staple mixture is altered to three parts of Canary to one of summer rape. Probably the seed mixture you use contains too large a quantity of linseed, which is responsible for the diarrhoea. Give the birds a pinch of Epsom salts in the water for two days, and after that give six drops of tincture of gentian and two of tincture of opium in the water until the looseness is stopped.

All Astray.

A Novice.—Even though only a novice, had you read CAGE BIRDS carefully for only a very short period you must have discovered that you have gone very far wrong in the management of your birds. The feeding is of the worst description for the season, and it is certainly a rather late date to ask when you should separate the pair. The birds ought to have been separated about four months ago, and kept separate all through the moult, and right on until next March or April, when they should have been ready to mate again for next season. Separate them at once. As regards the diet, put them on plain canary seed only as a staple, and every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape to each bird. This may be given in the egg drawer. On one other day each week give a similar quantity of a mixture of hemp, maw, inga, and millet, in about equal parts, and once a week give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, or its equivalent in bread and milk. It would be best to avoid egg food altogether for the remainder of the winter, seeing the birds have had such a liberal dosing with it already. In the drinking water give six drops each of syrup of buckthorn and syrup of rhubarb every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. You would perhaps be well advised to get "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d., post free, from our manager. Give green food when available, free from frost, three or four times a week.

Norwich Hen Wrong.

D. Hope, Tollcross.—The hen is probably exposed to too great variations in the kitchen. Keep the cage well away from the fire and burning lights in the evenings, where the temperature will be as equable as possible. At the same time, see that it is quite out of reach of draughts. See that the cage is quite free from red mites; and keep it nicely strewn with clean gritty sand. Feed on plain canary seed only as a staple, and give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it. Twice a week give a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts inga, linseed, and gold of pleasure, and three or four times a week a spray of watercress, or, if this is not to be had free from frost, give daily a ripe grape with the skin broken, or a bit of banana. Continue this feeding for a month. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubard and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence two days in every three for a week. After this give six drops tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid for three or four days, and finally give twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills, and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight.

Loss of Voice.

W.W.—You have probably exposed the bird to draughts or a severe chill during the moult. Now your first step is to see that it is placed in a cosy position; not overheated, nor yet on the cold side; where it will be as free as possible from variations of temperature, and perfectly free from all draughts. At the same time you must see that the position is well ventilated, so that the bird has plenty of fresh pure air to breathe. Feed it as advised to another querist for Rollers, under "Dietetics." In addition give a mealworm daily for a time if the bird will eat them; otherwise stick a bit of fat boiled bacon between the wires for it to peck at. Also make a little paste by well mixing as much chlorate of potash as will cover a shilling in a teaspoonful of honey, add five or six drops of salad oil, and reduce all to a soft paste with a little finely powered biscuit. Give a piece the size of a pea each day stuck on the wire at the end of a perch. In the drinking water give five drops each of glycerine, oxymel of squills, and tincture of lobelia, and two drops of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a fortnight. If the voice is not considerably better by that time write again and refer to this reply.

Which is the Way, etc.

A. J. W.—(1) I doubt whether either sex possesses peculiar advantages in reproducing singing powers in the progeny. Certain it is that hens of a really good singing strain are quite as essential as the best class of cocks for producing the best songsters. But in your own case, were you to wish to cross Rollers with Norwich, the best way is to mate Roller cocks with Norwich hens. The advantage, as you must see at once when pointed out, lies not so much in the sex of the breeds as in the fact that the young cocks will hear only the Roller's song from their earliest days, and thus escape corruption by hearing Norwich cocks singing whilst they are being reared. (2) This bird is probably an extremely high-strung, nervous specimen, and its strange behaviour when you do anything about its cage is due to excessive fright. It may die almost instantaneously in any one of these attacks. The only thing you can do with it is to gradually teach it that your presence near its cage is solely concerned with its own benefit—tame it, in fact. Be very quiet, methodical, and gentle in all your movements about, or near it, frequently "tweeting" to it until you have got it to respond to your challenge; offering a tiny tit-bit of some dainty every time you go near, such as a grain or two of hemp or inga, or a bit of green food or sweet fruit. Once the ice is broken you will find it soon becomes quite tame, and in no way afraid of your visits. Keeping it in a smaller cage—a singing cage—will help towards attaining this object. Medicines are useless in such cases, but you might see that it does not become constipated.

Norwich Cock Unwell.

G.P.M.—I suspect the bird is suffering from digestive trouble as well as chronic diarrhœa. Friar's Balsam is practically useless when added to water. Keep the cage and perches quite clean, and it would be a useful aid in this direction to cover the floor with pine sawdust, which you should remove daily and burn at once while the diarrhœa lasts. Give a supply of gritty sand in a small tin or saucer. See that all your seeds are above suspicion, and if your water supply has not the same desirable reputation well boil all before using. Feed on plain canary seed only as staple, and give separately every second day a small teaspoonful of summer rape seed, and a small piece of ripe banana. On the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and a few grains of hemp, or a pinch of maw. Limit the diet to this for a fortnight, and give no green food during the time. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for two days, and after this give six drops of tincture of gentian, four of aromatic sulphuric acid, and a piece of gum arabic the size of a split pea for a few days until looseness is stopped. Stir the latter until gum is dissolved. If this does not stop diarrhœa in two or three days omit the acid from the last mixture, and substitute four drops of tincture of opium for one day.

Various.

P.I.C.A.—(1) Although you do not state the cause of the bad plumage, as you say you discovered it when you took the newly acquired cage in pieces, I suspect it was red mites. Secondhand cages are always to be looked upon with suspicion unless you are fully acquainted with their history. Keep an eye on this cage now, and take immediate steps to thoroughly clear it of mites as soon as any reappear. To get the hen in condition feed on plain canary seed as staple, and give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day; once a week a pinch of a mixture of hemp and niger, and a scrap of green food when in fit condition, or a bit of ripe sweet fruit two or three times a week. Every second day for the next fortnight, on days when you are not giving rape, give a small piece of bread and milk, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. After this period reduce it to once a week, and omit the oil and sugar. Twice a week for a month give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid in the water. (2) This bird is either exposed to draught or great fluctuation. Remedy these defects. Keep it comfortably warm, but do not overdo it. Feed same as above for a fortnight. In the water give twenty drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week, and every second day for another week. Stop the Friar's Balsam, which is of little use in water. (3) As this bird seems in such good health and spirits I certainly would not trouble about its not moulting. By no means try to force such a bird to moult. (4) By all means stick closely to your friend's advice and do not give egg food as long as you can do well without it. If the birds were really reared upon dried flies, ants' eggs, and biscuit, they should be quite able to rear their young in turn upon similar pabulum, and will be quite familiar with this class of food. If it serves you equally well do not let anyone persuade you to forsake it for the orthodox egg food with all its risks and dangers.

Difficulty in Breathing.

S.O.H. (Bramstone).—It is difficult to understand the cause of the one hen having this difficulty in breathing, and constantly sneezing if, as you say, she is really out of all draughts. The fact that another hen in the same cage seems quite healthy does not, of necessity, prove the non-existence of draughts. She may be a younger bird, or not naturally so susceptible to cold as the other one. Being in a warm kitchen, where there are probably very great fluctuations of heat, is also a highly predisposing cause of such an affection. You must either place the birds well away from the fire, where the temperature will be the most equable, or remove them to another room, where they will not be so much exposed to variations. Do not, however, place them in a very cold room all at once, after being in the warm kitchen. Be quite sure that draughts and chills are quite avoided, and do not allow this bird to bathe, save in quite mild weather, until the return of spring. Feed on a staple of plain canary seed. Every second day give a small teaspoonful of summer rape between the two birds, and on two other days each week a few grains only of a mixture of hemp and niger, and once a week give a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. Three or four times a week give a scrap of green food (when safe to use) or a bit of ripe banana. You may feed both birds alike, but it would be as well to separate them for the medical treatment, and give the ailing bird in its drinking water twenty drops of whisky, six each of oxymel of squills, and tincture of lobelia, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, every second day for a week or fortnight, as may appear necessary.

Brevities.

Mating Query (N. T. C.).—It is quite impossible to give a definite answer to your query as it stands. It depends not only upon the way Cinnamon and Green hens have been bred, but also upon the object you have in view, and what you wish to produce. If you will write again, and tell me what is your object, and also, if known, what was the colour of the parents and grandparents of these hens, I shall be pleased to do all I can to help you.

Seed Sample (J. R. Afonwen).—The only good quality of the seed sent is that it is quite sweet and free from mustiness. It is very small, and judging from the appearance of sample I should expect the bulk to contain an unusual quantity of foreign matter, and damaged grains, and perhaps the latter may indicate the work of mice. On the whole, it is not a very desirable sample, especially at the price named.

Stray Feathers (Boyer).—See that your bird which continues to cast a stray feather now and again is not subject to extremes of heat and cold. It is not necessary to keep it very warm, but it must be fairly equable, and quite free from draughts. In addition to the present diet give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give a few grains only of hemp and a morsel of ripe banana. In the drinking water give five drops of tincture of steel every second day for a week.

Clicking Noise (Spiviuix).—If the bird appears quite healthy in other respects, I think you have no need whatever to worry about this clicking noise. Many perfectly healthy birds make it. You might give it an extra supply of green food if it is at all constipated, or failing that, a saline aperient for a day or two. If there should appear any signs of slight catarrh, you might swab out the mouth with a little glyco-thymoline, if this preparation is handy, or otherwise give twenty drops of whisky and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, in the drinking water, for a day or two.

Breed to Take Up (Stockaree).—Before you could hope to turn out really good trained singers, if you take up Rollers you would certain require a good schoolmaster—one is absolutely essential, but at least two are advisable, to provide against the possibility of one going out of song for moulting when his services were most necessary to teach the young. A bird organ is very useful for helping in the course of tuition, but it is not really essential, if you possess two or three really good singing cocks to act as schoolmasters. It is a base slander upon the birds to say that Lizards will never rear their own young. They are no worse in this respect than most fancy varieties, and not nearly so bad as some of them. As a matter of fact, I have known breeders of some highly-bred varieties use Lizards as foster parents, thus running two fancy varieties at once, instead of one fancy and a few commons. Of course, you might expect to find some bad feeders among Lizards, just as you will in every breed, but all are not bad.

Canaries for Palace Aviary (Nancy).—It would be most inadvisable to introduce pairs of Canaries in your Palace aviary to keep simply as pets. They might agree well for a few weeks, but when spring begins to turn their fancies to thoughts of love, then the troubles will arise thick and fast, and no good would probably come of their attempts at perpetuating the species. By having all bachelors they will agree better upon the whole, though they will doubtless have an occasional "scrum" in the spring, which, however, will be no more serious than using threatening language to one another. Instead of having two each of Norwich and Yorkshire, you might have a greater variety by making it one each of Norwich, Yorkshire, and Lizards, and either a Crest, Cinnamon, or Green.

Unflighted (Laurence).—This is the term used to indicate that a bird of the year has not had its flights—i.e., the long quill feathers in its wings—forcibly extracted at its first moult. Canaries do not naturally drop these feathers, nor the tail feathers, until the second moult, and it used to be customary to extract them at the first moult in colour fed varieties, in order that they might be reproduced in a colour to match the rest of the plumage. This was termed tailing and flighting. Now, happily, the custom is much less common, and birds not treated in this way are termed unflighted.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., etc.

Parrot with Deformed Quills.

Booth.—If you will give me further particulars, I can possibly give you definite help. As it is, I can only advise you to put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia to each ounce of its drinking water every third day, till, say, four doses have been given, and on the days you are not giving the magnesia well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this indefinitely. If the bird is very weak, a few sips of weak brandy and water (chilled) at intervals during the day will be a good stimulant. The diet should be—seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, little plain biscuit, grit in cage tray, and a piece of clean cuttle-fish continually hanging in the cage. There are two possible causes—improper diet and your cages possibly infected by other birds which have died; give me full particulars, and I will try and suggest a definite remedy. From the distorted quills I take it your birds are Greys.

Importing Grey Parrots.

Joyce.—Most certainly I should say it was possible for you to bring a cage or cages of Grey Parrots over, whenever your nephew is visiting this country; the difficulty is in getting them in decent condition from the natives, providing you obtain such, do not overcrowd the cages; keep them in a sanitary condition, and given regular attention as to food, etc., with reasonable protection from inclement weather during the voyage; they ought to arrive here in good condition. I cannot give you the name of a dealer over there; your nephew should be best able to do that on the spot. His best method would be to get some native to catch them for him, and have them under his own care for a few weeks before they are shipped over. You should then have a good prospect of receiving the consignment in decent condition. The freight varies, being biggest on mail boats and the like, on some of which it is as much as 20s. per cage, though you can bring over a good sized cage for this amount, containing a number of birds. The various shipping offices would give you freight and size of cage permitted for a given rate on application.

Show Cage, etc., for Cardinals.

Reynard.—As regards style of cage—as you wish to make it yourself, and being, I take it, an amateur—I should advise your having it quite plain, finishing the case off very smoothly, purchasing a wire front from one of our advertisers (wires ½in. apart), and enamelling the outside black and the interior pale sage-green; and the result should be a really handsome and neat cage. Size of cage, 16in. long, 11in. deep by 12in. high, with the usual perches, so placed as to prevent the bird damaging its head plumes against top, or its tail feathers against bottom of cage. Diet: Canary, white millet, and a few sunflower seeds, ripe fruit, few mealworms or other insects, and a little, providing it will take it, of some good soft food mixture, several of which are advertised in our columns. From your description I should say you have an exceptionally good specimen, the purity of the white of the undersurface most certainly being in its favour.

Breeding Foreigners in Cages.

Enquirer.—(1) It should be possible to breed all those you name in cages, but excepting the Bengalese and Zebra Finches, it is doubtful if you will have much success with ordinary size breeding cages. Wild species are not like the domesticated Canary, and need more space for exercise to bring them into breeding condition and to give them the inclination to do so—in confined quarters, even if they lay and hatch out, they but seldom trouble to fully rear the young. (2) As you will see from the above, I can only recommend you 20in. cages for the Bengalese and Zebra Finches; your flights would do for the White Javas, but the cages I advise you to prepare would be 2½ft. long, 1½ft. deep, by 1½ft. high. Such will give you ample space for twigy branches and screened nesting sites—all that is required is just plain boxes with netting fronts—in such, given acclimatised birds, you should have a good measure of success, not merely with those you name, but also with Grassfinches, such as Long and Rufous-tailed. Under such conditions the birds should thrive, many young may be successfully reared, and the birds a source of continual pleasure and interest.

Parrot with Cold.

Fairburn.—You give me but little chance to give you definite advice. Spray or cleanse the nostrils twice daily with diluted glyco-thymoline; also get from your chemist the following mixture: Ipecacuanha wine, oxymel of squills, and glycerine in equal parts. For use take a teaspoonful of the mixture and two of water, well mix, and see that the bird gets a few sips three or four times a day until the cold yields. While giving the above remove water from cage, only letting it have a drink as required, or it may refuse the mixture. Soak a piece of biscuit, or, rather, soak into a piece of biscuit, one teaspoonful Dinneford's magnesia; let it become partly dry, and then supply to the bird. This can be given as often as may be necessary to keep its bowels moving freely, but the voidings must not be allowed to continue watery. If you will inform me what kind of Parrot it is, how you have been dieting, and where you keep it, I can possibly be more definite.

Brevity.

Parrot with Overgrown Beak (Grantham).—Yes, the beak must be clipped, but do not cut so far back as to make it bleed—the nail scissors should answer for the purpose. Keep a piece or pieces of wood, cotton reels, etc., in its cage, for it to chew up; also a hard lump of mortar rubbish; it will then keep its beak ground down without aid from you in the future, but in its present state it must be cut back, and the above provision should prevent a recurrence. It is an Amazon, very probably the Yellow-fronted.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. Weston.

Treatment, etc., of Crossbill.

D. R. Gibson and Phœnix.—Crossbills seem quite plentiful and popular this year. Your bird may be given for seed, sunflower, hemp, and canary-seed and for animal food three or four mealworms daily, with any other live insects you can get, according to season. A few berries (haw, privet, black, and so on), also the core and pips of apples, smashed nuts of various kinds (walnuts, crack nuts, etc.), and fruit are relished. Offer him any of the other seeds or seed mixtures in general use now and again; also small maize, dari, wheat, and the like. Sometimes he will eat a little, and variety is good. The Crossbill has no standard show-cage. A box pattern one, about 16ins. long by 14 high, by 8 wide, would answer admirably, enamelled inside, and wires cream colour, or a very pale blue. The food and water vessels should be inside, and the wires should be one inch wide. Any up-to-date cage maker (see our advertisement columns) would supply you with a cage in every way suitable.

Keeping a Thrush.

Novice, T.C.—Apparently you did not read last week's Cage Birds thoroughly, for in it I told a querist how his Magpie should he fed. Could you look this up? As regards your Thrush, the very cheapest satisfactory way of feeding Thrushes, Blackbirds, etc., is to get a bag of some good brand of puppy meal, or dog meal, such as Spratt's, or Clarke's "Melox," from a corn dealer's, soften this with hot water, then mix into it some good maker's packet Thrush food (dry). The latter, used dry, will absorb any superfluous moisture; it should leave the finished food just crumbly moist. You will soon find the right quantity of each to use for the daily supply (it must be made fresh daily), and find it very cheap, too. You will, of course, also be using the dog-meal for the Magpie; he can have all the largest pieces. Variety is good, of course, and you should give some vegetable or green food with it frequently, such as grated raw carrot, or finely-chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, or cold boiled potato. Vary them frequently, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake, or half a hard-boiled egg, finely minced up, occasionally. Give some mealworms daily, and any other live insects you can lay hands on, also ripe fruit and berries frequently, and according to season. "Blackbeetles" are very much relished, likewise snails, by the Thrush tribe. Such a varied menu will keep any Thrush or Blackbird and the like, in grand health and song, provided it has a good, large cage, hung in a suitable position, and kept thoroughly clean.

A Pet Chaffinch.

Non-such.—Am inclined to think I answered your query a week or two ago, but can't verify this at time of writing. Yes; by all means give a bath frequently when the weather is suitable, but not necessarily daily (in any weather, that is). As a staple seed mixture give the following: Canary and teazle four parts each, summer rape, charlock and linseed one part each. In addition, give a good feed of white sunflower seed or safflower seed daily; or put one part amongst the stock mixture. Smashed walnuts (and other nuts) are greatly relished, also, and should be given occasionally as a special treat.

British Bird Querists should purchase our "British Bird Manual," published in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills," price 1/- each, or in cloth cover together, 2/3 post free.

A small feed of hemp can be given once a week. Give a mealworm or two every day, varying same with flies, grubs, earwigs, and occasional spiders, aphides, scoured gentles, wasp grubs, live ants' eggs, etc., as obtainable. Chaffinches will eat most kinds of live food. These birds will peck over a sprig of shepherd's purse, chickweed, groundsel, etc. Radish, turnip, and summer rape seedlings are usually eagerly devoured, too, when just sprouting, which they soon do when it is soaked in cold water. Keep the bird in a box cage, hanging about breast high in a room wherein people are constantly moving about. This is the best position to help to make him quite steady.

A Fine Goldfinch.

Bordman.—Am delighted to hear you have bought such a fine Goldfinch through our advertisement columns at so reasonable a price, and have a good word for the dealers. Let the stock food be good, sound teazle and old hemp, three parts of each, Canary two parts, and linseed one part. In a separate dish give a dessertspoonful of cracked sunflower seed occasionally, with a good pinch of maw and niger seeds now and again, as a further change. A little wild seed mixture is also excellent. The bird should have (when obtainable) a free daily supply of knapweed, thistle heads (especially any with tiny maggots at the centre), milk thistle, seeding chickweed, groundsel, and shepherd's purse (not the coarse leaves), any cornflower heads which you can get full of seed—all, or any, of these are liked by the Goldie, when in season, and help to get him through his moult in exhibition form. Many like a tiny white mealworm (just cast its skin) or two now and again. He should have provision for a bath whenever he feels inclined to take it. That he should bathe freely is important. If the bird is not thoroughly on seed, run his stock mixture through a hemp mill before offering it to him. This will lightly crack it. Failing a mill, run domestic rolling-pin (or a jam jar) over it.

Brevities.

What Bird? (Carrick).—Your bird is a hen Reed Bunting. It is not much use giving mixed seeds, for they eat very little other than Canary-seed (as no doubt you have already found out). Offer a little soft food now and again, and a mealworm or two.

Another Stranger (Berwyn).—The yellowish bird with the crossed mandibles which you picked up after it had collided with the telegraph wires, is a Crossbill (probably a hen). For food, note another reply given this week. Crossbills have no song in the true sense of the term.

Birdroom Windows (Beginner).—I am certainly in favour of roof lights, providing they are quite weather-proof. I prefer obscured glass, however (it can be whitened inside) if there is any chance of cats prowling over the roof; and in any case it is often necessary to keep out the sun-rays. You should arrange a window in the wall facing south; or have glass panels in the door, if this is in centre of wall.

Black Feathers (T. H. D.).—It is not easy to account for the suddenly acquired roughness (or slackness) of the feathers at side of breast. Can the bird have been injured in its travels to the shows? If no trace of this, I should give the bird a band-wash (with soap and water), and carefully "groom" the obstreperous feathers into their former position.

A Damaged Toe (A Young Beginner).—It is a pity the Jay lost the nail, for most judges handicap to a certain extent any bird defective in fect. But it would not prevent him getting first prize if so good a bird that he stands well ahead of his competitors in other points. Very, very few judges would "throw a bird out of competition" for such a trifling and purely accidental defect. Glad to hear he does so well on the diet I recommend.

Mule Breeding, Etc. (Spivhnx).—Your Mule breeding plans read all O.K. I wish you luck. To get the Linnet into song, try the "tit bit" mixture for Finches which I recommended to a querist last week. I should have thought any steady, house moulted Linnet would have been singing now, with the moult well over. Did the bird sing before? If not, it may be a hen. This would account for the clear eggs.

A Cage Matter (Dublin).—Do not take any notice of the people who tell you that if you put your Goldie into a decent-sized cage you are certain to spoil him for singing. That is so much bosh. The change from a "back" cage to a 16in., say, stock cage, may cause him to be a bit "shy" for a day or so, naturally, but that is all. It is a shame to pen a Goldfinch in a tiny cage month in and month out. Don't allow yourself to be persuaded to do it; especially under such a mistaken notion.

A Wire Walker (Scotch Laddie).—It certainly is not a good thing to allow a Linnet to acquire the habit of "jigging" along the wires of the cage top. All wire cages, in fact, are the worst possible kind in which to put a bird to get steady. A box cage (wired at front only) is the kind you need. For food and the mixture to get them on song, note two other replies this week.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Silverbill (Mrs. Digby).—Softening of liver and rupture of its blood vessels, which is apoplexy.

Yellow Budgerigar (R. Fisher).—Chronic disease of liver and general wasting away.

Canary (Horneyite).—Hen bird: Liver much enlarged and diseased. Thoroughly disinfect its cage, especially its floor, before using it for any other birds. It is almost impossible to cure such a disease, but it might have been prevented to a considerable extent by suitable diet, more fresh salad or fruit.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

Delay in a Deal (J. Lawrie).—Evidently you are unaware of the fact that the law of libel stands in the way of the publication of letters such as yours. We shall be pleased to write the people mentioned if you will conform to rule 8.

Lochcraig Show (John Ford).—We are exceedingly obliged to you for sending on a report, which, however, we had already made arrangements to receive from another source.

A Report (A. Harper).—If you will forward your address, according to rule, we shall be glad to give you a reply. Anonymous communications cannot receive attention.

Illustrated Ideas (H. Greenacre).—This kind of self-supplying hopper we have illustrated before. (A. Cordery).—This answer applies to your hopper, which is precisely the same as the one sent by Mr. Greenacre.

Concerning Budgerigars (A. Holloway).—Many thanks. We shall hope to publish your interesting communication next week.

My First Canary (J. Hocking).—Accept our thanks for interesting letter, which we hope to print in the Xmas No.

A Crest (A. Marsh).—We could not get a reply in time for this issue; hope to be able to oblige next week.

A Suggestion (G. J. Moore).—We will give your kindly suggestion our consideration; we doubt, however, whether the demand for such a book would be sufficient to justify its issue.

NORWICH CANARIES.

By C. A. HOUSE.

Price 1/1 (post free).

The young fancier is told all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor.

This work, written in a plain, practical manner, contains much of untold value to lovers of the Norwich Plainhead Canary. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

A Chat About My Yorkshire Canaries.

—— By W. DEANS. ——

Some years ago I was shown a lovely Yorkshire cock. I had seen many Canaries, but never one like this. He was indeed a creature of tender beauty, with plumage of the richest hue. I remember well remarking to the fortunate owner that it must be indeed nice to number amongst one's intimate friends such a charming little feathered fellow. That he regarded me as a stranger was certain, and sure it was he loved his kind owner, for he would hop out of the cage to take food from the hand, and sometimes he would fly to the shoulder or the crown of the master's head. While in this position his graceful form and bold carriage made him a little living picture—now a pleasant memory only. I longed to possess him.

Joining the Army.

Now, I had always been something of a naturalist, and a keen lover of living creatures, so at sight of this bird I decided to join the great army of Yorkshire fanciers to see if I could breed one like him.

My friend, who was old in the Fancy, smiled when he saw me, a raw recruit, keen to possess an exhibition bird of the first water all in a minute. "No, my boy," he said, "that's not the beaten track. You must go through the mill. Anybody can buy winners if they have enough money. All the honour is his who starts with little, and fighting his way up in the Fancy, ere long comes up smiling with a crown of laurels on his brow. There is no moment so precious as the present. Start now, my lad, and push and push always. Study your birds, and I will be your warrant for future success."

Here was something to try for. I felt that I must have some of these fascinating creatures. The poet said, "a thing of beauty is a joy for ever" Surely it is. And so is it not worth a long and patient effort? I went off and purchased the best books published on the subject. These I studied closely for about a week.

Now, I thought, I will carefully and as wisely as possible, proceed to lay down the next few stones. Now I look back I feel that after the first stone the next in order are almost as great in consequence for good or ill. What about the cages? I must first, of course, make complete preparation to receive the birds. The cage recommended for a start was a single compartment breeder. This was neat and simple, and very portable.

Making the Cages.

As I should start with a male bird and two hens I should require three such cages to commence with. So I started by ordering the material. Let me here urge that the best is surely the cheapest in the long-run. I know of no labour so pleasant as the making of a first-rate bird-cage. It is to be the home of our feathered pets, surely we must make it well. A tip-top strain of Yorkshires is not produced in a hurry. So we must have good and durable and handsome cages, and we can make our own if we go carefully about it, and know what we are about.

Have nothing to do with second-hand cages. They are often full of red-mite, and may contain disease. Also they are nearly always in a more or less defective condition. We don't want our cages all of different sorts and sizes, but all alike, for the sake of neat appearance, good order, and ease of management. We must aim high in all our movements, or we shall not get high. Do not even look upon packing cases or other second-hand wood or material. It is much more difficult to make up than the best material, and after the extra time and care has been spent on it, never as good.

So we are very nice and happy in the possession of sufficient pine boards (yellow pine is the best), 11ins. wide by ½in thick, to make the three cages suggested. We will have our cages strong, and then be sure they will stand wear and tear well. Also, we must give the birds plenty of room, so that they may get much exercise, and so keep very fit and well. So we will make the cages 18ins. high, 24ins. long, 11ins. deep.

The Tools Required.

A sharp saw, a set square, a rule, a pencil, a hammer, a sharp chisel, and a pound of wire nails 2ins. long, and not too thick, will send us along nicely. The wood must be dried, not too near the fire, for two or three days, so that it does not shrink after the cage is finished. It is much better to buy the boards ready planed.

We now proceed to cut the top, bottom and sides from the board. The sides should be cut 17ins. long, so as to make up to 18ins., then when the top and bottom are nailed on, measure with rule and place set square to mark off. When nailing, place one of the sides end down on the bench, table, or floor, and lay one end of top board on it, end to end, so: ⌐¬. See that the edge does not overlap, but comes nice and flush.

Now drive a nail at each corner about ¾in. from the edge, one in the middle and two more at each side spaced equally, and the trick is done. Nail on the other side, and also the bottom. We are now well on our way. Never drive a nail with a bad point, or it will come out at the side and spoil the work.

In Joyful Anticipation.

We light our lamp and retire to our little workshop at the back of the house, ready and eager to recommence work on our partly-made cage. It is a dark and stormy November evening, and the rain is pelting against the window. But this only makes us look with more pleasure to the joys of the coming spring, when the sun will shine into our bird-room, and our birds will be busy and happy. In our mind's eye we can see the feathered treasures hopping about from perch to perch and flapping their wings in healthy delight. We start thus long before spring because we want work to fill in these long winter evenings, and we must purchase our birds before all the best stock birds have been bought up, or we may have to pay higher prices for inferior birds later on.

Looking at our cage body we see that it is not quite square, so therefore bring pressure to bear gently in the proper direction until it is correct. To make sure, place the set square in the corner, and if it fits, all is well.

Making and Fitting the Cage Back.

Now, to nail on the back. Cut two more pieces off the board, full length of the cage (24in.), and place them together on table flat down just so that the two long edges meet Place the cage body on the back in the exact positon, and it will be found that the back is about 4ins. too large, and projects beyond the top of the cage. Mark off with a pencil, holding the parts together firmly to prevent displacement. Cut off the spare piece at the pencil mark.

Now place the two back pieces in the exact position on the cage body, and taking a medium-sized pricker, make two holes in each ready for nailing. Now place nails in the holes, and with one hand on the back to hold it firm, drive the nails home. These four nails should be each about ¾in. from the joint of the two boards. Prick more holes all round about 2ins. apart, taking care not to drive any nail so that it comes into contact with those in the body of the cage, or an unmendable fracture may result. See that all the holes are pricked very straight into the wood, or the nails will come out at the side, and make a very cosy cottage for Mr. and Mrs. Scarlet-Bags, who are sure to advertiso for lodgers.

An Unusually Large Buzzard.

SIR,—A large Buzzard has been shot in a wood near Campden, in Gloucestershire. It is said to have measured 6 feet from the tip of one wing to the tip of the other. Is not this an uncommon bird? Can anyone tell me what is the usual length of wings?

T. SOWTHAM.

Waxwings Arrive in England.

SIR,—Perhaps it will interest your readers to know that the Waxwings have arrived here (in Salop) in fair numbers this season, and are feeding on the berries of the yew tree. Whilst catching Hawfinches to-day on yew berries, I caught a nice male Waxwing out of a flock of ten.

W. BROWN.

A Rare-feathered Jackdaw.

SIR,—I have in my possession a Jackdaw (it was shot near the town), having rare plumage. His body, wings and tail are slate colour, and he is a darker shade on head. I have seen many curiously marked birds—some of them are white, others partly white—but I have never seen one like this. He has been examined by a number of fanciers, men who have seen many curious specimens of birds and animals, and they all say they have never seen any like him before. Others have told me he is a hybrid between a pigeon and something else, as he resembles a pigeon in colour. But, of course, I know he is a Jackdaw, as he is a real type of one. I have had him mounted, and will be only too pleased to show him to anyone interested.

Making a Complete Bird Spray.

SIR,—Allow me, through your esteemed journal, to thank Mr. Killick for having so generously given your numerous readers the result of his experiment, which provides for a very simple and useful (so-called) bird-spray (vide illustration CAGE BIRDS, October 9th). I am pleased to say I have succeeded in making an exact copy of same. I wish, however, to remind Mr. K. that the contrivance does not entirely answer the purpose of a complete spray, as when the water is conveyed through the aperture of the glass tube at point D, there is a single stream of water which is objectionable, because, in the first place, such a volume of water would evidently frighten the bird, and secondly, because under these disturbed circumstances it would be almost impossible to succeed in the attempt. But not so in the case of a complete spray. The distribution of the water should be very copious and fine, falling gently on the "entire" plumage without the slightest interference with the bird. As I have no right, or wish, to take any undue credit in the matter, I would ask Mr. Killick to favour us by making another effort, and I am convinced he will ultimately succeed in giving us a complete bird spray.

FREDERICK ELLIS.

Trouble about a Special.

SIR,—In writing previously I in no way attacked Mr. Lister's position, but fully stated that of the Newcastle Society, as it was told me and from what I personally knew about the case. So far from correcting my statements, Mr. Lister has only amplified them with his own views. It is admitted by all that the judge at the time awarded the special to Mr. Lister's bird, believing that it was to be awarded for the best old bird, Crest or Crest-bred, but when it was found that another bird, which was equally entitled to compete, had not won this particular special, although it had in other competitions been placed first, the judge was written to to see how he explained the case. His reply was that "he was not aware that Mr. Taylor's bird was entitled to compete, but if so, he undoubtedly won the special, as his was the best bird in the section." These may not be his exact words, but they convey the meaning It is two years ago since I saw the letter, so cannot give it word for word. They prove without doubt that in the judge's opinion the young bird was the best. There were other times when the judge personally showed the superiority of the young bird over the old one, notably when there was the discussion which should win the Challenge Bowl, when Mr. Heath turned to the bystanders and said: "There's my old bird, and there's my young bird; my young bird beats my old bird." And I am told on good authority that Mr. Lister was present on one occasion when the judge compared the two birds, one in each hand, and that Mr. Lister, speaking to a bystander, said that he would not have believed it if he had not seen it for himself. So how he can still claim the special on the bird's merits I cannot understand; and that is the position which the Newcastle committee consider it their duty to uphold, in spite of Cage Bird Union or any other union. The committee's decision, I may add, was confirmed by the members present at the monthly meeting held on Thursday last without a single dissentient. It has been said that a judge cannot reverse his decision once he has handed in his slip, but I can give you an instance at the same show where such was done, and, strange as it may appear, it was Mr. Lister's bird which was overlooked this time. In the open show in the young crestbred class, Mr. Lister was second, but in the members' class his bird was not placed. Mr. Lister thereupon writes the judge, who acknowledges a mistake, and the society paid Mr. Lister his prize money. Thus, in one case he accepts a revised decision, but challenges it in the other. Had Mr. Lister been present at the last Newcastle meeting, held on the second of this month, I am sure he would have been pleased at the attitude of the members towards himself; all who spoke desired that friendship should reign, but not at the cost of principle. Member after member spoke to find a way out of the difficulty, without straining the bond of friendship, and it was freely stated that it was not the value of the special, but the principle that the best bird should have the special, which actuated them in opposing such a body as the C.B.U. Executive Council.

CANNY TOON.

P.S.—One passage in Mr. Lister's letter might be taken to mean that he won the Northern Crest Club medal at this show. Such is not the case. The any age medal was won by Mr. Taylor with his young bird, and he also won the young bird medal with another young bird.

SIR,—I attended the show in question on behalf of the C.B.U., and although I have not been asked to give evidence to the Executive Council, I can prove that the Newcastle Society are in the right, and are only standing out for justice. I was looking on when this special was judged for, and saw Mr. Heath put Mr. Taylor's Crest at the top. Now I do not expect fanciers to take my word alone, so I will give the names of witnesses. While Mr. Heath had the winning birds out of their respective classes to judge for this special, after they were judged, and before they were taken away, I asked the judge which was the first, and he placed his hand on Mr. Taylor's cage and said: "This one." He also told me Mr. Lister's bird was second. The reason I asked was because I was N.C.C. secretary at the time, and the same bird would take our medal for the best bird, any age. Now the N.C.C. rule is, that only one bird could take one medal, so I walked up to Mr. Taylor, who was present, together with Mr. W. F. Swan and Mr. Jack Riseborough, of Sunderland, and I asked whether he (Mr. Taylor) would take the medal for any age, or would he let it pass on, and take it in the 1907 class. Mr. Swan advised Mr. Taylor to take it over the old birds, as he said there was more credit due, and Mr. Taylor decided to do this. His bird was also selected for bowl. Now there were many others present, who saw and knew the birds as they stood on the bench, and there was no other special, which required all the section out together. The C.B.U. are certainly not on the side of justice in this case.

Whose Should the Prize Card be?

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent S. Stevens, may I say that, if the bird is claimed at a show, the purchaser claims the cage and card it has won; but if the exhibitor would like a card, the secretary would give him one on application, as he would know it is a bona-fide transaction.

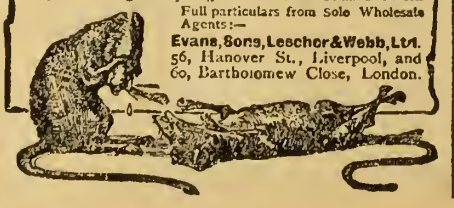
An Alleged Black Yorkshire from Falmouth Show.



SIR,—I exhibited two Yorkshires at Falmouth Show. On their return, to my surprise I found one black. My first and special winner was all right. As for cleanliness, when they left me they were perfect. Can some fancier tell me how this bird got in such a condition?

The Identity of a Bird.

SIR,—I have caught a bird which I am almost certain has been bred from a Redpoll and a Linnet. It is as big as a Linnet, still it resembles the Redpoll. It has a lemon-coloured beak, brown pencilled breast, brown back, and white markings in the wing, the same as a Linnet, also black legs. It has neither red cap on the head nor black bib. I have taken CAGE BIRDS in for over five years, and I have never heard of this stamp of a bird before. I should be very glad if anyone could give me any information as to what it is.

JOHN TAYLOR.

[The bird our correspondent has is not a Hybrid, but a Twite, a distinct species, and closely related to both the Linnet and the Redpoll. The "lemon-coloured" beak and jet black legs are characteristics which at once distinguish it, being peculiar to the Twite. The cock bird has a red patch of feathers on the rump. Mr. Taylor will find this bird exhibited at the majority of shows.—EDITOR.]

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Shows.

SIR,—As one of the stewards at the late West Bromwich Show, I was surprised to see a letter in this week's issue of CAGE BIRDS from Mrs. Sunderland, re delay in despatching exhibits. All exhibits at this show were packed and in the railway company's hands, and the room cleared, within one and a half hours after close of show. I would advise Mrs. Sunderland in future before she rushes into print and makes any statement which reflects upon the management of shows, to make quite sure to whom the blame is to be attached.

J. L. BECK.

SIR,—I was greatly surprised to see a letter in CAGE BIRDS last week under the above heading, especially from a person of the experience of Mrs. Sunderland. I should like to draw exhibitors' attention to the fact that it is not always the fault of the secretary or show stewards if exhibits are late in arriving at their destinations. In reference to exhibits arriving home late from our show (West Bromwich), I can emphatically say that all birds that had to travel by rail were out of the show room by 10.30 on the last night of the show, November 18th. The stationmaster was present and superintended the despatch of exhibits, and I have since been informed by a station official that all birds were despatched on the same night by train. Up to the present, I may state, I have not received a telegram from anyone with regard to exhibits being late, and I must ask for an explanation of this. I should like to know if one was sent, and, if so, who received it? I also beg to draw your attention to the fact that we did not state in our schedules that birds would be sent so as to arrive home same night as show closes, as this is utterly ridiculous in the case of birds coming 100 miles and over. I think it would have been much better if the grievance had been thoroughly sifted, and the proper persons communicated with, viz., the railway company, before rushing a paltry thing like this into print. This is the sort of thing that causes a lack of entries at shows, and not the birds being a few hours late, and after all arriving home in perfect condition. The next time Mrs. Sunderland's birds are late, perhaps she will send to the railway company and not worry secretaries about it. They can't help birds getting into the wrong train and causing people to stay away from church on Sundays.

THOS. DUFFIELD, Hon. Sec., W.B.C.B.S.

Some Hard Hits at Unions.

SIR,—I am in receipt of a postcard from Mr. Irlam, the secretary of the Sale O.S., which states that my birds were delivered to the railway company (L. and Y., Pass.) in time to be despatched by the 5.8 p.m. train on the 25th Nov., and should have arrived in Manchester in one hour. And as Sale is only a short distance out of Manchester, and cars also run through, if we give one hour more they should have been collected the same night. Instead, the secretary of Sale Show writes that the birds were not delivered before 12 o'clock on the day they should have been judged. How can any judge do justice to any exhibits under such conditions; for instance, the bird that got first at West Bromwich got C at Sale. This is no encouragement to patronize shows away from home, and it compels fanciers to look upon the C.B.U., the Yorkshire Union, and all such supposed means of strength to the fancier as merely a gathering of wind bags. I trust this letter will at least cause some controversy and awaken these societies to a knowledge that the fancier wants something done for his subscription beside finding uniform perches and water tins; or let such so-called means of strength to the Fancy be purged, and men elected to it who have some idea of what is needed for the fancier. I believe I am voicing the views of many when I write thus, for if credit is given, I am not a dealer of birds, but in the Fancy as a hobby pure and simple. If we cannot be helped more by these so-called unions, the sooner the Fancy degenerates into a professional one the better, for I am determined to close my losing hobby very soon. I trust, Mr. Editor, you will see my point. It is no personal question, but one of great interest to the Fancy at large.

MRS. C. M. SUNDERLAND.

SIR,—I should like, in reply to Mrs. Sunderland, to ask her why she rushed into print before making inquiries of me? I say her birds were in the hands of the railway company by 7.5 p.m. on the Saturday, in company with all other cases going by rail. As this is the only real complaint we have had, I think it would have been better to have waited for a reply to the letter she sent me, on the Thursday, and not rushed into print first. I wonder if Mrs. S. thinks secretaries are managers of railway companies and can deliver birds when they like?

JAMES IRLAM, Hon. Sec. Sale O.S.

SIR,—I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS for about seven years. I see complaints very often re above, and have wondered why something was not done in the matter. I think this instance will be hard to beat. Mr. Lavery, of this town (Lurgau), sent 10 exhibits to the Y.C.C. of Ireland Show on Wednesday last, entry fees 15s., 7s. 6d. for special, and 4d. for catalogue. Dublin is only 90 miles from Lurgan, and at the time of writing, 3 p.m., Saturday evening, he knows as much about his birds as a man in America! He also asked that the birds might be sent in the last train from Dublin on Friday night, and actually waited until its arrival in Lurgan at 12 midnight, and got nothing for his trouble. Now, I was going to write about the loss of drinkers, but Mr. Lavery was with me, and I said I would write about both. He sent 18 drinkers to Dundalk and only got 9 back. I sent 6 and only got 2 of my own and 1 belonging to someone else. We both wrote about them but got no reply. These secretaries seem not to care if only they get entries, but I can assure you that when the show season opens again they might be glad that they had at least acknowledged letters or complaints. I observe that under "Notes from Erin" it is reported they had a great show in Dundalk. Show of What? Pigeons; and the cage birds were stacked on the top of each other, and got a very poor show. Now I think if these shows wish to keep going they might try to at least meet exhibitors a little. At Dunkalk they made Mr. Lavery pay at the door, although exhibitors were to have a pass, but to their credit they returned the fee when they found out who the person was.

J. H. O'NEILE.

A Curious Case of Blindness.

SIR,—I sympathise with the fancier who signed his name "Perplexed," over his curious case of blindness, as I am troubled with the same disease myself. All the difference is, I keep my birds in breeding cages in the house. I never saw such a pitiful sight in my 30 years' experience. I should be pleased if any kind fancier could tell me the cause and treatment (if any) for the sake of our feathered friends. First I lost a Norwich cock Canary, second a Linnet; these are dead. Now another Linnet is blind, and a Redpoll nearly so, and as "Perplexed" stated, they are in the best condition and over moult, and started to sing. They are fed on Canary seed, hemp and rape, with a packet of Finch mixture now and then, and as a tit-bit, a little niger, maw, and a little egg-food with a slice of apple or greenfood in season. They are all from 5 to 6 years old, and the best of breeders and songsters. The only symptoms they show are staring with their eyes, bowing their heads up and down, and twisting their heads back as if they were drunk. Their eyes look as bright as ever. But the Redpoll is keeping his head up with his eyes closed at the start; but he is going on the same line as others.

A White Linnet.

SIR,—In reference to Mr. J. Smith's letter, re White Linnet, there is nothing extraordinary in it. I have a White Linnet here in Essex, and also another with only five small dark feathers in the neck.

H. W. BARNARD.

Borders at Cockermouth.

SIR,—Being exhibitors at Cockermouth Show on December 3rd and 4th, I was surprised on paying a visit to find that the judge had only awarded five tickets in the Green or Cinnamon Border class instead of seven, according to schedule. On making inquiries of the committee, I was informed that four of the nine birds were passed for being colour-fed. One of the four was ours. We wish to state that neither this nor any other bird belonging to us has had any artificial colouring matter whatever, and we are quite prepared to allow any reasonable test to prove this.

J. HOPPER (Hopper Bros.).

A Skylark's Coming-of-Age.

SIR,—I was very much interested in Mr. Ford's account of his Skylark, and no doubt a good many of your readers would be interested if other fanciers, who have kept birds a good length of time, would give an account of same, especially if they state how the birds have been fed. Your correspondent asks if his keeping of a Skylark for 21 years is a record? Well, it is not quite, for the late Mr. Loveday, who kept the "White Horse" at Cambridge a few years back, had a Skylark on view at one of the shows there that had been in his possession for 23 years. It had a leg missing, and he informed me that a cat had knocked its cage down a few months before, and it had one of its legs badly smashed. He severed it himself with a pair of scissors. It had apparently quite recovered, and was singing again. How long it lived after this I can't say, as I left the town soon after. The bird had been fed chiefly on table scraps, a little vegetables, meat, pudding, etc., chopped up fine, and a little Canary seed now and again. Mr. Ford's bird, nevertheless, does him credit, and I hope he will yet beat the record.

G. J. MOORE.

The Modern Norwich Plainhead.

SIR,—I was much amused over Mr. Moore's letter re the above. I like his idea of licensing judges. How would he proceed to examine a person who applied for a license? I have known men who have bred Canaries all their lives, who could never judge nor ever will, having no confidence in themselves; and I know others whose only qualifications are that they have been connected with some journal, and if it could be proved neither bred nor moulted a winner in their experience. Then about judging. The standard on paper looks very nice, but unless the judge has an idea as to what a bird should be in a cage, the standard is of no use at all to him. He must know and be able to discern points and defects in the birds themselves. It is all very well for societies to set up certain types, but what is a judge to do if none of the birds placed before him come anywhere near the type as printed? I think a man who accepts a judging appointment should understand the birds, and have an ideal in his mind, and judge according to it. I wonder how many of our present cage-bird judges could do this? I paid a visit to the show held here in Birmingham on December 1st and 2nd, and no doubt the cream of the Fancy was there in Plainhead Norwich; but there were nearly as many types as there were birds. I am not giving my ideas for the purpose of pulling those (or any other) birds to pieces, as I consider the winners good specimens of the present-day Norwich.

J. BASTOCK.

[We have had to delete a sentence or two which transgressed our rule regarding the inadmissibility of criticism of birds at shows.—EDITOR.]

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Moore, if he will kindly read my letter over again, he will find that I never said anything about "pairing up to breed" anything. But I say again that you have to find your man out; you may have good birds, and they won't suit some judges, though what you would call show specimens, but give them another man, and they suit him. Now about judges: Societies can't engage a man for every variety, and if a man is engaged to judge a whole show, what else can he do but judge according to his own ideas? He can't put a bird up that he can't take to, so he must judge to the best of his ability. I will give you an instance of what I mean. I gave a judge a number of birds that had been winning for us all up and down, and all we got was H.C. with the Unflighted Buff, that was portrayed in CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL a few years back. After that show the Unflighted Buff was never beaten under different judges, finishing up by winning 1st at the Palace in 1905. No, my friend, I don't advise anyone to pair wrongly. I thought Mr. Jowett had gone through the same and was sadly disappointed. The members of the N.P.C. select their judges from among themselves. And I suppose they select whom they think the most capable. But they can't do justice to all the varieties they are called upon to judge through the societies not being able to pay for more judges, and the exhibitors have to suffer for it.

R. E. WORTHINGTON.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Bertie, I was minding my own business, Mr. B., when I wrote at first, in defending the Modern Norwich Plainhead. And on looking through a copy of my letter, I can't find where I said that you should be careful what you write about other people's birds; it should be, "you should be careful what you write about." I did not say that you had written about individual birds, but I took it you were condemning the present-day winning Norwich, and being an exhibitor of long standing, I could not let it pass without saying something in defence of my favourite bird. You now say that you see an improvement in the present-day winners; a week or two ago you were running them down. Such-like talk is bad to reckon up. Now, Mr. B., if your birds won't stand criticising, they are not worth much. Any man is at liberty to criticise my birds if he sees anything wrong with them. I am glad to see that you bred those winners. No, Mr. B., I don't wear a hat. I can't get one to fit me about here, so I am coming to Mapperley for one.

R. E. WORTHINGTON.

P.S.—As I am writing this I can't help but look at the drawing of Mr. Smeaton's grand young Buff hen; it is a gem, and another one for Scotland.

SIR,—In CAGE BIRDS of November 27th, I was glad to read a very encouraging letter to me from Mr. Worthington, re my Norwich Plainheads, and I hope the little ill-feeling between Mr. Worthington and Mr. Bertie will be agreeably settled. I think exhibitors and breeders who are well "carded and prized up" should not speak of each other's models, but keep to the motto, "Silence is Golden," at all times. I should be glad to forward for inspection one of my 1909 Norwich Plainheads to Mr. Worthington and hear from him his opinion (both through CAGE BIRDS and by letter in return), as Mr. Worthington says he would be only too glad to assist me in any way. I think I have been wise in not going in for shows and colour-feeding, as it would have probably been disappointment and expense; for instance, to send two birds, that is 3s. carriage there, and back 2s., total 5s., each week, soon amounts to a nice Christmas dinner gone by. After the letters appearing in my paper week after week, it makes one feel a desire to go back again on the good old Yorkshire class. But if Mr. Worthington has a brighter opinion of my bird, no doubt it will help me a little to keep to the N.P. class. In conclusion, I wish Mr. Worthington and Mr. Bertie every success, and may they both shake hands heartily on their little differences; no doubt they are both worthy of the highest praise with their birds. I am still of the opinion the Norwich is a splendid bird; the song I can say is magnificent. One cock I have never ceases scarcely, and is at it by break of day. I think sometimes it must have sung the moment it left the shell.

JOHN H. JOWETT.

A Lowestoft Fancier's Sad Loss.

SIR,—It is with deep regret that I have to inform you of the most unfortunate occurrence that has deprived Mr. J. Lay of his birds, in all about 94, amongst them being some very fine specimens that would have made their presence felt on the show bench. He informs me that he would not have accepted £60 for the lot. It comes very hard to have them all but one (which is half blind) taken off with septic fever. He attributes saving this one to washing it in Jeye's fluid, which he did as a last resource. Mr. Lay is a young working man fancier, and started in the Fancy about four years ago, buying birds from Mr. Eckersley and Marlow Bros., and several other prominent breeders of the "chubby one," and I can assure you after trying hard he had got together a splendid stock of Norwich Plainheads. He is a member of the Lowestoft and District C.B.S., and a most enthusiastic fancier. He has the sympathy of every member of this society, and those that can, have promised to help him to start again by giving him a bird, and I hope that the next season will see him putting some good specimens on the bench. Now I am writing, I should here like to express my sympathy with Mr. E. J. Rippon on his deplorable loss, and hope with the birds he saved he will be able to keep himself to the front with other prominent exhibitors.

Payment of Prize Money at Ludlow Show.

SIR,—Having been an exhibitor at the Ludlow Cage Bird Show, held November 24th and 25th, I think it only right I should state that I received all prize money won there within 24 hours of the closing of the show, and I think that society should be well supported at the next show, it guaranteeing full prize money, and it being a young society. All credit is due to the secretaries and committee for the way it was managed and the birds staged. It was an excellent room, and there was good accommodation for the birds. Fanciers should bear in mind next year that they can depend on having proper treatment.

G. EDWARDS.

Natural Colour Yorkshires at Inverness Show.

SIR,—In the report of Inverness Show your critique implies that two of the birds in the natural fed class of Yorkshire cocks were colour fed. As owner and breeder of the first prize bird, a clear yellow (which won first and medal in same class last year), I may inform you it has never had "a dip in the pepper pot," as the merest tyro in judging can see at a glance. The fanciers here know me well enough to be aware that I enter my birds in their correct classes, and am able to do this because I do not advertise for "Exhibition Yorkshire," in exchange, a fortnight before the annual show.

GEO. MACKENZIE.

[We must apologise unreservedly to Mr. Mackenzie for the assertion of our reporter about which he complains. The remark escaped our sub-editor's attention, or it would most certainly not have been allowed to appear. As Mr. Mackenzie says, however, every one who knows him will at once indignantly repel any suggestion that he would wittingly or otherwise enter his birds in incorrect classes. —EDITOR, CAGE BIRDS.]

The Late Entry Nuisance.

SIR,—In your last issue I note a communication from Mr. Treasure re late entries. My experience as late hon. sec. of the Hartlepools C.B.S. leads me to confirm the remarks he makes. But, as he only states a case for the secretary, I would also like to point out that the exhibitor has his grievance, and that at the hands of the show secretary. Personally, I am not making a complaint, as, fortunately, I am not affected by the circumstances of which I write, but I know others with whom I have had conversation, who complain strongly about the lax manner in which prize-money is paid. At the time of writing I am awaiting prize-money from three different societies, and I have just sent entry fees and catalogue money for a fourth. Now along with carriage of birds to and from the shows my expenses are 16s. 10d. Now you will readily understand that an exhibitor, whose income is strictly limited to a certain amount and not at any time in keeping with his ambition and desire to see his birds on the bench, is seriously hampered in making his entries early, and not infrequently he is prevented from sending his birds out at all, simply through lack of funds. Were his winnings promptly paid, he could follow up his success and probably reap a further reward. Where a show is a financial failure, the secretary may find his ingenuity taxed to do as he would like; but where it is an unqualified financial success, I think the secretary should make an effort to discharge his duties, even though it be at no little personal inconvenience.

ERNEST WOODHEAD.

A Bird that has a Tooth.

SIR,—In answer to your correspondent, I should say the bird was a Corn Bunting. The form of the bill is the best characteristic by which to distinguish the Bunting from other Finches. The angle of the chin is very strongly marked, and the bill is usually gaping; that is to say, there is a distinct gap in the outline of the closed bill. Many Buntings have a knob-like protuberance on the palate or roof of the mouth. The true Buntings —Reed-Bunting, Little-Bunting, Rustic-Bunting, Blackheaded Bunting, Cirl-Bunting, Ortolan-Bunting, and Yellow-Bunting (or Hammer, which should properly be Ammer, as it comes, doubtless, from the German word "Ammer," a Bunting)—are distinguished by the long spurs; the hind claw is never longer than the hind toe. The tail has always a white pattern in it which is very conspicuous when the birds are flying. The Corn Bunting (only one species of which is known) is singularly like the Lark in plumage; the wing is shorter than the tail, and the inner secondaries are long and nearly equal to the primary quills like the wings of Larks and Wagtails. The Snow Buntings are easily recognised by their long wings, which reach nearly to the end of the tail. The Long-spurred Buntings of which the Lapland Bunting is the type, are three in number, two being North American, while the third, the Lapland Bunting, is an inhabitant of the northern portions of both hemispheres, and may be recognised from all the others by the length of the hind claw, which is longer than the hind toe itself. Although the Corn Bunting is a very heavy and strong bird, as most of the Buntings are, I should hardly blame this bird with the "tooth" for all the deaths in the store cage. I have had all the above-mentioned birds, excepting the Little Bunting, together in one of my aviaries with other Finches. I find the Snow Bunting the most dangerous, while the Reed Bunting I have never had any trouble with.

W. G. SYMONDS.

The C.B.U. and Non-licensed Shows.

SIR,—During the past week I have had a rather annoying experience in connection with non-union shows. During the stress of business in connection with our late Sunderland Show, I inadvertently sent four entries to Ferryhill Show, where I exhibited last year under C.B.U. rules. After despatching my birds on Friday night, I picked up CAGE BIRDS to look through "Twitterings." In the same column I noticed the list of C.B.U. shows, and you may imagine my feelings when I found that Ferryhill was not included in the list. I immediately rushed down to the station, only to find that my birds had just gone. I promptly sent off the following telegram to the secretary of Ferryhill Show: "Don't stage birds; return at once.—Reid, Pallion." At the same time I notified the representative of the C.B.U. for this district of the mistake that had occurred. Thanks to Mr. Binks, who appears to be a very obliging secretary, I received my birds back at Pallion by the last train on Friday night, and I am very glad I did so, for it is probable no one would have believed that I did not know it was not a C.B.U. show. I am no great lover of the Union, as most of your readers know, yet I do not wish to break any of its rules so long as I am connected with it, and if ever I do have occasion to leave it, it will certainly be in a straightforward manner. Might I suggest that for the future the list of C.B.U. shows be published at the end of each month?—that is, the shows for the following month When an exhibitor receives so many schedules, the latter get mixed up a bit, and the C.B.U. rules do not always remain in the schedule they arrive in, while I do not think that one exhibitor in twenty takes the trouble to read the front cover of every schedule he receives. As published at present, the list of C.B.U. shows is of absolutely no use to anyone, for there is no sense in publishing a list of shows you may show at one week after the date of entries closing, although I admit that on this occasion I have to thank its belated appearance for preventing me from being placed in a very unpleasant position. Yet, had it appeared the week previous, I have no doubt that my entries would not have been sent, for all fanciers read their CAGE BIRDS, although they don't always read their schedules.

W. REID (Sunderland).

The Welsh C.B.C. and Swansea Show.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Hitchings' deplorable attempt to answer my letter of the previous issue—why! Mr. H., you have completely lost yourself and run away from the subject, sending in response "Rudis indegestaque moles." It strikes me very forcibly that what you say about the W.C.B.C. attempting to boycott Swansea show is but the reflection of your own little mind and small ideas—we all know that evil thinketh, and alas! begets evil. We do not depend upon your recommendation, I am pleased to say. Believe me, what you can teach in mathematics, Mr. H., I should have spurned at the age of nine. You may, it is true, be well up in the art of subtracting—subtracting from my letter in attempting to make a defence. Be original; don't copy—better say nothing than try to retaliate with your opponent's weapons. Re the leaflet of rules forwarded to our worthy Editor, that might easily be accounted for; it was not the secretary of the W.C.B.C. who cut that single leaflet out of their rule book (which does contain the classification). You have presumptuously claimed that you can substantiate all your statements. My committee are desirous that you should please mention what society in Wales our patronage was forced upon, and where you got such valuable information to suit yourself at this particular moment. We shall then at once go farther into the matter..

G. T. JONES, Hon. Sec. W.C.B.C.

The C.B.U. and Bristol F.A. Show.

SIR,—The first clause of Rule 17 of the C.B.U. reads thus:—"Affiliated societies must hold their shows under the Cage Bird Union Show Rules." As to the objection against our date by a purely Cage Bird Society, notwithstanding anything the C.B.U. Secretary has written to Mr. Wasley, I adhere absolutely to my previous statement. Mr. Wasley in his postscript hints at action against us, yet he has been trying to get me to disclose my evidence in advance.

C. T. H. MAGGS.

A Chat about Scotch and Border Fancies.

Being Papers by Mr. JAS. ALEXANDER, read recently before the Newcastle-upon-Tyne C.B.S.

Although I have been a breeder and exhibitor for about forty years, I have still a lot to learn concerning birds. I would like, however, to give my experience in regard to the Scotch and Border Fancy breeds. I bred and showed Scotch Fancy Canaries for many years. When I first started they were called Glasgow Dons, but the name was changed many years ago to Scotch Fancy, and the bird itself has changed far more than the name. About thirty years ago the Scotch Fancy was a complete circle bird, and required no crossing; and a large bird, with plenty of circle and good action, was always pretty near the top of its class at a given show.

Difficult to Breed.

The variety was then not so very difficult to breed as the present day birds. At that time (thirty years ago), I bred from four pairs between thirty and forty young ones, which cannot be done now. I gave up the breed a few years ago, as I am of opinion it is not a working man's bird. In the first place, the price of the variety has gone up beyond any working man's means. Secondly, one breeds but few good birds considering the cost of the stock. Thirdly, being birds of position they require a lot of handling (which takes a deal of time), and this needs to be done in daylight, which few working men can manage to do in the winter.

Of late years, the Belgian Canary has been much used for the purpose of improving the variety, and although I like the Belgian, so long as they keep on combining the two breeds, the produce are only mongrels to my way of thinking. I have found through experience that first crosses are easily bred, but that does not apply after they have been crossed down for three or four seasons. The Belgians are, as a rule, good feeders—at least I found them so—but whenever one gets some size with crossing, the birds fail to breed so well; hence my reason for stating that Scotch Fancies are bad to breed.

Crossing and Pairing.

Regarding crossing and pairing I found the best and quickest way to get nice Scotch Fancies was to get a good Buff Belgian hen, very upright, with plenty of shoulder, neck and go, and one which came quickly into position. Then get a large Buff (a marked one preferred), third-cross Scotch Fancy. If you do not get show birds from the first cross you are certain to get them from the second, but often the first will do for showing.

The reason for double-buffing is that you may get up size quickly. The yellow can be put in any time after. High-class breeders always keep "feeders" for rearing the young, and the best "feeders" are crosses between the Border and Scotch Fancy. The reason is this: The Norwich and Borders are too short to reach a long-necked Scotch Fancy when it is eight or ten days old. They stand too high and are more shaky than other breeds. Hence the reason for crossing between Border and Scotch Fancy. But should you be able to get the Scotch Fancy parents to feed, they will do better than any other.

With regard to feeding, I will say little, as every fancier has his own way; but Scotch Fancies, I may say, require a little more feeding than others, owing to their soft nature. The general method is to give them boiled German rape and maw seed a few times a week; but if they are kept in large flight cages (all wire) they do as well as other varieties on the ordinary hard seed.

A good many Scotch Fancies are spoiled by being kept in their show cages. My method was to keep them in flights and run the show birds out every day for a little to give them some handling. They come quicker into position by doing so, and are always much healthier. I have given you my way of dealing with Scotch Fancies; it may not be worth much, but I have won many hundred prizes by it.

The Common or Border Fancy Canary

With regard to the Common Canary or Border Fancy, I may say I have kept them more or less all my life, my father being a breeder of them. The bird at that time was called a Common Canary, and I think it a pity the name was changed, as it is bred now all over the country, and is more "common" than ever. Of late years there has been a good deal of writing on the subject of the Border Canary.

One writer lately said the Border Fancy had gone up (in improvement, that is) by leaps and bounds, this last few years. I fail to see so. The standard was drawn up some time before I kept birds at all, and I distinctly say there is very little difference between the Borders of to-day and those of the last thirty years. The only difference I see is that the cages are much neater, and the birds better turned out than formerly. Twenty or thirty years ago one never thought of keeping birds rolled up in the dark, as fanciers do now. It is only a little over twenty years since I commenced to show the Common or Border Fancy Canary, and I have bred and shown all the different varieties of them; but this last fifteen years I have only gone in for the marked varieties.

In regard to clear breeding; it is only a case of quality and condition, and sticking closely to the standard. But in breeding all clears one requires to double-buff occasionally. In breeding yellow and buff a few years, the yellows generally get a bit leggy; hence the reason for double buffing. In most cases it improves the quality of feather also. One scarcely ever sees a leggy buff, although the same breed. Of late years double-buffing has been greatly in use, hence the reason of there always being well-filled Buff classes at the shows.

Breeding for Even-marks.

In breeding even marks a great deal of study and thought is required. To begin with, I will say never try sib-breeding if you wish to go on a few years. It has been proved by many old breeders to be a failure in Borders, as you cannot keep up the quality and condition required by "sibbing." I know many of our old and best Scotch breeders (of marks) had to give up trying to get marks quickly. By "sibbing" the bird gets thin in blood and soft in feather, and wants the real sprightliness a Border should have. Also should there be a light feather amongst the dark, or foul vent, or thighs, it will always crop up when "sibbing," perhaps a few years after. This is where the dressing and trimming come in so often, the birds not being true bred.

My method of breeding even marks is to get the best I can, but not at a show; I go to some reliable breeder and see the birds in their more natural state. If possible, I get a good even yellow cock bird. I find out how it was bred, and see that the parents were of the same. Then I get a good, clear Buff hen, off marks, and also get her pedigree. Then I procure a clear Buff cock off marks and yellow marked hen (heavy marked preferred), and also their pedigree and how bred. Keep the best of the above two pairs, and you should have little difficulty after in getting evens.

Should you have a friend a good breeder of marks, make an exchange with him, with one or two, but if you have a lot of pairs, you won't require any exchanging.

If these pairs are throwing their young too light in marking, run two marks together. The eye marks being more difficult to balance, you require to watch your breed very closely. Try and get good eye fronts. The back of the eye will come alright after one or two trials.

Should you wish to get up some colour, run two yellow marks together, and you will be likely to get a yellow green cock. Mate this to a clear buff hen lightly marked bred, and you will then get some grand marks, with colour and quality combined. This has been my most successful way of getting good evens. I have never yet had a good even, breeding from two evens, but have always good ones from their offsprings. I bred some twenty even marks in one season by the above-named method; of course, not all show birds, some being too lightly marked and others too heavy. But every pair you mate try and keep to the original standard. Some writers of late seem to think there is a difference between the English and Scotch Border. It seems strange; I supply birds all over England and Scotland of my own breeding, and all the same breed; how can there then be any difference? I have now given you my experiences, and shall be pleased to do anything I can for a brother fancier, or answer any question so far as I can.

The Discussion.

Mr. Currah said he thought the papers had been appreciated by all, and proposed that the sincere thanks of the members be sent to Mr. Alexander for his kindness in sending them, and especially, he thought, that on "the Woe Border." Mr. Currah said he had only kept Borders for three years, and had been very successful at shows.

As far as sib-breeding in Borders was concerned, there was, he said, a deal of difference of opinion. At the last Scottish National Show he had a conversation with Mr. Henry Bennet, of Kelso, as to how he got his birds so jaunty, nervy, stylish, and fine in feather.

Mr. James Little endorsed a good deal of what Mr. Alexander said about the Scotch Fancy, although he could not agree with him when he said that it was not a working man's bird. Having won over 500 prizes with Scotch Fancies, he thought he could claim to know something about them. He found them much stronger to-day than years ago, and he thought they were as prolific as other breeds, having bred as many as 56 young ones from five or six pairs of birds; and, generally speaking, they were just as good feeders. As for their being of a delicate nature, he was sure they were as hardy as other varieties, providing, of course, one kept them free from draughts. He assured the novices present that they would find them as easy to keep as other varieties.

Mr. Harvey said he was a novice, and a pupil of Mr. Little, whom he had found always ready and willing to assist. He, too, had found Scotch Fancies as hardy, as strong, and as prolific as other varieties, and quite within the reach of working men.

Mr. Little, in reply to a question of Mr. McPartling's, said that he approved of box cages. From these he ran his birds into their show cages, but not too much, as it might make them lazy. The breeding must be there to cause them to be nervy. He found a good way to get the birds into position was to place them upon the top of the breeding cages (in their show cages) which caused them to look down to see what was going on below.

Mr. McPartling said there was a great art in the handling of Scotch Fancies. He found Mr. Little's birds were very free movers when properly handled. Mr. Robson also made a few remarks.

Mr. J. N. F. Scott asked Mr. Young which bird he thought the type came from, and what his opinion was upon sib-breeding?—Mr. Robert Young (a Border fancier) said he thought type came from the hen's side, and colour from the cock's. He would advise novices, he said, to be very careful before in-breeding, as weak points came out doubly weak.

Mr. Jas. Shepherd moved that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to Mr. Alexander (coupling with it the name of Mr. Young), for such a splendid paper, which must have cost him a deal of thought and time. The speaker thought the Scotch Fancy a delicate bird, but after hearing such an able exponent as Mr. Little, he would, he said, change his opinion. As for "the Wee Borders," he thought them beautiful birds, and well within the reach of all. Mr. James Maddison seconded the vote of thanks. Longer back than he cared to think he used, he said, to keep the "Glasgow Dons." He could not understand their losing ground in this district, which was formerly almost a stronghold for them. He thought the introduction of the Belgian had a tendency to make the birds hardier and better feeders. It was very kind of Mr. Alexander, who lived so far away, to send such valuable papers. Several other members supported, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the meeting to an end.—CURRY AND HUTCHINSON, Hon. Secs.

Wild Bird Life.

The Sparrow Hawk.

Each day, just before sunset, a pair of Sparrow Hawks find their way to a clump of big elms on the side of the hill overlooking the village. They wheel round and round, sometimes soaring to a great height, at others gliding among the branches of the trees. They are evidently a true pair for they toy and buffet each other in mid-air in a playful manner. One will rise above the other, then swoop down as though about to strike, and with a quick twist the lower bird is out of the way and in turn becomes the aggressor. At times they come together like a pair of Swallows in summer time. While these flights occur there is not a sign of small bird life anywhere. Where they suddenly vanish to is a mystery. I have searched carefully for them, but have been unable to find a feather; they simply vanish.

When the Hawks are amusing themselves in mid-air, it makes one wonder what a battle would be like between two such formidable antagonists. I have seen Hawks strike many different species, but have never had the good fortune to see a pair fight in earnest. Such would be a grand sight. When watching the flight of one of these birds after some unlucky small bird, one can in a measure understand the keen enjoyment experienced by our ancestors in the noble sport of Hawking—a sport probably as ancient as any. As a rule this Hawk secures its prey by suddenly pouncing upon it unawares. One can frequently see it flying silently along a hedgerow for some distance, then suddenly glide over to the opposite side, possibly repeating the performance further along. Many a full-throated Linnet or trilling Bunting has been snatched from his perch before he was aware that such a dangerous enemy was in the vicinity. The common Sparrow Hawk is easily distinguished from the Kestrel by the bars running across the breast, the markings of the latter bird being longitudinal. The female is larger than her partner, and rather paler in colour. The young birds are brownish instead of slate colour above, and whitish underneath. Like some other large birds they do not acquire their adult plumage for some time, and will mate and nest while still in immature dress. Their first moult is not in the first autumn, but takes place in an irregular manner.

ORNITHOLOGICAL ODDMENTS.

Author of "The World's Birds."

The Chinese Jay-Thrush.

This bird (Dryonastes sinensis) deserves greater attention at the hands of aviculturists than it receives, for it is one of the very best of foreign songsters, and is besides a very easy bird to keep, and has the advantage of being quite unmistakable if one gets a sight of it. It is a strongly-built bird with short rounded wings and powerful feet, about the size of our Missel Thrush, and coloured quite unlike any other bird I know—slatey-grey, with a large white patch on each cheek. There is, however, no sex difference in the plumage, and this is the case with all the Jay-Thrushes. The song is very loud, composed of various repeated phrases, and very pure and sweet in tone. One of the phrases sounds like "Peko, peko, peko," whence its Chinese name, by which I found it known in Calcutta also. It is also a very accomplished imitator, and is sometimes called the Chinese mocking-bird.

Melodious Jay Thrush.

A Valued Cage Bird.

Even in Calcutta, this bird, although much more frequently imported than it is here, was not cheap, about fifteen rupees (£1) being asked for one. It lives well in captivity, even in a small cage; one my friend Rutledge had all the time I know him—seven years—and for long before that, was always kept in a high, round wicker cage of Chinese make, about a foot in diameter, and yet was in fine condition. It was very tame, and would puff out its white cheek-feathering when talked to, and made much of. These birds are brought over from China on shelled millet and dried flies, and in Calcutta are fed mainly on satoo or pea-meal; almost any decent softbills' mixture is good enough for them, and they could well "clean up" after breeding Canaries or small softbills. A little raw meat and some fruit would not come amiss, and, of course, they should have a larger cage than such a one as I have mentioned. I have seen them nesting at the Zoo, so I daresay that with care and attention they would breed in an aviary.

Chinese Jay Thrush.

The Peko's Competitor.

The Peko has a competitor for the favour of the Chinaman and his customers in the person of the Hwa-mee (Trochalopterum canorum), commonly called over here the Melodious Jay-Thrush. This, although a member of the same group of Babbling-Thrushes, has more of the Thrush and less of the Jay about it than the other. In size it about equals our Song Thrush, and in colour is a sober uniform rusty-brown, with a conspicuous white eyebrow streak; the eye itself is surrounded by a bare bluish-grey patch.

The Hwa-mee never interested me so much as the Peko; it is, I believe, a good songster, but I do not remember ever having heard the song. It has been commoner in the home market of late than its rival and superior.

Two Hen Tanagers.

I notice there is some little uncertainty abroad as to what the hen of the Scarlet Tanager (Rhamphocœlus brasilius), is like, and this is not to be wondered at, for hens of this species very rarely come to hand in comparison with the number of cocks imported. It is therefore worth mentioning that the hen Scarlet is a dark chocolate-coloured bird, with a mark of red on the rump and abdomen, this being the only trace of bright colour which she shows.

The only bird with which it ought to be possible to confuse her is the hen of the nearly-allied but very rare Maroon Tanager (Rhamphocœlus jacapa), but this differs in a rather unexpected way, having the red tinge not only on the rump and abdomen, but all over the lower surface, and even on the face, although the male is far less red than the other species. Two other hen Tanagers are perhaps sometimes confused—the hen of the Black Tanager (Tachyphonus melaleucus), and that of the very similar Crowned Tanager (Tachyphonus coronatus); the former hen is bright tan or chestnut throughout, and the latter a greyer brown. Both these species, by the way, eat seed like Finches, and I have known the Crowned live some time on this diet.

The Gentleman of the Canary Family.

A Paper read before the Chester & District Cage Bird Society.

Having been requested to read a paper before the members of this society, I hope you will excuse me, as this is my first attempt, if it should not "turn out" to your expectation. For my subject I have chosen the Yorkshire Canary. I think I am not far wrong in saying that this variety is at present about the most popular to be seen at the numerous shows held up and down the country, especially in the county of "bread acres," which, I need hardly say, is the home of the "Gentleman of the Canary Family."

The Show Specimen Described.

I will first of all roughly describe the show specimen. It should be a slim, upstanding bird, "straight as a gun barrel," as the reports say, and have feather like wax. The head must be round and neat, the beak neither too small nor too heavy. The body should be nicely moulded, well filled in at back, and rounded at chest; the wings and tail must be well carried and closely packed. The colour in the Yorkshire Canary is of no great account, although a well colour-fed bird is looked upon with favour, and most of the leading exhibitors colour-feed their stock.

It is after regularly reading the fanciers' Journal, CAGE BIRDS, and the different books, added to several years' practical study, that I claim to know a little of this particular breed. Like many other varieties the Yorkshire is a manufactured bird; it is the outcome of the crossing of three other varieties, i.e., the Lancashire, the Belgian and the Norwich; and by years of judicious breeding it has been brought to its present form.

Contributing Qualities of the Variety

I might here state the respective parts each of these varieties claim in the formation of the Yorkshire. The Lancashire has given size, the Belgian has supplied position, and the Norwich has greatly assisted towards the formation of the contour of the bird. How and what the Yorkshire has been bred from should always be borne in mind, as I feel certain those who are in the front rank must at some time revert to the sub-varieties of the Yorkshire to keep it up to its required show points. And here I might say that the chief sub-variety is the partially bred Belgian, as a Yorkshire is of no use if he is not well up on the leg, no matter how good he is in other properties. How often one sees a good bird—that is, in shape, feather, length, etc.—but instead of standing in an almost erect, bold position, it lies across the perch in the manner of a Norwich. Such a bird is only deteriorating in its Belgian properties.

Again, one sometimes sees a good bird which stands well, but is much too thick. Such I term "Norwich-Yorkshires." Then, again, you may see a big coarse-feathered bird, with its tail hanging as if on a hinge, the bird also showing "eyebrows." This, in my opinion, is another reversion to its sub-breed, the Lancashire. You may send to the best breeder and exhibitor in Yorkshire for a pair or two of properly matched Yorkshires, and you breed from them, and, no doubt, be successful in showing them for a season or two; but unless you are very careful in the pairing of their progeny you will find yourself going backwards instead of forwards.

Stick to One Variety.

I will now endeavour to give you my idea of the way one should proceed in order to be successful with this particular variety. First of all do not "dally" with more than one variety, especially if you are going in for Yorkshires, as I don't think there is any variety that requires more study and attention. To run the birds into the show cage and play with them wherever you have time to spare is one of the secrets of success, as a bird often wins by the way it sticks to its perch and shows itself off when being handled by the judge.

You must buy the very best birds that the pocket will allow. It will pay you better to wait a while, than to buy any but the very best. Get them from a successful breeder, and if you can manage it, go into his bird-room and see what you are buying. See that the hens are full of quality, for it is in regard to the hens that the majority of fanciers make their first and greatest blunders. Always bear in mind that type and quality follow the hens, whilst size and colour follow the cock.

A Good Foundation.

Two cocks and four hens would, in my opinion, constitute a good foundation upon which to build your strain. Provide yourself with an ordinary copybook, divide each page with a line across the middle, numbering the top parts from 1 to 100, and the lower from 101 onwards; this is your pedigree book. The top parts use for the cocks, and the lower for the hens. Describe each bird fully, giving its good and bad points. By following this plan you will find that it will not only create for you a further interest in the hobby, but that it will be found very essential if you are to rectify faults which may present themselves in the progeny of the birds.

Some Damaging Faults.

It might be of interest if I here describe some of the chief faults which are damaging in the exhibition Yorkshire. The one that I have found most prevalent in the Yorkshire is the weak or slack neck. No doubt this occurs chiefly by virtue of its Belgian properties, and by pairing the birds with the intention of keeping them slim. This fault I have found is easily remedied, providing you know how the birds have been bred.

Another fault is what is termed the "barrel chest," that is, the showing too much fulness at the chest and convexity at the side, usually finishing up with a frill. When this fault presents itself in your stock, my advice is, get rid of the birds at once. I do not as a rule discard birds that have a fault, but birds of this description are to me really an eyesore in the birdroom.

Then we have the "drop-tail," or, as some term it, the "hinge-tail"; that is when the tail hangs and is not in a line with the body. I might say that this is caused through the birds not being properly balanced, the legs being too near the tail-end of the body. Here is the great secret for obtaining that bold and erect carriage which is to be seen in the winning birds—always endeavour to get the legs as far forward on the body as possible, showing, what is termed, "plenty of run" from the legs to the root of tail. The Yorkshire should not be fish-tailed, but the feathers composing the tail should be properly folded, or "lapped," as if it were only one feather.

Another fault, and one that spoils many birds which are otherwise really good, is the shortness in the legs. Should your hens which you intend to breed with be inclined to be a bit short in leg, always see that the cocks have plenty in this respect. Never breed with cock birds showing this fault, and always bear in mind that size is obtained from the sire.

Concerning the Feather.

Now we come to the feather. The feather desired is that which is soft and silky to the touch, showing a kind of "mealy" or "frost" at the ends. This kind of feather is, in my opinion, obtained by breeding with birds that have a fair amount of cinnamon blood in their veins, especially when they have been inbred. I have bred some of the best feathered birds I ever saw this last season, and they have been bred this way.

FERRYHILL.

The second open show of the Ferryhill and Dis. C.B.S. was held in the Literary and Social Institute Hall, Deanbank, on December 4th. The Institute makes a really ideal place for a cage bird exhibition, the light and heat being all that could be desired. The show must be pronounced a great success. The exhibits totalled no less than 530 entries, a very creditable performance, especially considering the large number of shows being held the same day. The Norwich and Yorkshires were grand collections, both as regards numbers and quality, and many excellent specimens were staged. The novice entries were especially numerous. The Linnet class and that for Goldfinches and Bullfinches filled admirably, and the Mules and Foreign were also a good lot. The society possesses a capable lot of officials, and a good committee, composed of genuine cage bird fanciers, who looked well after the best interests of the birds and the welfare of the visitors, of whom there were a large number. The Vice-Presidents are: Messrs. R. W. Todd, J. Banner, T. Ford, J. Burton, G. Atkinson, Wakenshaw, J. Taylor, W. Nelson, H. Vester, J White, and E. Davis. The committee consists of Messrs. F. Stokell, F. Duffy, D. Martin, M. Hutchinson, T. Duffy, C. Turner, J. Lawson, J. Stubbs, R. Binks, G. Swinburne, and W. Sidlow. In Mr. R. Binks, the Hon. Sec., this young society has a man who knows how to pilot a show through, and who makes an ideal show manager. The judges, Messrs. J. Stanger and J. Maddison, appeared to give every satisfaction.

(We much regret that, owing to the sudden illness of our representative, who on that account found it quite impossible to attend this show, we are unable to give a detailed criticism of the awards. We regret this the more as this second venture of the Society was such a success.—EDITOR.)

WALKLEY.

The Walkley and Dist. C.B.S. held their 2nd annual show on November 27. The St. Phillip's Mission Hall, in which the exhibits were housed, is very cosy, and most suitable. President, Dr. T. C. Jones; vice-presidents, Rev. S. T. G. Smith and Conn. Crowther; a trio of well-known and highly-esteemed residents in the neighbourhood. Capital assistance is rendered by all, and the best thanks of the society are tendered them. The Chairman is Mr. T. Ridal, a real fancier; the hon. treas., Mr. R. Smith, is a most trustworthy servant. Hon. auditors, Messrs. G. W. Marshall and B. Bailey, a brace of very useful officials. Mr. W. E. Clarke, the hon. sec., is a real trier, and does all in his power to help matters along. Entries turned up well, and many very typical specimens were on view. It is the intention of this society, which up to the present has been confined to amateurs only, to call a special meeting, notice of which will appear in our columns shortly, to consider whether to throw open the membership to all comers. Miniature goblet, presented by Mr. J. W. Ramsden, went to Mr. B. T. Bailey; Sandiford's medal to Mr. G. W. Marshall; best bird in the show, Mr. T. Ridal; 2nd best, Mr. R. Smith. Staging was of a very neat description, credit being due to those responsible for same. Judge, Mr. W. Oxley, well-known in Shefficld birdy circles. His decisions were well received.

NELSON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual members' show held at headquarters, the Bull Hotel. The hon. secretary (Mr. J. England) is to be congratulated on again having a record entry of 141, and another record in the number of visitors. The birds were well staged and carefully attended to in every respect, and were quite ready for the judge, Mr. Matt. Broadley (Windhill). There was a grand display of Yorks. and Norwich, both for quality and number, and the British and Foreign birds were again well to the front with some splendid specimens. Mr. J. Gregson won special for most points gained by a novice, and Mr. J. W. Hartley for best unflighted Yorkshire.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE & DIS. O.S

Annual members' show held on November 27th in the Albion P.S.A. rooms, a very good place for the purpose, being well lighted and free from draughts. Entries came up well, and included many choice specimens. In the Norwich section, Mr. Fairclough's cl. buff, Mr. Kelsall's ticked buff, Messrs. Marlor Bros.' ticked yellow hen and clear buff hen, and Mr. J. Oliver's unflighted yellow are specimens far above the average, and quite capable of holding their own in the open. We were sorry Mr. Foden had no competition in the Yorkshires. The novice classes also contained several very nice birds. The secretary (Mr. H. Foden) is a very capable one, and had everything in A1 order. Mr. J. Hopkins (Bolton) judged.

SUTTON COLDFIELD.

Third annual show of the Sutton Coldfield F.S. was held in the Crystal Palace on December 8th and 9th. The room where the cage birds were staged was very well adapted for the purpose, having splendid light. Several of the exhibits were much below concert pitch, owing to the cold weather, especially those from a distance. The stewards for the section, Messrs. Brindley and Raymond, had everything well in hand, and the cards were up with every promptness. Mr. A. G. Jones, the secretary, is to be congratulated on his able management. The Mayor of Sutton opened the show. Mr. A. Paddock (King's Heath) judged.

CAMBRIDGE.

The old-established Cambridgeshire O.S. held its show in Corn Exchange on December 8th and 9th. Entries came up quite to the average, and the quality generally was good right through, especially so amongst the Britishers. The show is run by an ardent committee of fanciers, and everything is done for the comfort and welfare of exhibitors and exhibits, which experience and enthusiasm may suggest. Mr. W. Driver, the hon. sec., is one of the best officials in the country, and his long acquaintance with the duties of his office, coupled with his energy and courtesy, is a big factor in the success of the society's annual fixture. Messrs. T. W. Hawkins and A. Howlett rendered most efficient aid as assistant secretaries, and the result is that everything moved with a smoothness and celerity which were most commendable. Mr. C. A. House judged.

QUEEN'S PARK AND DISTRICT (Glasgow) C.B.S.

First annual show held in Marie Stuart Hall, November 20th. President, Mr. J. Edwards; vice-president, Mr. R. Jeffrey; treasurer and secretary, Mr. Geo. N. Thomson, to whom is due every credit for the excellent arrangements; committee, Messrs. Miller, Stuart, Powell, Young. Judges, Mr. A. Stoan (Possilpark), Norwich section; Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow), British, Yorks., Borders, and Mules. The hall is really well adapted for a show, and nicely located, being near the Queen's Park, and therefore convenient to visitors. The show was a great success for a first club show. The entries were up to 400 birds, among which were some grand specimens. Baillie Hunter, a popular local gentleman, gave away the prizes, and was supported by Mr. T. E. Byrom, who, in a little speech, promised to give the club some substantial support in the year to come. The judges got through their work to time, and their awards met with general approval. Gold medal winner, Mr. J. Powell, jun., for best bird in hall. Runner-up and best young bird in hall, Mr. A. Mitchell. Secretary Thomson was the biggest exhibitor.

NORTH LONDON.

Seventh annual show of the North London C.B.A., was held on December 3rd and 4th, in the Library Hall, Church-street, Stoke Newington. The hall is a splendid one for a cage bird show, beautifully warmed, light, and airy, and free from draughts. The hon. secretary, Mr. R. P. Harper, is an able and courteous official, and made his arrangements with a completeness and success that proved his worth to the society. The show managers, Messrs. G. Mortlock and A. B. Forse, are true and expert fanciers; consequently, the birds were well cared for. The committee are all fanciers, viz., Messrs. F. Williamson (chairman), J. Hale (vice), and W. Morris, T. Cawthorne, J. Bell, W. Lacey, W. Penton, A. B. Forse, and B. F. Forse. Mr. H. Sweetman is treasurer, and Mr. H. Pike hon. assistant secretary. The entry was good, the quality first-class, and the competition keen. Mr. C. H. Cooker won cup in champions, Mr. C. H. A. Bennett that in the amateurs; Mr. W. Lacey, novice cup; Mr. A. J. Marley, British bird cup. The Rennio trophy was won by Mr. W. Lacey, who also won the Morris cup. Points specials were won as follows:—Champ. Norwich, W. Morris; Yorks., A. E. Pattrick; Amat. Norwich, G. Langridge; Yorks., C. A. H. Bennett; Nov. Nor., J. Hale; Yorks., W. Lacey; Brit., S. Williams; For., S. Williams. Mr. J. Robson judged.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

GLASGOW & WESTERN COUNTIES.

Annual show of the Glasgow and Western Counties N.C., etc., Society was held in the Good Templars Hall, 122, Ingram-street, on December 4th, and from all points of view was a decided success. Entries did not come up to previous exhibitions, but although the entries were a bit down, the quality of the exhibits surpassed that of former exhibitions. The Templars' Hall is all that is required for a cage bird show, being of good size, affording excellent light, and is free from draughts. The office-bearers are fanciers who thoroughly understand the proper working of a show. President, Mr. F. S. Brannigan; vice-presidents, Messrs. C. Murray and J. Ramsay; treasurer, Mr. P. Pettigrew; assistant-secretary, Mr. W. Kerins; secretary, Mr. T. Drysdale; committee, Messrs. G. Marlin, J. Roddie, H. Brown, W. Shearer, W. Johnstone, C. Small, D. King, A. Gardner; trustees, Messrs. W. Connelly, A. Macfarlane, and A. McInnes; auditors, Messrs. A. Cant and J. Peters. President Brannigan had his men well in hand, and was ably assisted by the secretary and the treasurer. Plainheads made an excellent show, and Borders, although not numerous, contained some typical specimens. Mules, British, and Foreign made up the show, and some classy stuff was to be seen. Cup for best bird in show was won by Mr. A. Macfarlane, with his noted Plainhead. Young bird cup for best Norwich, Crest, or C.B. was also won by him. Cup for best young Border Fancy was won by Mr. C. Small. The young Mule cup was again won by Mr. W. Johnstone with a charming Linnet-Bullie; the British bird cup, Mr. A. Malcolmson, with a Linnet. Judging was got through in good time, and the awards all over seemed to give satisfaction. The judges: Norwich and Crest classes, Mr. W. Watson (Kilmarnock); Borders, Mr. A. Hay (Tweedmouth); Mules, British and Foreign, Mr. S. Ward (Glasgow).

Held in the Town Hall, High Barnet, on Nov. 27th. Mr. F. Chandler, the hon. secretary, is a true friend and helper, and did his level best to achieve success, aided by a splendid body of committee men. Entries were good, quality ditto, and competition keen. Cup for best Canary was won by Mr. A. Punchard, the successful bird being a typical, fine feathered buff Norwich. British were a good show, Mr. Punchard also winning the principal special in this section with a smart Goldfinch. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

FORRES.

The Forres O.A. held their 23rd annual event in the Mechanics' Institute on December 4th. The entry was slightly in advance of last year's. The Britishers have, if anything, advanced in quality. The medal for best small British bird was awarded to Mr. E. Todd's Bearded Tit, he also taking medal for best large British. The cock Bullfinch class contained birds of exceptional merit, and was the best class in the show. The Borders, although only provided with one class, made a grand display. The secretary, Mr. W. Cumming, had everything in capital order, and deserves every praise for his able management. He was well supported by many earnest workers among the members. Mr. J. Strachan (Aberdeen) judged.

PORT GLASGOW O.S.

The 41st annual show of Scotch Fancy Canaries was held in the Co-operative Hall on Nov. 20th. The hall is well ventilated, and an ideal place for an affair of the kind. This club is well patronised by the local gentlemen, and is in a flourishing condition. The quality of the birds was above the average, and was a decided advance on last year's. The president, Mr. David Reid, along with Mr. John Thompson, had everything in the best of order. The staging was nicely placed along each side of the hall, which kept the birds free from draughts. We think this society would do well to advertise their show more locally. The hard working committee consisted of Messrs. M'Mannus, Beckett, Graham, and Rodger, backed up by Messrs. Reid and Thompson, and they had everything in the best of order. The judges were Messrs. J. Watson (Glasgow) and Nisbit (Galston), who both gave every satisfaction. At the close Mr. Laing presented the cup and medals and various specials to their respective winners, and in a splendid speech complimented the society on the successful show.

DUNFERMLINE AND DIS. C.B.S.

First annual members' show held in the Co-operative Hall on November 13th, when Mr. Hogg judged the Scotch Fancies, Mr. Hyslop the Norwich and Borders, and Mr. A. W. Watson the British and Foreign birds. The entries totalled 200 in number, and this, for a new society, must be regarded as highly satisfactory; it certainly reflects the greatest credit on the hon. sec., Mr. R. T. Campbell. Special for most points (64) was secured by Mr. Campbell, the runner-up being Mr. Dickson, with 54 points.

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD.

The Hemel Hempstead and Dis. F.S. held their second annual show at the Town Hall on Dec. 1st. The exhibits were well staged and cared for. There was a great improvement in the quality of the cage birds this year, and the number was greatly increased. The class of Yorkshires was extra good as regards quality and type. The cage bird section was judged by Mr. F. J. S. Chatterton.

NOR. CL. (7): 1, Buckingham, very nice shape, good carriage and feather; 2, 3, r, vhc, Pigg; 2, 3, couple of stylish birds of nice type; hc, Inch. TKD., ETC. ULSTER O.A. (Belfast).

Annual show of the Ulster O.A. was held in the Clarence Place Hall, May-street, Belfast, on December 3rd and 4th, under the patronage of the U.K.B.C.A., the N.P.C., the Y.C.C., and the Y.C.B.S. The hall is splendidly adapted for a cage bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. Although entries were not altogether as numerous as was expected, the quality of the exhibits staged could not be found fault with. Belgians and Scotch Fancies came up well, and without doubt some of the finest birds ever benched in Ireland were to be seen. Gold medal (presented by the U.K.B.C.A.) was captured by Mr. J. Fairley for best young Belgian shown by a member; silver cup (value £5 5s.) went to Mr. J. Niell's Scotch Fancy. Norwich came up in very fair numbers. The U.O.A. silver cup (value £5 5s.) for best young bird in Crests, C.B., or Nor. was won by Mr. S. Leacock. Yorkshires in numbers were somewhat disappointing, only 80 birds in 11 classes; yet the quality was all that could be desired. In the champions Mr. E. Tighe won special for best Yorks. in show. Some lovely specimens were also staged by Messrs. Devins, Fleming, Coyne, and Keating, while in the novice classes, Mrs. Taylor, Dr. Lavery, and Messrs. Woods, Hyland, McEntegart, and Mulligan were well in the cards. The hard-working, courteous, and energetic secretary, Mr. James Stewart, and his committee, had things well in hand, and ably looked after the wants of the birds entrusted to their care. Mr. T. Todd (Partick) judged the Scotch Fancy and variety sections, and Mr. J. Wilcock (Eccleshill) the Norwich and Yorkshire sections, and their awards gave entire satisfaction. The show was well attended by visitors from all parts, and exhibitors, on both days, and many of the birds were claimed at catalogue price. The show, from the visitors' point of view, seemed to be a huge success, and we predict when the treasurer's report is read it will be found a nice little balance will be on hand. The committee are: Messrs. J. Carson, R. Trimble, W. Gray, A. South, J. Ronaldson, J. Neill, J. Lavery, J. J. Cloke, M. Fleming, and R. Tedford.

LOCHCRAIG (Lochore).

First annual show of the Lochcraig F.A. was held on December 4th. The function took place in the Public Hall, a large and well-lighted place and very suited for such a purpose. The birds were shown to great advantage. There were 60 classes provided for cage birds, and taken all over, these received a very fair measure of support. The winning yellow Scotch Fancy hen belonging to Mr. J. Noble, is a bird of great merit. Mr. Craig (Edinburgh) won spl. for best bird in the hall with a gem of a buff unlighted Norwich hen, which should be heard of again. The management of the show was in the capable hands of Mr. C. Thomson (President), Mr. Dan McAnley (Vice-President), and Mr. R. Balloch, the Secretary, who deserves a word of praise for the able way in which he carried through his duties, and for his obliging manner. The treasurer is Mr. J. Brown. And these were ably assisted by a hard-working committee composed of genuine fanciers, who looked after the comfort of the birds and visitors alike. The judges were: For Canaries, Messrs. Fotheringham (Kelty) and T. Kean (Edinburgh); and for British, Mules, and Foreign, Mr. A. Cochrane (Edinburgh); and their awards gave every satisfaction. The show was well patronised by the public.

BANNOCKBURN (New) C.B.S.

First annual show held November 6th in the Town Hall. It proved a great success for a first venture, and gave every encouragement to the members to continue same. Owing to the secretary, Mr. W. Ritchie, having met with an accident, his place was well filled by Messrs. Auld and Campbell, backed up by a hard-working committee. The Borders were the best-filled classes, the special for best being won by J. Auld, a young fancier who also won cup for most points in that section. The cup for best in hall was won by Mr. F. Strathearn with a grand Scotch Fancy, the runner-up being a Crest belonging to Mr. H. Moreland. Plainheads were not strong either in quantity or quality, but British birds were a grand lot all over, the majority of the first winners being outstanding exhibits, the special for best going to a lovely Magpie belonging to Mr. T. McDiarmid.

CUPAR (Fife).

The 22nd annual show of the Cupar and Dis. O.S. was held on December 4th, in Corn Exchange. The Hall is large and lofty, and has splendid top light. The cage birds were staged on a raised platform at the end, divided by a screen. The entry all over was good, although many classes were, we are sorry to say, cancelled, which may be partly attributed to the cancelling of all classes last season. This season the society have been fortunate in procuring the services of their late Secretary (Mr. W. Ruddiman), who is putting heart and soul into the section, and we think that with another year they will be up to all past records. Mr. Ruddiman thoroughly understands his work; he is cool, energetic, courteous, and obliging. He is ably backed up by a host of workers as members of the committee. We were pleased to see many fanciers' wives accompanying them, and handling the stock with more than critical eyes. The best Scotch Fancy was owned by Mr. Thornton. Norwich, although few, included many valuable birds. Special for best was carried off by Mr. Howie. Borders were the feature of the show, the entry being good and the quality superb; indeed, in some of the classes it was a meeting of champions. Mr. McKenzie won special for best with a charmer. Yorkshires were a nice lot, the winners coming all the way from Whitehaven. British birds were down in numbers, but quality was excellent. The visitors were out in strong force. Judges: For Scotch Fancies, Mr. W. Rodger (Stratford); for Norwich, Mr. J. Adams (Dundee); for Borders and Yorks, Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside); and for British, etc., Mr. A. C. Dandie (Edinburgh). Their awards all over were well received.

BRIDLINGTON.

Bridlington F.S. held their fourth annual open show at the Priory Institute on December 2nd. The society is to be congratulated upon having the services of Mr. A. J. H. Townsend as secretary, and he with the committee worked well to make the show the success it was. We much regret, however, having to record the fact that the "gate" was a very small one, doubtless due to the exceptionally bad weather. Our section was a decided improvement both in numbers and quality on previous shows, some of the best Yorkshires in the East Riding of the county being on view. Mr. G. Harland (Hull) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction. The Norwich, though weak in numbers, were good in quality, and we congratulate Mr. R. Lyon (a local member) upon his winning premier honours, especially considering the winning Bull had been bred by him. May we express the hope that the society will next year be able to increase the prize money, and so bring our section up in numbers and importance in this mixed show?

ORMSKIRK.

Annual Show of the Ormskirk and Dis. C.B.S., held on Nov. 27 in the large club room of the Buck i' the Vine Hotel, where a large number of birds, some of them of excellent quality, were staged. There were many visitors to the show, and we expect to hear that it was a financial success as well The management of affairs was in the hands of Mr. Tiffen, the hon. sec., to whom is due much credit for the successful issue of the venture. His efforts were ably seconded by a capital committee and some able stewards. Fanciers, when sending to this show, may rest assured that their birds will be well looked after. Mr. A. Hirst, Accrington, judged, and his awards, we hear, gave every satisfaction.

COWDENBEATH.

Annual show of the Cowdenbeath O.S. held Nov. 27th. The Junction took place in the Drill Hall, which is very suitable, being lighted from the roof and free from draught. Despite the splendid classification the response was not very gratifying, though what was lacking in quantity was made amends for in the quality of the birds staged. But it is very discouraging to a society to see their labours but poorly rewarded; however, we hope that when another year comes round fanciers will give more liberal support. In Mr. Falconer, the secretary, the society possess an ideal official, one who is most obliging and courteous to both exhibitors and visitors alike. He is ably supported by the President, Mr. G. Sinclair, and a hard-working committee of genuine fanciers, who had everything in readiness when judging commenced. Messrs. W. Cullen (Dunfermline), and Anderson (Kelty) judged and their awards gave entire satisfaction. The show was well patronised by the public. Mr. Duff (Kelty), won silver cup for most points.

MUSSELBURGH.

Musselburgh O.S. second annual show held in the Assembly Hall, High Street, on Nov. 27th, and was a gratifying success. The show is confined to members, and the grand entry of 500 exhibits speaks well for the progress of the Fancy in this district. Norwich Plainheads were forward in great numbers, and the quality was a distinct advance upon former years. Mr. J Smeaton here captured the Macgregor gold medal for best bird in hall, a win which proved very popular. In the Border Fancy section Mr. Miller,of Portobello, had a regular field day, accounting for seven first prizes, along with the gold medal for best Border, also the B.F.C.C. medal. The British section was the feature of the show. The secretary, Mr. W. Nisbet, is new to the task, but he proved himself equal to the occasion, and soon made hosts of new friends by his quiet and courteous manner. He was ably assisted by Mr. W. R. Dunn (president), Mr. M. Kavanagh (vice-president), and a grand working committee, all arrangements being carried through like clockwork. Judging was over in good time, and the show opened early to the public, and we were pleased to see the crowds who patronised the show. Judges were: For Scotch and Border Fancies, Mr. T. Todd (Edinburgh); for Norwich and Yorkshires, Mr. J. Ferguson (Glasgow); for British, Mules, and Foreign, Mr. P. Pettigrew (Glasgow). Other special winners were: Messrs. A. Hoyle, A. Fleming, P. Noble, J. Leach., RUTHERGLEN AND DIST. C.B.S.

Third annual show of the Rutherglen and Dis. O.A. took place on 20th Nov., in the Rechabites' Hall. There was a very good turn-out of exhibits, about 220 birds being passed in review before the judges, Messrs. A. K. Chalmers (for the Border Fancies), and J. Young (for Crests, Norwich, British and Foreign). Both judges expressed themselves as highly pleased with the quality of the birds, and congratulated the members on the progress made during the three years' existence of the Society.

CASTLE DOUGLAS.

Castle Douglas C.B.S. held their annual show on December 4th, and taken all round the entry was good, considering the date clashed with Annan, Borders and Norwich were a shade down in numbers, but the quality was grand. The feature of the show were the Mules and British, the Goldfinch class being exceedingly strong, and again headed by that well-known Britisher, "Pride of Galloway," so successfully shown by Messrs. McMinn Bros. Mr. McQuiston secured special for best Britisher with a grand Bearded Tit. Special for best cage bird was secured by Mr. Griffiths' almost clear Crestbred. The day was very cold, and a few of the birds seemed to feel the effects of their journey. The management, as usual, was up-to-date, everything being in apple-pie order, and the stewards were all well-known fanciers and greatly assisted in the staging of the exhibits. The executive are to be congratulated upon having such an ideal secretary in Mr. J. C. Burnie, who managed the show with such perfect skill; he was also assisted by his never-tiring colleagues. Mr. J. W. Bruce judged, and his awards on the whole were very well received.

"Cage Birds"154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

JEDBURGH.

Annual open exhibition of the Jedburgh C.B., etc., Association was held in the Public Hall on 4th December. The hall is an ideal one for a cage bird display, being fitted throughout with up-to-date heating apparatus and having good level light. In the president, Mr. J. E. Mein, the society possess a true fancier, who has the welfare of the show at heart, and who is ably assisted by the two vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Richardson and W. Veitch. The secretaries, Messrs. T. Scott and A. Frater, deserve more than a word of praise for the workmanlike manner in which the arrangements were carried out. The committee are evidently thorough and well tried fanciers, and well-known exhibitors. Great credit is due to them for the way they attended the wants of the exhibits. The following are the committee:—Messrs. W. Renilson, H. McLevy, T. Taylor, W. Waldie, P. Carruthers, J. Yellowlees, G. Balfour, R. Robson, J. Middleton, J. Veitch, R. S. Easton, W. Bathgate, J. Hogg, A. Oliver, J. Halliday, and E. Haig. Entries were much better than for a few years past, and quality was well to the foro. Only two classes were provided for Scotch Fancies, but these were graced with birds which can well hold their own in good company. Norwich were well forward in type and quality. Borders had the premier honours as regards number of classes given, and a very fine group of this smart set were on view. British, etc., classes were a very attractive feature. A few really good ones were staged. The show was well patronised, and we hope it will turn out a success financially. Mr. P. McKenzie (Kelso) judged the various sections, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

PUDSEY, STANNINGLEY & DIS. O.S.

The 3rd members' show was held on Nov. 24th, at Oddfellow Hall. The interest which has been manifest throughout the season is still as keen as ever. Entries came up strong, 109 birds being staged. The competition for cup and special is left in such a state as to ensure another good entry on Dec. 27th, which will be the last show for the season. Mr. Armstrong (Halifax) judged, and his awards were well received.

ALTRINCHAM.

The 6th annual open show of the Altrincham and Dis. T.U.B.S. was held in the Literary Institute, George Street, on December 3rd and 4th. The room is very well adapted in every way for a cage bird show, and is very convenient to station. The chairman, Mr. W. Wilkinson, the vice-chairman, Mr. T. Brennan, the treasurer, Mr. W. Bayley, and the committee, Messrs. A. Jackson, G. Hickson, and H. Broome, worked well together, and gave valuable assistance to the sec., Mr. Tom Harrison, and the assistant secretary, Mr. B. Head, who proved themselves very capable and efficient show managers, everything possible being done to make the show a success. The show, being under the patronage of the Green Canary Association, and the International contest between the Border F.C. and the English and Welsh B.F.C., these varieties were strongly in evidence, especially in the case of the Borders, which were a huge collection, and included many of the best birds out this season. Norwich, Yorkshires and British, although not strong in numbers, were all there for quality, and competition for premier honours was in many classes very keen. Messrs. A. Wellings (Prescot), and S. Hadwin (Liverpool) judged, and we heard no complaints.

Mr. A. Wellings' Classes.

BUFF: Cancelled.

The International Border contest was a great success, the entry being a record one for these contests. The clears and ticks were well up to the usual high standard when the best exhibitors of both countries are in evidence. The even-marks were a good class, and it was quite a change to see this class stand. The Cinnamons are improving in type, but still leave a good deal to be desired from a colour point of view. The Greens were a magnificent lot, probably the best collection ever seen together—70 in four classes, which left a lot of first-class birds cardless. CL. YELL. CK. (12): 1, 2, Bayley, both good shape and quality, free action, hard to separate, leader slightly better style; 3, Blackshaw, wee shade stronger, free action, good quality; 4, Gore, grand quality, neat shape; vhc, Bowes; hc, Wilkinson; c, Hudson. Canary Breeding for Beginners

By CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

Post Free 7d.

A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary Breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner in the hobby.

Contains many helpful illustrations, and deals very fully, and in an easily-understandable manner, with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing, and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, etc.

All the details of bird-breeding explained, while it shows the way out of all difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet St., London, E.C.

EXETER AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Third annual members' show, held at the Corn Exchange, on November 6th, when the entries totalled 250—80 up in number on last year's. The quality, too, was good. The hon. secretary, Mr. R. H. Folley, had the arrangements well in hand. Mr. E. A. Lovell (Bristol) judged.

CHESTER.

The Chester F.A. held their fifth annual show under C.B.U. rules on December 4th in the Assembly Rooms, Newgate Street, and for a members' show it must be counted a great success. Nearly 200 birds were staged, and the quality was far above what is usually seen at a members' show. Norwich led the way with some really fine typical birds, and here we found the handsome cup winner in the clear yel. class; the owner, Mr. Winnard, is to be highly congratulated upon staging such a grand bird. The officers:—President, Mr. R. Whitlow; vice-presidents, Messrs. Crane and T. Wright; committee, Messrs. J. Bracegirdle, T. Gardner, T. Jones, J. Dutton, W. Crossley, W. Wadley, R. Williams, and W. R. Morris; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. Stovin; hon. secretary, Mr. J. Swindley, who is the right man in the right place. A good lot of specials were competed for. The light in the hall was good, the judging was over in fine time, and prize cards were up as fast as each class was judged, so that the public as soon as the show opened were able to scan the catalogues and locate the winners at once. Although the weather was so cold, there was a good number of visitors, and we hope a successful gate was taken. Mr. C. Houlton judged, and all appeared satisfied with the results.

FALMOUTH.

Held Dec. 30th. Heartily are these fanciers to be congratulated upon the success attending the first effort made by the combination of the old Cage Bird Society with the newly formed Fanciers' Association. Our Falmouth friends scored a record show so far as entries were concerned, and the quality was generally admitted to be the best ever seen in this district. Norwich were splendid, nearly the whole of the birds shown excelling in shape and feather, and not one single representative of the big loose-feathered family was to be seen. Amongst the Yorkshires, also, were some remarkably fine birds, birds which for shape and size were splendid, but Cornish fanciers have not quite learnt how to stage a Yorkie. Many of the birds at Falmouth would have looked far different had they been turned out by some of the Northern fanciers. Cinnamons, though few, were good, as were the Mules and British. The arrangements were most ably carried out by the committee, Messrs. C. Lenderyou and W. J. Medlin making a splendid pair of secretaries, and receiving great assistance from Mr. T. Burton, the old secretary of the Cage Bird Society. The day was very rough and stormy, yet the attendance was good, and visitors felt well repaid by the grand lot of birds which met their gaze. Mr. C. A. House judged, and although he had 600 exhibits to get through, finished soon after the time fixed for the opening of the show. We believe, too, the financial success of the fixture was assured. The society deserves to meet with every success.

The Critique.

NOR. CL. YELL. ANNAN.

The first show of Annan C.B.F.A., an off-shoot from the Poultry and Pigeon Society of the town, was held on December 4th in the Good Templar Hall. The hall is admirably suited for a cage bird show, having a good floor space, high roof, and plenty of light. The staging was all that could be desired, and was arranged on the three-tier system round the room, and one rack down centre of room, which showed the exhibits at their best. The entries totalled 241, which works out at over eight per class, and the quality of the exhibits was good, some birds of real merit being forward in all sections. The Scotch Fancies were few in number, but the two that were shown were of excellent quality, the first prize yellow cock winning Hyde's special, being pressed hard by some excellent Norwich and Yorkshires. The Border Fancy, Norwich, and Yorkshire sections were a grand display. The British birds included some well-known winning specimens. The juvenile class had 26 entries, which the judge wanted divided into two classes, as the one half were Canaries, and the other British and Foreign birds, but the committee said that at present they had not funds to spare, but hoped by another year to be able to do so. The secretary, Mr. J. Urquhart, was quite the right man in the right place, and had the arrangements well in hand, and was well assisted by Messrs. Wilson, Johnstone, McBride, Campbell, McEwan, Hind, Millar, and Lees, who were all busy doing what they could for exhibits as well as exhibitors. This show deserved a larger entry than they got. It is a pity that two shows should be held so near to each other on the same day as Castle Douglas and Annan. The judges were Messrs. H. Connerton (Carlisle), and Wm. McMillan (Dumfries), and they finished their work in good time.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING.

Ninth annual show of the Houghton-le-Spring and Dis. C.B.S. was held on Dec. 4th, the venue being the large room above the White Lion Hotel, a very nice place for the holding of a cage bird show. Entries came up splendidly, totalling nearly 200, this being a slight increase on last year's. The quality was really good, and especially was this noticeable in the Norwich, Cinnamon and Crest-bred sections, some really grand birds being staged in these classes. Special for best young bird in show was secured by Mrs. H. Fenwick, the runner up being Mr. P. Passmoor. The arrangements were all in the hands of the genial secretary, Mr. D. Hann, who performed his duties in a very creditable manner, being ably assisted by a very hardworking body of fanciers, consisting of the president, Mr. Norman Robinson; chairman, J. Stables; treasurer, R. H. Dixon; and Messrs. H. Fenwick, H. Kilner, G. Gowland, T. Davison, G. Green, A. Leech, B. Robinson, J. Lowery, P. Passmoor, and M. Dixon. The show was well patronised during the afternoon by a large attendance of visitors. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged, and gave every satisfaction.

NEWPORT (I. of W.).

Cage birds at this show held on December 1st were one of the finest collections we have ever seen in the Island, and it has been our pleasure to visit this show on many occasions, this being the 23rd annual event. Mr. Cooper was at the helm on the first occasion, and still holds the reins, and it would be hard to find a better secretary. We also noticed two or three of the same old committee; so one may depend everything was done for the comfort of the birds that could be done. Mr. C. E. Silk judged, and his awards were well received.

NOR. CL. YELL. (10): 1, 2, 3, Baker, wonderful team, winner takes spl, for best in show, with two or three other spls, an ideal of a Nor., well staged; res, c, Morris, two nice birds, latter one of the best, only gone at neck, which kept him back; vhc, Lowe, good quality; hc, Caddy. BUFF (9): 1, Lowe, one of the best for col. and quality we have ever seen; 2, Baker; 3, Morris, hard to separate, two fine Nor.; res, Baker; vhc, he, Chessell; c, More. TKD. YELL: 1, res, Morris, lovely pair; 2, Lowe; 3, vhc, Baker, all good specimens, and fit for any show. BUFF: 1, Lowe, grand uncven mkd. buff, scarcely a fault; 2, Morris; 3, Baker, two real show Nor.; r, Mooreman. YORKS. CL. (8): 1, spl, Cooper, buff, very typical specimen, feather fits like a Java Sparrow's; 2, 3, Cooper; res, Morris. TKD., ETC.: 1, 3, Morris, two very useful birds, true to type, good carriage and position; 2, Kirk, another true Yorkie; r, Morris. PAIRS (5): 1, r, Caddy, nice Nor.; 3, Mooreman; vhc, Rolf. MULES, LIGHT: 1, spl, Baker, a lovely even mkd. yell.; 2, 3, Morris, two specimens one may feel proud of. GOLDFINCH: 1, Caddy, nice steady white-legged bird, several black-legged birds were staged, which were passed; 2, Bricknell; 3, Chiverton, two neat Finches, good faces and moons; res, Woodford. BULLFINCH (9): 1, Morris, one of the best we have ever seen, not the largest, but a real good show Bullfinch; 3, Harvie; r, Caddy. A.O.V. (11): 1, spl, Drake, lovely Hawfinch in faultless trim; 2, Heal, one of the best birds we have seen for a long time; 3, Chiverton, good Crossbill; r, Lowe, Brambling; vhc, White, Greenfinch, fine bird; hc, Harvie, Heal. FOR.: Small classes, but they contained some rare specimens. GREY or AMAZON: 1, Cant, Amazon in fine plumage, it would have a word in when the Mayor was opening the show, which caused some amusement; 2, Mrs. Nobbs, Grey; 3, Chambers. A.O.S. FOR.: 1, Willford, grand pair of Silver-eared Mesias, shown in fine form; 2, Willford, superb Tanager; 3, Willford, Diamond Sparrows. PARROT, ETC.: 1, 3, Willford, and spl. best Foreign, grand King; 2, Denuess, Redwing; vhc, Daish. The two selling classes contained some cheap birds. (20s.): 1, 2, Morris; 3, Lowe. (10s.): 1, Bull; 2, Morris; 3, Mooreman. (20s.): 1, 2, 3, Willford.

ARNISTON AND GOREBRIDGE.

The Arniston and Gorebridge O.S. held their annual exhibition in the Newbyres Hall on November 27th. The society's office bearers were: President, Mr. A. Brown; vice-president, Mr. J. Clapperton; secretary and treasurer, Mr. J. Lambie. The committee is composed of the following well-known fanciers:—Messrs. J. Russell, T. Davidson, R. and J. Junners, G. and A. Pringle, D. Bernard, H. Blyth, and D. Peden. Entries were a disappointment, being very short in numbers, which can hardly be accounted for, as the schedule was a very fair one, and in the judge, Mr. R. Lambie, of Whitburn, they had a fancier who can handle birds well. The smaller hall was fitted up for the cage bird section separately, and very comfortable the birds were. It is of medium size and good light. In Mr. J. Lambie this society possesses a painstaking and obliging secretary, and we hope to see fanciers rally round this fixture another season, to make it a success.

BIRKENHEAD C.B.F.A.

Eighth annual show held on Nov. 20th, in the Co-op. Hall. The hall is a very suitable place, spacious and free from draughts, and very convenient for everybody. The management was everything that could be desired, not the slightest detail being omitted. The committee are certainly to be congratulated on the manner in which they had matters arranged. The staging was well designed, with ample spaces between the aisles, thus giving everyone a good opportunity of inspecting the exhibits with ease and comfort. The quality of the exhibits was capital, some ideal specimens being staged. Amongst the Crests and Crest-breds were some very fine birds, fit to win at large shows. Yorkshires, which are always one of the strong sections of this Association's shows, were better than ever. The Yorks. Greens came up well; many of the winners were birds that have already won at some of our large open shows, and they did credit to their owners and the exhibition. Mr. Tams (Longton) judged, and gave satisfaction all-round.

LIVERPOOL B.B.A.

Annual C.B.A. Show held on November 27th, in the Caledonian Schools, Oldham Street, where nearly 400 entries gave the judges a good morning's work. Type and quality were well represented. Everything was well in hand and the prize cards up in good time. Messrs. Hawkes and Eccleston, the secretary and his assistant, are capital workers, whilst Mr. Isaac made a genial chairman. Messrs. Cowgill and Davis judged, and their awards gave general satisfaction.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S

Annual show held in the Vestry Hall on Nov. 20th. The entries were very good, and the quality of the birds compared favourably with that of other shows held by the society. The staging was well arranged, giving plenty of room for visitors, and it was wanted when the winners of the gilt class were announced. M. W. Richinson, the hon. secretary, was ably assisted by the president of the society, Mr. L. Havenhand, also the vice-president, Mr. E. Johnson, and the following committee:—Messrs. B. Welbon, T. Smith, and J. Williamson. Specials were very numerous, and in some cases the competition for them was very keen, especially for the medals for the best colour-fed birds in show, Mr. W. Highley winning Mr. Ramsden's medal, and Mr. L. Havenhand Mr. Sandiford's. Mr. W. Richinson won special for best hird in Nor. section, Mr. L. Haveuhand for best birl in Yorks., and Mr. T. Smith for best bird in British. Mr. W. Grainger won special for best novice Nor., and Mr. W. Walker for best novice Yorks. Mr. G. Browning judged Yorkshires, Mr. H. Taylor the Norwich, and Mr. W. Bagnall the British birds, and their awards were well received.

LITTLEBOROUGH.

Third annual show held on Nov. 27th, in the Parish Church Schoolroom, a room well adapted for the purpose. Entries averaged just under eight per class. The Lancashire C.A. gave their patronage, and well worthy of particular notice were the three young Lancashires exhibited by Mr. Turner. Mr. W. Hardy (Oldham) adjudicated in the Lancashire, Crests, and Norwich sections, and Mr. Harrison (Hebden Bridge) judged the remainder. The Secretary, Mr. Smith, worked hard, and had everything in apple pie order, cards being up by noon, and prize money paid out during the show. The stewards comprised all the members, and great attention was paid to the despatch of the birds. The Littleborough lady "Inniders" attended to the wants of visitors in the way of refreshments.

LEYTON AND DIS. C.B.S.

The third annual show was held at the Constitutional Club on Nov. 20th, when there was a record entry, 320 birds being entered. The committee were well repaid for some new features, one of the chief being the reducing of the price of admission from 6d. to 3d. The large hall was packed with visitors from 5 p.m. until the time of closing, and it was a great success financially. Mr. J. Robson judged.

The Man Who Won

Was the man who had good birds and the knowledge of HOW TO SHOW THEM to the greatest advantage. If you want to win you must also have this knowledge, and the best and cheapest manner for all Norwich Canary Fanciers to obtain the latest and most up-to-date information on BREEDING, MANAGING AND PREPARING their birds for the show bench is to purchase at once a copy of "Cage Birds" latest handbook, entitled:

NORWICH CANARIES

By C. A. HOUSE.

Price - - 1s. 1d. post free.

This Handbook, complete and comprehensive in every detail, supplies in a concise manner all the information that it is necessary to know to become a successful breeder and exhibitor of Norwich Canaries.

FROM THE EGG TO THE SHOW BENCH.

It explains fully the best methods of pairing up the stock birds; how to feed and treat when the young are hatched; the art of colour feeding, and the best methods of washing and preparing for show. It contains a coloured plate and numerous illustrations of the different varieties, and is a veritable encyclopædia on the Norwich Canary, which no breeder, whether novice or old hand, can afford to be without.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-ides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or, if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—Three Words a Penny up to eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. MINIMUM, 12 words, 4d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Fourpence.

Headlines or Footlines 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6 according to size.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the Advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

MY CLAP NETS
Are made from the finest and strongest thread obtainable, and to convince you that they are put together better than any net advertised, I will send them carriage paid, 4yds. 5/-, 5yds. 6/-, 6yds. 7/-, 7yds. 8/-, 8yds. 9/-, 9yds. 10/-, 10yds. 11/-, all 5ft. deep, two nets to each pair, with pegs, poles, and pull lines; loose netting, ¼in. mesh, 7ft. deep 5d. yard, ⅜in. mesh, 7ft. deep, 3d.; 10ft. deep, 4d. yard; bird brace swivels 2d., all post free.—Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

MY SELF-ACTING SPRING NET TRAPS
catch birds of every description without any attention, price 1/6; larger size, 2/-, carriage paid. I have received hundreds of testimonials stating they are worth double the money of any trap advertised. Read two, and beware of cheaper imitations that are not worth the cost of carriage: "Sir,—I received the net trap; it is honestly worth a dozen of some of the nets advertised. I tried it this afternoon and caught more birds in two hours than I have caught in other traps in two months.—George Matthews, Bird Catcher, 2, Lucas-street, Stockport." "Sir,—Trap arrived. It is far superior to all others. I have to-day caught fifteen Linnets, six Redpolls, four Chaffinches, three Greenfinches.—J. Scragg, The Old Brewery, Armitage-road, Rugeley." Entirely self-acting and self-setting trap cages, warranted to catch birds and resct without attention, 1/6.—Henry Morris, 112, Cape-hill, Birmingham.

FOR YOUR HOLIDAY.

Whether it be Christmas, New Year, or any other time, what could be more delightful than a bit of bird catching. Given decent weather and proper appliances (the sort that Gore makes), and there you are; but you must have correct tools to work with, otherwise you might just as well stay at home. I have a staff of skilled craftsmen busily engaged in making up every description of catching appliances, and hold an enormous stock all brand spanking new, ready to be dispatched immediately on receipt of order. Let me have your order any time, and goods shall be on rail same day, and bear in mind, all are sent on approval on the distinct understanding that the whole of your money is promptly returned if after you have tried the article you fail to find it perfectly satisfactory. I particularly ask you to compare sizes, price of my nets, etc., with any others on the market. Clap nets made from genuine ⅝in. mesh netting, 3yds. long 4/- pair; ditto 4yds. 5/-, 5yds. 6/-, 6yds. 7/-, 7yds. 8/-, 8yds. 9/-, 9yds. 10/-, 10yds. 11/-, all guaranteed 5½ft. deep and 4ft. fly. Clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, and each net is guaranteed actual measurement as stated above, and price includes the two nets, pegs, poles, lines, and everything ready for immediate use. Sparrow nets, fitted on 15ft. bamboo poles 5/6, ditto on 17ft. poles 6/-, ditto on 19ft. poles 6/6, all complete. Loose thread netting, ⅝in. mesh 7ft. deep 3d. yard, ditto 9ft deep 4d. yard, ditto 12ft. deep 5d. yard, all post free. This netting is not thick fishing netting, but warranted knit specially for bird netting, and is same as used in all my bird nets. Self-acting spring net traps 24in. long 18in. wide, 1/- each, ditto 18in. long, 9d. each. These net traps are by far the largest and most effective traps on the market. They are entirely different to all others, can be baited for hardbills and softbills at same time, and call bird may be used inside them if required. Will catch and hold uninjured any bird from Wren to Rook, and are so simple a child can work them. (See testimonials below). Single trap cages 6d. each, double ditto 1/- each, treble ditto 1/3 each, all with separate compartment for call birds. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages, guaranteed to re-set immediately each bird is caught without any attention whatever, 1/6 each. Round topped call cages 3d. each, ditto square topped with soldered wires 4d. each. The real Japanese lime, guaranteed absolutely strongest on the market. Will stand a week's frost or rain, and then hold any bird that flies, ¼lb. 6d., ½lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6, sample 3d., all post free. Hundreds upon hundreds of Lark nets, clap nets, and everything else required by catchers always in stock. Send stamp for full printed list, which also gives hints on net making, etc. Please notice few more unsolicited testimonials given below. I have published more testimonials in this paper alone than all other net-makers put together:—"109, London-road, Grays, Essex, Dec. 9. Sir,—Clap nets and fittings received quite safe, and must say they are well worth the money and really better than I expected. I must thank you for your honest way in dealing. Yours A. Goodwin." "40, Rosedale-street, Shieldfield, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Dec. 11th. Sir,—Please send pair clap nets as follows. I am very pleased with the trap cage and spring net trap, they work splendidly. Yours, Jobling." "110, Adamswell-street, Springburn, Glasgow, Dec. 6th. Sir,—I duly received spring net traps, and they are far beyond my expectations. They cleared their cost ten times over the first time I took them out, as I caught some nice Linnets and Chaffinches with them. They are a marvel for the money. Please send pair clap nets as follows. Yours, J. Watson." "53, Liverpool-road, South Birkdale, Southport, Dec. 7th. Sir,—Please send following. The pound tin of birdlime I had from you short time ago arrived within 24 hours after posted the order, and is the best lime I have ever used. Yours, R. Makinson." "2, Victoria-terrace, Inchicore, Dublin, Nov. 29. Sir,—Please send following. Your birdlime is best I ever used. Yours, G. Buckland." "2, Bridge-street, Linwood, Paisley, Nov. 22. Sir,—Please send following. The net I had from you last year is as good as new, although it has caught about 200 birds. Yours, J. Larkin." I don't ask exorbitant profits, but believe in supplying a genuine article at a reasonable price. Comparison invited and competition ignored. See British birds and Roller Canary columns for further advts.

Cash with order, or deposit with CAGE BIRDS.

WHETHER FOR SHOW,

muling, or singing purposes only you require birds, I think I can satisfy you if you will give me a trial, but even if I don't, you won't be the loser of a penny, because I send all birds on approval, solely at my own risk, on "Cage Birds" deposit system, or on receipt cash, and always refund every penny of your money if fullest satisfaction not given. I have splendid stock genuine Worcestershire Goldfinches, all in full colour, perfect condition, and properly on seed, at 2/- and 3/- each; specially selected show specimens, guaranteed fit to win, 4/- and 5/- each; I also have a grand lot of the real Siberian cock Goldfinches, every one guaranteed in full free song, at 4/6 each; seven 28/-; specially selected exhibition specimens, with full complement of show points, 7/6 and 10/- each; kindly note, I do not purchase Russian Goldfinches from Antwerp, and then say I have the only Siberian Goldfinches in England. I guarantee every one I sell to have been imported direct from Siberia, in single wicker cages, and there is as much difference between them and Russian Finches as between dirty little hens and big bright cocks. The reason I can sell them at same price as Russians are sold at is because I buy first-handed and save middle profits. (See letter below.) I have 30 grand aviary moulted English cock Goldfinches, in full song, all big picked birds, at 5/- each; also 50 aviary moulted hen Bullfinches, guaranteed been flying with above Goldfinches since September last, at 2/6 each. These Goldies and Bullies should make ideal hybrid breeders. Also six genuine cage-moulted Siberian cock Goldfinches, finger tame, and full song, 6/- each. Grand lot cock brown Linnets, with nut brown backs, and rose red breasts, 9d. each; three 2/-, six 3/6, twelve 5/-; specially selected large cocks, correctly pencilled, for show, and guaranteed in song, 2/- each. Three two-year-old cocks, Linnets, guaranteed mulers, and in full song, 5/- each. Handsome lot cock Bullfinches, all in perfect health and feather, 1/6 and 2/- each; three 4/-; specially selected, linger-tame cocks, been caged months, 2/6 each; three 5/-, six 9/-; hen Bullfinches 1/- each, three 2/6; specially selected, large, rich-coloured hens, for hybridising, 1/6 each; three 3/6; cock Chaffinches, 6d. each, three 1/6, six 2/6, twelve 4/-; exhibition specimens, 1/- each; cock Greenfinches 6d. each, three 1/-, six 1/6; exhibition specimens, 1/- each; Redpolls 6d. each; exhibition specimens 1/- each, cock Siskins, 2/- and 2/6 each; exhibition specimens 3/- each; hens, 1/- each. Splendid lot Snow Buntings, cocks, 1/- each, hens 6d. each. Few extra good exhibition specimens, 2/6 each, Goldfinch, Bullfinch, or Linnet cages 6d. each, 4/6 dozen; Linnet contest singing cages, 9d. each, 7/- dozen. Dealers, please send stamp for trade price of cages. See following letters:—"29, Bowling Street, Mansfield. Dec. 11th.—Sir,—Received Siberian Goldfinch to-day, and am well satisfied with him. Thanking you for sending such a grand specimen.—Yours, H. Woodcock." "Danesmoor, Chesterfield. Dec. 4th.—Sir.—Received Goldfinches all right, and am highly satisfied with them.—Yours, W. Tuckley." "36, Church Street, Seaham Harbour. Dec. 6th.—Sir,—Received Linnets in best of condition, and am highly satisfied with them. I could not expect better for double the money.—Yours, A. Dixon." "52, Skipton Road, Earby.—Dec. 6th.—Sir,—I am well pleased with birds you sent a week ago. All are healthy and strong, and I consider them the best value for money anyone could buy.—Yours, P. Watson." "38, Falsgrave Road, Scarborough.—Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Siberian Goldfinch to hand in grand condition, and very fine bird, and am very pleased with him.—Yours, W. Tate." "94, Bolton Old Road, Atherton. Dec. 1st.—Sir,—Received Linnets safely, and am highly pleased with them.—Yours, J. Naylor." "23, Stafford Road, Newport, Salop. Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Received the 4/6 Siberian Goldfinch in fine condition, and is equally as good as one I paid 7/6 for elsewhere.—Yours, C. Davies." "New Stevenston, Holytown. Nov. 30th.—Sir,—Received Goldfinch in pink of condition, and was exceedingly well pleased. I never had a better one.—Yours, J. Lamb." "3, Ledhope Bank, Galashiels. Nov. 27th.—Sir,—Please send 3 more Linnets, the last three I got are splendid coloured birds.—Yours, T. Hislop." Hundreds more similar letters, open for inspection. I cordially invite personal inspection at any time. No flat-catching here, but everything guaranteed as described. See Roller Canaries, and also Appliance columns.

HARRY ALLEN.

LOOK! THE OLD ORIGINAL

There was another very large sum of money deposited with the editor last week for another quality singing Linnet, which, I am proud to say, another London gentleman purchased; probably the largest sum ever deposited in this paper for a quality singing Linnet; it was sent on seven days' approval, but this gentleman, being a good judge, he acknowledged he was highly gratified, which his testimonial will be seen below in my advert., and you can take it from me there are no finer judges in the world that the London judges of a quality singing Linnet. This bird was caught in the same lane as the champion Linnet of the world. I have the largest bird shop in Leeds, and when any lady or gentleman comes to see me they see a shop full of birds of all kinds; 400 beautiful Canaries, 600 grand cock linnets, 200 Bullfinches, 300 Chaffinches, Greenfinches, Red-breasted Redpolls, and Yellowhammers, 1s. each. Inspection invited; everybody is made welcome with me, ladies and gentlemen. I have a few house-moulted Linnets to dispose of, all taught by the world's champion. For full particulars please write. Beautiful cock Linnets in full song, with a beautiful polished cage, and my book of secrets, and a packet of my special mixture, 3/- the lot; it is the best 3/- worth ever offered in this paper, bar none. Look, fierce singing cock Linnets, with blood-red breasts, and extra loud voices, with new cage and my book of secrets, right for catching or contest singing, only 2/- the lot. Linnets taught by the world's champion, will sing anywhere, only 1/6. I defy any dealer in the world to supply the same for the money; deposit your money with the Editor of this paper for honest stuff. All on 7 days' approval. My AI specials can beat the world for steadiness, size, colour, and markings, 1/6 each; a few specials, 2/-. Goldfinches, Goldfinches. Real English peartree cock Goldfinches, with deep square-cut scarlet blaze and grand broad heads, with splendid wing bars, and richly tanned on breasts, and beautifully buttoned; these prizewinners 4/6; other grand Goldfinches, same size, full colour, 3/6; very large Greypates, will make nice winners, 2/6 each; a few large Goldfinches, being used to catching, 2/6 each; beautiful cock Bullfinches, with beautiful black cap and bib, with double rich colour on breasts, ready at once for the show bench, these prizewinners 3/6 each; other grand Bullfinches 2/6 and 3/-, also a splendid lot of hen Bullfinches 1/6 and 2/-. Larks, singing daylight and gaslight, and in show condition, 1/- and 1/6; a few specials, 2/6. My book of secrets, 9d. For proof of the above read what others say: 7, Brunswick-place, City-rd., London, N. Dear Sir,—I have written to "Cage Birds" asking them to send you on your money. I am more than satisfied with the bird; they are splendid. I remain, your faithfully, James French, 10 H. Allen. 6, West-st., Hoole, Chester. Dear Sir,—I received birds quite safe, and am more than pleased with them. I shall always know where to send for good birds in future. I have bought birds elsewhere, but have never been so satisfied. I shall always recommend you to my friends. You are undoubtedly the only original Linnet King of the world.—W. Thompson, to H. Allen. I have thousands of similar testimonials open for inspection. All my birds are on 7 days' approval, so please state wants, and write to the Largest British Bird Dealer in the world: Harry Allen, Bird Specialist and Judge, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds.

CAMPBELLTOWN, DEC. 10.

THE HUMAN LINNET.

Gentlemen,—I am not a self-made Linnet King, but get my title from this paper (CAGE BIRDS). I have sat judge at hundreds of contests, and won hundreds of prizes. I take interest in my birds, hence my title. I have a grand lot of big, fine cock Linnets, singing beautiful, 1/- and 1/6 each; cock Linnets, singing mad, in hack cage, with my secret of making them sing with their wings down, only 2/- lot. Look, the Pride of England, beautiful cock

Linnets, learnt under my well-known champion (quality song), only 2/6 each, with splendid fancy cage, and my secret, only 3/6 lot. I defy any dealer in the world to supply better quality, they are fit for the finest drawing-room in England. To exhibitors, I have some extraordinary good birds for show, big, fine cock Linnets, well pencilled, Norwich type, finger-tame, 1/- and 1/6 each; you can pay 5/- elsewhere, and then cannot beat the class I have. I have a gem, one of the largest Linnets ever put into a cage, marvellously pencilled, finger-tame, sure winner, 5/-, bargain. Real Yorkshire specimen Peartree cock Goldfinches, with deep, square-cut blaze, nicely tanned, very tame, 2/6 and 3/- each; a few specials, 3/6 each; Gem Goldfinches, 5/- each. My gems cannot be beat. Mr. Ross, Cleveragh, Sligo, says: The Goldfinch arrived safe. He is a lovely colour, and good stamp. I have seldom seen one with such a rich colour. Try one of my gems, they are by far the largest and best birds ever advertised. Cock Bullfinches, ready for show, real pictures for shape and colour, 2/6 & 3/- each; massive hens, 1/6 & 2/- each; cock Chaffinches, in splendid feather, 1/- each; cock Lark, singing, open mouth, 1/-. If you want your Linnets to sing at one another, send P.O. 1/- for my secret, and a sample of my mixture; it acts like magic. 13, George Street, Blackpool.—Sir, received birds safe, they are very steady, beautiful. Mr. Palmer to Fred Allen. I could fill a page with testimonials. All my birds are on 7 days' approval; cash or deposit: send at once, you will be delighted. —Fred Allen, Bird Specialist, Porter Street Aviaries, Hull.

Never Yet Been Touched

for value, much less equalled, either for quantity, quality, or value. Call and see, by appointment, or send for extended list, if you see nothing in the following you would like; sent on approval.

Cocks— Clear Yellow, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards. Clear Buff, 5/6, 6/-, 6/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Ticked or Variegated, 4/9, 6/-, 6/6, 6/- 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, upwards.

Hens—Clear Yellow, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Clear Buff, 2/6, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Ticked or Variegated, 2/-, 2/6, 3/-, 4/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-. Pairs Norwich Plainheads, Matched for Breeding, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6. Travelling cages, 3d. extra. All birds on approval.

There are many good show birds amongst the above, and some of the greatest bargains the Fancy ever knew or saw, are to be found amongst them. Extended list free.

Are here, and the most important thing for purchasers to note is, that as I never show, they are for sale, and not at "fancy" prices, but at prices within the reach of nearly all. The stock birds are equal in quality to those usually sold at double the price, and I say this quite sincerely.

You can read all the claims, and you may or you may not believe them; but if you will allow me to send One or One Pair of mine on approval against any others advertised, at any of the following prices, I shall feel obliged. That's making it actions in place of words. I have some of the best extant Yorks, Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; Hens, 2/6, 3/6, 4/-, 4/6, 6/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-; Pairs, matched for breeding, 7/6, 8/6, 9/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, upwards. Cages 3d. extra.

Crests that must Please.

Crests that in value were never known before.

Crested-breds that for value will astonish every - - person who sees them.

A genuine well-bred Crested cock, sent for the absurd price of 5/6. Of course, as with everything else that I offer in such special value, there is a reason. Here also follow more bargains—and bargains I mean, for every one is such, whatever the price:—Crested cocks, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-, 80/-, 100/- upwards. Crested hens, 5/6, 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, to 60/- upwards Crested-bred cocks, clear yellow, 15/-, 20/-; clear buff, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 20/-, 30/-; ticked or variegated 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-. Crested-bred, hens, ticked or variegated, 4/6, 5/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, upwards; clear, 8/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-; green, 5/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-; pairs, matched for Crest breeding, one Crested and one Crested-bred, 12/6 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-, 100/- per pair. Cages, 3d. extra.

I AM ADVERTISING THE BIRDS THAT I HOLD; I AM ALSO ADVERTISING THE FACT THAT SUCH MARVELLOUS VALUE CANNOT ELSEWHERE BE OBTAINED. YES, THAT IS JUST WHAT I AM ADVERTISING; I AM NOT ADVERTISING MYSELF, AS I AM NOT FOR SALE. THEREFORE, READ FACTS ABOUT A FEW OF THE RECENT SALES; THEY ARE INDISPUTABLE; CAN BE PROVED UP TO THE HILT; ARE UNSOLICITED, AND HAVE REFERENCE TO DIFFERENT VARIETIES, AS WILL BE SEEN; ALSO THEY ARE BUT A VERY FEW TAKEN FROM A PILE OF OTHERS BEARING SAME OR SIMILAR DATES.

Splendid Value.

Union Street, Bridgetown, Novemher 29th, 1909,—I received Canary quite safe, and I am very pleased. He is spleadid value. E. Weals to W. Rudd.

To Beginners.

If you cannot afford a big price, send for a pair of my correctly matched Norwich at 8/6 or 9/6; and now note this.—In most cases where you send for pairs at this price, you are sent two buffs, often both marked birds—this is where you do not get what is required—well, I send you one marked, and one clear, one buff, and the other yellow. Travelling cage 3d. extra. Then for 3/6 I will send you a Double Breeding Cage, fitted with everything complete, for an immediate start. Total for Birds and Cage 12/3 for 8/6 birds, or 13/3 for 9/6 birds. But I would strongly recommend you to have my Cage No. 100; it has sand drawers, and is fitted with sanitary furniture throughout, and the price is only 6/-.

My special matched pairs of prize-bred Norwich Plainheads at 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Crested ditto, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, and 30/-; Yorkshires, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, and 20/-; Lancashires, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-; Cinnamons, 8/6, 9/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Lizards, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; Border Fancies, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6.

NORWICH CRESTED AND CRESTED-BRED IN GREAT NUMBER AND RARE QUALITY AND VALUE.

SEE MY FREE COPYRIGHT ILLUSTRATED LIST.

A post card will bring it.

Easy Payments by joining my Original Bird Club.

The first ever brought to the notice of fanciers; the first payment system, with its many objections, is double as old as some of those who claim so much for it. To use an old saying, it is as "old as the hills," but has neither their beauty nor usefulness.

NOTICE TO READERS

Champion, amateur, and novice, requiring their breeding stock, should not hesitate where to send, although it must seem somewhat difficult amongst so many advertisers. My strain of Norwich has stood the test for years, and many of the leading winners this season come from my rooms. I do not keep or supply cheap rubbish, which is useless. I have some fine yellow hens, 15/-, 20/- upwards; splendid buff hens, 12/6 to 30/-; specially matched pairs, 40/-, 50/- and 60/- per pair; yellow and buff cocks, 15/- to 40/-, the best money can buy. Read the following: December 6th. Dear Sir,—I showed the bird Saturday, he took 2nd prize. I think myself he should have had 1st. I have bought a lot of birds this last 20 years, but I think he is the best I have had; will patronise you again. Yours faithfully ——. December 8th, Dear Sir,—Bird to hand, am pleased with him. I showed him Saturday, and he stood 2nd. Yours faithfully, ——. Name and full address sent on receipt of post card; approval.—A. E. Silk, Norwich Specialist, Whitstable.

Mrs. Barton, (Private Aviaries), 11, Liscard Crescent, Liscard, Cheshire.

FOR YEARS PAST.

I have publicly invited intending purchasers of Rollers to have one of my Leipzig Rollers on a week's trial, and one from elsewhere at any higher price, on similar terms; test them side by side for a week, and if mine is not a far better bird at lower price, return it to me, and have the whole of your money back. I am frequently publishing letters from persons who have done this and they tell me that my birds have beaten birds costing twice and even thrice the money elsewhere. I now have an enormous stock of pure Leipzig Rollers, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, water-bubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, Nightingale jug-jug, bell harp and flute notes, etc., etc., and guaranteed entirely free from Titlark chopping, or any other harsh notes whatever, price 6/- and 7/- each; special Bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell rolls, etc., 10/- and 12/6 each. I also have a few special Seifert contest Rollers, fit to win contests immediately, 15/-, 17/6 and 21/- each. These contest birds are exceedingly soft and melodious, with lovely deep "round" rolls, etc., and are guaranteed of same strain, and bred by same man that won first prize of £60, with 6 of these birds, at Hamburg, on Nov. 21st last. Leipzig Roller hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple. I also have a large stock of Hartz cocks (often sold as Hartz Mountain Rollers), in full and vigorous song, day and gaslight, at 4/6 each, seven for 28/-; Hartz hens, 2/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are exceptionally loud, free songsters, real ceiling lifters, and just the thing where a good loud singer is required. Special Roller singing cabinets, with folding doors, 2/6 each. Ordinary singing box cages, 1/- and 1/6 each. The following letters are entirely unsolicited, and full name and address is given with each one, so that any sceptical person can make fullest enquiries as to my statement. "19, The Crescent, Worsley. Dec. 10th.—Sir,—I must say the Roller you sent me has far exceeded my expectations. He is a real good one, singing both day and gaslight, and what music. Yes, he is a gem, and I am more than satisfied.—Yours, C. Ridyard." "Pershore Road, Gt. Hampton, near Evesham.—Dec. 11.—Sir,—Thanks for Hartz cock you sent me a month ago; it is best songster I ever had. Thanking you for honest and prompt dealings.—Yours, Ernest White." "29, Clifford Road, West Stanley. Dec. 6th.—Sir.—Received Roller in splendid condition; this makes the seventh from you in 12 months. It is a champion songster; they have all given every satisfaction. Thanking you for prompt and honest dealings.—Yours, Wm. Roe." "6 Belle Vue Terrace, Penzance. Dec. 8th.—Sir,—Rollers to hand safely; many thanks for sending two such good birds; they are both singing now. It is a pleasure to deal with such an honest man.—Yours, A. Eddy." "Harness Stores, Byfleet. Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Received three Schoolmasters, all in best of health. All these are singing grand, as I write this card. Thanking you for your selection.—Yours, F. Eyes." "22, Union Terrace, York. Dec. 2nd.—Sir,—Roller arrived safe; my friend is delighted with it, and I think it a beauty. I like your new style of sending them out. —Yours, H. Brough." "6 Derby Square, Preston, Lancs. Nov. 29th.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived safe, and is more than I expected for the money. He started singing before being unpacked, and will sing while I hold the cage in my hand.—Yours, J. Holmes." "Mountain, Pantygasseg, Pontypool. Nov. 30th.—Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller safe. He is singing all right. I give you credit as a packer.—Yours, G. Calder." "18, Henry Street, Hyde, Manchester. Nov. 28th.—Sir,—Allow me to thank you for your business methods. The Roller is singing splendid, as I write this, and his changes of song are a surprise to me, and all who hear him. I have heard birds that have cost three times the money that I would not exchange him for, and I have myself given more, and they were not a patch on the one you sent me.—Yours, J. Thorley." "15, Gordon Road, Finchley, London. Nov. 25th.—Sir,—Please send three Hartz cocks and box cage. The Hartz cocks I had from you last year still sing splendidly, and give every satisfaction.—Yours, W. Green." "51, York Street, Baker Street, London. Nov. 26th.—Sir,—Received the 4 birds yesterday, in good condition. The Hartz cock I am delighted with. He is a beauty. I have heard expensive Rollers that he would bear comparison with, and the Roller hens are fine birds, and would sell for double in any shop about here.—Yours, M. Hollins." Kindly note: All are safely and warmly packed, and sent on full week's trial, on receipt cash, or "Cage Birds" deposit system. I take all risks and refund cash promptly if every satisfaction not given. See British Bird column.

Do the following

Explain Anything?

Do they prove anything?

Personally, I think they mean and prove a great deal, hence I respectfully draw your attention to the full dates, and to the fact that all originals, and many others can be seen bearing the official post marks.

Pure Seifert Strain Hartz Rollers.

Pure Trute Strain Hartz Rollers.

Marvellous Value.

20, Mariner's Square, Haverfordwest, December 10th, 1909,—The Roller arrived quite safe, and as soon as he satisfied his hunger and thirst, he was busy singing. I can only say he is marvellous value, and it is quite a treat to sit and listen to the wonderful rolls of song issuing from him. If any of my friends require a bird at any time, it will give me great pleasure to recommend you. H. B. Gwyther to W. Rudd.

A Real Good One.

Broad Street, Limerick, November 29th, 1909,—Roller arrived safe. He is a real good one. I am very pleased with him. J. Campbell to W. Rudd.

Singing from Morning till Night.

142, London Road, East Grinstead, December 6th, 1909,—Roller Canary gives every satisfaction, and a most beautiful singer. He is singing from morning till night. Many thanks for your selection. W. F. Johnson to W. Rudd.

HUMMEL ROLLERS.

Finest Rollers imported. To speak well of the Hummel is to gild refined gold. Testimonials from customers who say the Hummel is still singing as sweetly as when purchased four, five, six, and seven years ago. All Hummels have delightful, deep, delicate how roll, hollow roll hollow how roll, du pipe, hollow bell roll, grand round bass roll vibrating hollow roll, and charming water bubble roll; one price only, 12/6; no fancy prices; Hummel hens, 3/- each; a beautiful pair of Hummels for 15/-. St. Andreasberg Rollers, 5/- and 7/6 each. Hummel Schoolmasters, 20/- each, better than can be obtained elsewhere at treble the price. Thousands of testimonials have been published by me in CAGE BIRDS from satisfied customers. I guarantee strictly honourable trading and satisfaction to all.—Varney, sole proprietor and importer of this remarkable Roller Canary. Twenty years' advertiser.—Varney, Stratford, London.

ROEHL'S PRIZE WINNING STRAIN

The superiority of my celebrated strain has again this season shown itself, far in advance of all others with which it has entered into competition. These facts can easily be proven from the various show reports. At the Horticultural Hall, in the young bird champion class, the following winners are guaranteed exclusively bred from my strain: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, extra 4th, 5th, and vhc. In the old bird champion class, 1st, 2nd, 5th. In the open competition, 1st, 3rd, and 4th. Also at Wakefield, champion young birds, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 5th; champion open class, 1st and 2nd. This clearly shows that with good judgment in selecting birds for breeding, my strain cannot possibly be beaten. I have always on hand a limited number of the above strain, and every bird is thoroughly judged, and carefully conserved in his song. Prices, from 50/- and upwards, according to tours. Hartz Mountain Rollers, in full and good song, without harsh or hard tours, from 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, and 25/-. Song piping Bullfinches, piping 2 tunes correctly, from £3. A great variety of cages, for all kinds of birds in stock, and every description of cage made to order.—400, Edgware-rd., London, W.

St. Andreasberg Rollers.

Just arrived, another lot of these famous musical-boxes, specially trained under Nightingale, Woodlark, and bell notes with those long, wonderful trills; fit for any mansion, price 6/6, 7/6 8/6; real Schoolmasters, 10/6 and 12/-; hens, 2/; proper Roller singing cages, 2/-, with shutters, 2/9; also not common Belgian, guaranteed pure Hartz, price 5/- each, two 9/6; hens, 1/6, two 2/6. These are imported direct from the Hartz Mountains, and properly trained. Note—We have thousands of testimonials, and are patronised by all the Crystal Palace Judges, including Judges Bexson, Payne, Battye, Roe, Barnes, Vardy, etc., etc. Send for new catalogue and testimonials for proof.

Just read these testimonials. All come over 200 and 300 miles away, and £20 given anyone if not real. Can be seen any time. "Mr. Patterson, Cork, Ireland.—Sir,—Glad to tell you Roller you sent me won the All-Ireland Roller singing contest here." "Mr. W. Burl, London, October 25th.—Sir, Hartz cock arrived safe, and started singing directly unpacked, and sang ever since." "Mr. Bagot, Glenny, Dublin.—Sir,—I am well pleased with Roller. He has sang continually ever since he came, day and night." "Mr. J. Campbell, Dublin,—Thanks for promptitude ing sending Roller and cage within a couple of days from sending you the order. The bird was in Dublin singing for all he was worth." "Mr. D. McCorquadall, Greenock, Scotland.—Received Roller and cage all safe. He was singing half an hour after he arrived, and best singer I ever had, cage is a suitable one, and cheap." "Mr. Knight, Kilmarnock, October,—Hartz cock arrived all right, and a beautiful bird, and a champion singer. I got a Goldfinch from you which lived 11 years." These are only a few I have picked from long-distances, have thousands others. I guarantee to give you every satisfaction; so order at once.

If you want some testimonials, send to me, and I will send you some just as received this week.

R. KREMNER,

The only Direct Wholesale Importer in the North of England.—Trade Supplied.

104, Tib Street, Manchester.

Branch Depot: 96, Great Moor Street, Bolton.

3/10 Songster on approval.

How is it done? Well, there are lots of reasons; but, so long as the purchaser is satisfied, what does it matter? However, I ought to say, perhaps, they are paid for, and in my possession. Cages 3d. extra.

Now for some other Songsters and cages; well, send for Free Catalogue for them.

Thousands now on hand, specially selected, not haphazard birds; quality sent to each, according to price sent, and in all cases, the best I can do, and what I cannot do in this line, no other man (or fictitious trader) can in the world. Norwich or Yorkshires. Note prices 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-. Cages 3d. extra in all cases, and all sent on one week's approval to any part of Great Britain. I pay all carriage back, and either refund your money in full, or exchange the bird, whichever you prefer. This seems to me straight sailing enough for any reasonable person to be satisfied with.

W. RUDD, THE Bird Specialist, NORWICH

THE LARGEST IMPORTER IN THE NORTH.

Just received another large consignment of Rollers, this being the third, and over 1,000 in each consignment, also let me tell you in this consignment I have had a big lot of real contest Rollers, which have taken many prizes in Germany. Prices, Hartz Mountain Rollers, 5/6; St. Andreasberg Rollers, 7/6, 10/6, and 12/6 each; the real contest Rollers, 15/- and 20/- each; hens, the same strain, 2/6 each; the ordinary Roller hens, 2/6 a couple, or 14/- a dozen. Dealers send for my wholesale price list, stamp for reply.

TURN OVER.

If you will carefully turn over the question of where to get the best possible value at the lowest possible prices, you will give this small announcement your most careful attention. Singing Canaries are my speciality. I have bred, trained and imported direct many thousands, and know exactly what you require. It is quite possible to get the same quality birds at much higher prices, but it is utterly impossible to get such good quality at lower prices. My stock of St. Andreasburg, Trute, and Seifert Rollers are second to none. The quality of my birds defy competition. Genuine trained birds free from harsh or choppy notes. Cocks in full song, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6; pure Roller hens, 2/6, 3/- each. If you want a high-class loud songster my Hartz cocks will delight you. The best loud free, day and gaslight songsters in the world; cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3 each; matched pairs, 7/6, 8/6. Send stamp for my illustrated price list of Rollers, Yorkshires, Norwich, Border fancies, etc. Neat travelling cages, 3d. each extra, and make a special note of the fact that I send all my Canaries carriage paid on seven clear days' approval at my risk, and guarantee every customer satisfaction.—Miss E. L. Storey, Practical Bird Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

Finest Talking Parrots. I only deal in Parrots that will make first-class talkers; no rubbish. I am willing at all time to send my Parrots on four week's trial and three months' talking guarantee. Why? Because all my Parrots are young, strong, and reliable. My lifetime has been spent among Grey Parrots, both at home and abroad. I guarantee every customer every satisfaction. Grey Parrots are my special fancy. I have trained them, know their wants, and can give every purchaser a bird that will please him in every way. I can supply grey talkers, not thinkers, that will say almost anything, at reasonable prices. Before you purchase a grey or green Parrot, send for my Booklet, entitled "Talking Parrots." All my birds are sent on four weeks' trial, at my risk. Send postcard for catalogue.—Mrs. Forster, Princes Park Aviaries, Violet Street, Liverpool.

PARROT PROBLEM

solved. For full proofs send postcard at once for my large book, "Parrot Prattle," now containing 168 pages. This is the most wonderful book ever offered free of all charge to all Parrot fanciers. (This "Parrot Prattle" is registered copyright, and all infringers and imitators will be prosecuted against). It contains hundreds of testimonials from all parts with full names and addresses, many interesting facts, and gives valuable advice and hints to all Parrot buyers. Full details of our original system of selling Parrots on four weeks' trial, at our risk, which we were the first to introduce. We sell Parrots of all descriptions on four weeks' trial, at our risk, before settlement. Cheapest and best in the Kingdom, and any Parrot sold by us and not giving full satisfaction, will be exchanged any time within twelve months. Remember we lead and others try to follow. Write to other dealers as well as us, and judge for yourselves. Lists of Parrots for sale and above book post free on receipt of postcard. Telephone No. 40 Morecambe.

DOUGLAS (Lanarkshire).

The 23rd annual show was held on December 11th, and it proved a great success. Entries were well up to those of former years, and the cage birds were a grand collection, some real gems being out in the Border Fancy section. Mr. A. Walker had quite a field day, accounting for no less than eight 1sts in this section. His foul yellow ben proved the best in section, and won the B. F. C. medal, being closely followed by the yellow uneven cock. British birds were a fine show, and the classes contained some real hot ones, especially Bullfinches and Greenfinches. Special for best in this section was won by Messrs. Telfer Bros.' Redstart, one of the best on the show bench. Mules were also a nice lot. The cage birds were comfortably staged in a warm class room in the school, and every care was taken of the exhibits. Stewards and committee are all fanciers, and were headed by a genial secretary, Mr. McCulloch, who had everything in apple-pie order. One good feature was the splendidly prompt return of exhibits from a distance. Mr. J. W. Bruce (Coldstream) judged, and his awards were well received.

BROMSGROVE.

The ninth annual show was held in the Drill Hall on Dec. 14th, when some first-class exhibits were staged in nearly every class. The members' classes, too, contained many nice exhibits, and made a good display. All the cage birds were nicely staged at one end of the room, and they received every attention from the chief steward, Mr. J. W. Rose, who was most assiduous in his attentions. Mr. F. Jeffrey again held the secretarial ribbons, and as usual he had matters well in hand, and was most obliging and courteous. Mr. J. H. Payne made the awards, which appeared to give every satisfaction.

PONTYPRIDD.

Held under the patronage of the Welsh C.B.C., the show of the Pontypridd and Rhigwaun F.F.S., which was held in the Town Hall, on December 15th, was a most successful fixture. Entries came up well, and competition was very keen in most of the classes. Some most excellent Norwich, Yorkshires, and Borders were shown, but it was in the British section where the strength of the fixture was to be seen. We have a very recollection once of seeing 37 Goldies in one class at Pontypridd in the days when the ever-to-be-remembered Job Williams was in his prime, and from then till now has Pontypridd been a hot-bed of Britishers. The Goldies and Linnets were indeed most excellent, whilst the Bullies, although only few in numbers, were very close on each other in merit. All the arrangements were most ably carried out by an earnest and enthusiastic lot of stewards, whilst Messrs. McLucas and James, the hon. secs., were indefatigable in their efforts to do all they could for both exhibits and exhibitors. Mr. C. A. House judged.

A Useful Swivel Mousetrap.
Sent by Mr. J. S. Cooper, Wellington Street, Matlock.

The sketch is of a swivel mouse-trap. It is easily made by getting a large jar or tin, and fixing a piece of cardboard on a piece of elastic or worsted twisted, and tied on the jar as shown. Then tie a piece of cheese in the centre of board, or glue a few sunflower seeds on for bait. Fill the jar about two inches up with water to stop the mice from jumping out. Then tie a piece of old sack round the jar for them to climb up. This completes a trap that is always ready set. I have several in my room, but this takes best.—J. S. COOPER.

No. 371.
A Useful Device for Hanging Cages.
Sent by Mr. W. B. Jepson, St. John's Vicarage, Lewisham High Road, S.E.

Instead of standing on a chair to feed a bird whose cage hangs some seven feet from the ground, the cage can be lowered by the device shown in the sketch. A block (A) should be let into the ceiling or wherever the cage hangs from. On either side of it, about three inches apart, screw in a hook and a pulley, as at (H) and (P). Next remove from a treacle tin its lid, a tightly-fitting disc. Fit the concave side of tho lid with a circle of wood, and secure it with screws. Into the wood screw another pulley. This and the upper one, should have screwed heads. Their wheels should just take ordinary blind-cord, or whatever the cage hangs by. The tin should be filled with lead, or other heavy material, of a weight equal to twice that of the cage, feeders and all. Secure the lid by the ordinary method, and pass the blind-cord in the direction of the arrows. The cage may now be raised or lowered, and will remain at whatever height required. The cord should be about 5 feet long.—W. B. JEPSON.

SPEN VALLEY C.B.S.

A highly interesting bird-washing exhibition was given by Mr. T. Smith (Cleckheaton) on December 6th at the Commercial Hotel. It was very instructive to all. Mr. Smith put the birds through in clever style, at the same time explaining good points he knew. Many fanciers learned something beneficial to their hobby. Questions were asked and answered. A vote of thanks brought a very busy and pleasant evening to a close.—J. LEWIS, Hon. Sec.

GREENWICH & DEPTFORD C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held on December 9th, Mr. Meades in the chair. The report of the annual show and the general balance-sheet were brought up and adopted. Though the society had a deficit on its open show, there is cause for congratulation in the fact that both open and members' prize monies have been paid, and that all accounts in connection therewith have been settled. Further cause for satisfaction lies in the fact that eight new members were elected. The general balance-sheet still shows a balance on the wrong side, but there is every possibility that within the next two or three months we shall be quite straight, and will then get a balance in hand. Mr. E. Meades was again elected chairman, with Mr. H. W. Cook as vice-chairman. The following gentlemen were elected members of the committee:—Messrs. W. Allison, E. G. Jordan, E. S. Lugg, G. Phillips, L. J. Richardson, A. Roxburgh, and E. Simants. All communications for the society should be addressed to the joint hon. secretaries, Messrs. Hamer and Putner, at 26, Woolwich-road, East Greenwich, S.E. Two gold medals have been given by Mr. F. Putner for competition, one for the best attendance at meetings, and one for the member making most new members during the year, not less than four to count. Any fancier desirous of becoming a member (and the society is increasing in popularity), may obtain full particulars if he or she will communicate with the secretaries.—HAMER AND PUTNER, Hon. Secs.

Club Reports.

LEITH (Jubilee) O.S.

Monthly meeting held on Dec. 6th, in Liberal Club rooms, Leith Walk, Mr. McEachern presiding. The balance sheet showed a good balance on the right side. The present office-bearers were all re-elected for the ensuing season on the motion of Mr. Begg. There were five new members, proposed and admitted into the club, and promise of a few more at next meeting. After the business of the evening, Mr. Graham was the recipient of a handsome barometer as a wedding present, subscribed for by members, Mr. Begg kindly making the presentation. Mr. Graham having suitably replied thanking the club for their handsome gift, informed us that his labours in the past were small in comparison with what he hoped to do in the future for the welfare of the right Scotch Fancy Club in Leith.—JAS. SINCLAIR, Sec.

GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT O.S.

Annual general meeting held Dec. 6th, Mr. W. H. Moore presiding. The following officers were elected for the year: Chairman, Mr. A. Towl; vice-chairman, Mr. H. Booth; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. Metcalf; hon. secs., Messrs. W. H. Moore, Jun., and H. Harding; committee, Messrs. Moore, Senr., Stubbs, Cartwright, Cotterill, Dowie, Oliver, Beaumont, Anglis, Way, Pett, Good and Peers; hon. auctioneer, J. W. Harness, Esq.; auditors, Messrs. Oliver and Booth. The balance sheet was passed, showing a credit balance of £3 4s. 1d. There was a loss of £5 4s. 2d. on the annual open show. The annual members' half-day show will be held on January 1st next, at Mr. Slatter's rooms, birds to be staged by 2 o'clock. Judge, Mr. W. Clows (Grimsby). Mr. J. T. Cotterill has kindly presented a smoker's cabinet for a special prize.—MOORE and HARDING, Secs.

LANCASHIRE C.A.

We had a splendid meeting in the Rochdale O.C. club room, when Mr. J. Naden presided. Moved, that we have the next meeting at Rochdale British Bird show, when the presentation of medals will be made for the year 1909. At the same time a very important question will be brought up relative to the Lancashire. The points for the year are as follows:—Champions, Messrs. Adams 114, Lee 96, Hardy 47, Lowe 36, Nadin 35, Oldham 33, Conaghy 34, Garner 34, Laycock 6; Novices, Messrs. E. T. Turner 98, Fitten 70, Fish 76, Beathie 22, Whitehead 17, Woodhead 4, Melia 3. If this list is correct, the winners are: Champions (gold) Mr. Adams, (silver) Lee, (bronze) Hardy 47; Novices, Messrs. E. T. Turner (gold), Fish (silver), Fitten (bronze). If the list is not correct will fanciers kindly let me know?—CHARLES WHITEHEAD, Sec.

SOUTH LONDON COL. AND F.A.

The following is the result of the points competition for the Cage Bird Points Cup, 1909:—Messrs. A. J. Kilby 164 (winner), L. J. Richardson 123, Lee and Kearney 117, A. Medlycott 63, H. J. We propose holding a Table Show in the Barton Road Boys' School, Dover, on December 22nd. Entrance fee 3d. each cage. Birds staged at 6.30 p.m. Proceeds devoted to the funds of the association; E. M. Birch, Esq., judging.—GEORGE SANDERSON, Hon. Sec., 17, Beaconsfield Avenue, Dover.

CLAPHAM AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

A Highly-successful Smoker.

At the Avondale Hall, Clapham (Masonic Room), on Dec. 8, the members held a highly successful smoking concert, the object being, as explained by the chairman, Mr. W. H. Vale, to provide a fund for the purchase of cups for competition between the members at future shows. The entertainment was well attended, and if all those fanciers who had taken tickets had attended the room would have been filled to its utmost limits. A capital programme had been arranged by the energetic hon. sec., Mr. A. C. Askew, assisted by his committee, and the entertainment was voted a great success. Amongst those present we noticed Mr. and Mrs. Masters, Mr. and Mrs. Harris and the Misses Harris, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Sandy, Mr. and Mrs. Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Sexton, Mr. and Mrs. Frostick, Mr. and Mrs. Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, Mrs. and Misses Askew, Messrs. C. T. Maxwell, Silverthorne, R. J. Pretty, Thorpe, Pearce, Yeoman, Mr. and Mrs. Warley, Mr. Stephens, Baker, and many others. The musical arrangements were undertaken by Messrs. Askew and Baker. Amongst the artistes who contributed to the enjoyment were the Misses Harris, daughters of Mr. Chas. Harris (Bethnal Green Road, whose songs and duets on the pianoforte and violin were much admired, and received rapturous encores; Charles Forde, whose living marionettes were a great success, especially the impersonation of Harry Lauder; Messrs. Michael Keane, Percy Cunningham, Jack Austin (humourist), Bert King, Miss Dorothy Leslie (serio and dancer), Chas. Embley (whose description of a visit to a police court presided over by a somewhat deaf magistrate caused roars of laughter). Keen disappointment was felt at the non-appearance of Mrs. G. M. Hayward, whose name figured on the programme for a song. The concert was brought to a close at a late hour with the singing of the National Anthem.

BARTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

At the monthly meeting held on December 9th it was unanimously decided to hold our show on January 15th in the Oddfellows' Hall. The show will be open to Barton and District, and there will be seven classes in all, viz.: 1, Yell. Yorks. Cock or Hen; 2, Buff ditto; 3, Members' Class, 1909 bred Yorks. Buff or Yell., Cock or Hen; 4, A.O.V.; 5, Goldfinch and Linnet; 6, A.O.V. British, Hard or Soft Bill; 7, Mule or Hyb. All classes except No. 3 are open. Prize money: 1st, 4s.; 2nd, 2s.; 3rd, 1s.; entry fee 6d. An efficient judge will be engaged, and we have already good prospects of a large entry. We hope that every bird lover living in and around Barton will rally round us and help to make the show a success. An efficient Show Committee has been appointed, and the birds will receive every attention. Schedules and entry forms are being prepared and will be sent out as soon as completed.—G. E. GASTALL, Hon. Sec.

BORDER FANCY C.C.

Annual general meeting will be held at Carlisle on January 1st. The time and place of meeting will be advertised in show rooms. The following is the business to be brought forward: Minutes of previous meeting, balance-sheet, election of office bearers. The following motions come up for discussion:—1, "That Border fancy show cages have no distinguishing marks such as white or brass knobs, nor side doors, and cages having such to be disqualified in their respective classes at any shows where they have club patronage"; 2, "That no society get club patronage unless they engage a club member as judge"; 3, "That the rule restricting judges be extended to three open shows, radius shows not to be counted"; 4, a motion regarding even and uneven birds—what the markings should be; 5, "That any society who have at least four classes for Greens or Cinnamons to be granted a medal for those classes"; 6, "That members be allowed to judge as many shows as they wish"; 7, "That no member be allowed to win more than two club medals each show season.—M. JAMIESON, Hon. Sec., 3, Green Terrace, Hawick.

MIDLAND COUNTIES Y.C.C.

The secretaries of societies having our patronage have reason to congratulate themselves, as although the classification is rather extensive, entries have been really good. The average per class in both sections up to and including Tamworth show, held December 11th, is a decimal under fifteen. The largest class so far was the Unflighted one for novices at the City of Birmingham show, which had 25 entries; this is closely followed by several others with 20 and over. Below is the order in which members stand at present for points, specials, and I should be glad to hear from any member whose "tally" does not agree. Champion section: J. H. Millincamp 53, P. V. Williams 44, H. C. Wells 44, A. E. Bishop 34, A. Harris 24, T. Hawley 19, A. Paddock 16, W. Rayhould 9, E. Sutton 6, S. Mole 4, and J. Burke 1. Novice section: E. J. Evans 28, H. Bryan 25, W. P. Foster 20, J. C. Calne 20, J. W. Lawton 18, E. Freer 12, A. Weekes 11, J. Clempson 6, F. Jennings 4, and J. H. Allen 1. Sectional medal winners are Messrs. Williams, Millincamp, Wells, and Paddock in champion, and Messrs. Foster, Bryan and Evans in novice.—A. PADDOCK.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL O.S.

Annual Meeting.

Annual general meeting held at headquarters, "The Raglan," Aldersgate Street, E.C., on December 9th, Mr. J. W. Ramsden in the chair. A large number of members attended. The Treasurer read the balance-sheet, which showed assets, cash at bank and in hand, £117 19s. 4d., with other assets (after writing off 10 per cent. for depreciation), £43 8s. 6d, showing a grand total of £161 7s. 10d. Subscriptions were rather below the average, a good number of which have still to come in. Mr. Mortlock moved the adoption of the balance-sheet, remarking that the affairs of the society were in a very satisfactory state, and congratulating the show manager upon his very successful efforts at the late Palace show, and also the joint secretaries of the late Novcmber show upon their successful venture. The election of officers resulted as follow:—President, Right Hon. Lord Decies, 36 votes; Treasurer, G. Crahh, Esq., 37 votes; Auditors, F. S. Matthes and G. Mortlock, 35 and 33 respectively; Committee, J. W. Ramsden 42, H. E. Tringham 42, T. J. Day 42, F. Lathleiff 42, J. Oldaker 42, R. J. Pretty 42, G. H. Couzens 41, J. E. Graves 39, W. Hodson 39, C. T. Maxwell 39, J. Hazell 37, J. Hodder 36, G. H. Dring 29, G. Morton 27, H. K. Picard 28, W. Gilbert 25, H. J. Hawes 24, G. H. Boaler 18, with Mr. L. J. Richardson runner-up with 10. The retiring secretary was elected to act as secretary to the meeting. The notice of motion standing in the name of Mr. H. J. Hawes, "That the committee he composed of an equal number of British Bird and Canary Fanciers, etc.," was seconded by Mr. C. T. Maxwell, and upon its being put to the meeting was declared lost, 3 for, 16 against. The motion standing in the name of Mr. C. T. Maxwell, "That from Rule 10 be deleted the words 'And shall he ineligible for re-election'" was seconded by Mr. H. J. Hawes. Mr. R. J. Pretty moved an amendment that instead of the words proposed to be deleted we do delete the words "21 days from such suspension or expulsion." This being put to the meeting, was declared lost—6 for, 13 against. The original motion was then put and was also lost, 6 voting for, 13 against. Mr. Crabb's motion, framed to give trouble to the non-paying or the long-winded gentry, was such that would deprive them of the right to show at members' shows, or to compete for members' specials at shows held or supported hy the society, or to vote on any matter affecting the management of the society. This was seconded hy Mr. T. Heath, and supported by many others, and was carried by 17 for to 1 against. The second part of Mr. Crahb's motion was to make it a compulsory duty of the secretary to send to all members of committee and officers a list of the names and addresses of all candidates for election, together with the names of the proposer and seconder, at least three clear days before the date of such election. The alteration was declared carried—13 for, 5 against. A motion, proposed hy the Chairman, to accord a vote of thanks to the secretary for his success during the past year was carried. The hon. assistant secretary was the recipient of a similar distinction. The committee, auditors, and vice-presidents were thanked in like manner. At a subsequent meeting, which sat to elect secretary, hon. assistant secretary, chairman of committee, and vice-chairman, Mr. H. E. Tringham was elected to the first, and Mr. W. Hodson to the second position, Mr. J. W. Ramsden and Mr. G. H. Couzens to the third and fourth respectively. The committee meet at an early date to arrange programme for 1910, which opens with the annual dinner at the Horse Shoe Hotel on Thursday, January 20th (members please note), and would feel grateful for any suggestions or really hright ideas for the encouragement of the existing and prospective members. It is the wish of the committee to carry out an ambitious programme during 1910.—H. E. TRINGHAM, Secretary.

Kindly note my change of address from Grantham Road, to 78, Tivoli Place, Little Horton, Bradford.—H. S. NAYLOR.

North London Show report credits Hale with first in the unflighted buff (novice), whereas I claim that honour.—A. T. BILLINGSLEY (Leyton, E.).

Milngavie report credits Mr. Martin with 1st prize Norwich cock, whereas that honour belongs to me.—ALEX. M. GARDINER (Newton-grange).

I must thank you for the splendid report of our recent show which you gave us in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. R. Balloch, hon. secretary of the Lochcraig F.A.

Kindly note that I have moved from Colchester to Bedruthan, Robin Hood Road, Brentwood, where all enquiries in future should be addressed.—JOHN BROAD.

At Six Bells' Show, I took second prize and not fourth in the Buff Class, and in the Unflighted Class, second and third with "no name" to these awards.—J. PRITCHARD (Abertillery).

Please accept the thanks of the members and committee of the Musselburgh O.S., writes Mr. Wm. Nisbet, the hon. secretary, for the grand report you gave us in CAGE BIRDS of our recent show.

"The Avicultural Magazine" for December contains several interesting articles, among them being one on "A Little-known Pose of the Kagu," by Mr. Arthur Denman, M.A., another on "Wild Birds about Hoddam Castle," by Mr. H. Goodchild. Mr. C. Barnby Smith writes on "The Turning of the Turnstone," Mr. W. E. Teschemaker, B.A., on "The Nesting of the Blue Grosbeak," and Mr Denman again on "In Memory of 'George,' and in praise of Hangnests."

The annual dinner of the London and Provincial O.S. will take place on Thursday, January 20th, at the Horseshoe Hotel (Tottenham Court Road, W.), writes Mr. H. E. Tringham, the hon. secretary. The committee would feel grateful to members for any suggestions or bright ideas for the encouragement of the existing and prospective members, as it is the desire of the committee to carry out an ambitious programme during 1910. New members will be given a hearty welcome.

I have taken over the secretaryship of the Blyth C.B.S. The show hitherto has been a very small members' show, but with help I intend to push forward and make it a huge success. So far I have made progress in obtaining a beautiful silver cup from a local gentleman. I have also been successful in getting for our president of the show, the Right Hon. Viscount Ridley, Bart. During the course of the coming year, I shall do my very utmost to further the interests of the society.—WM. ROWELL hon. secretary, c.o. Mr. J. Keenlyside, Blyth, Northumberland.

I was delighted on opening CAGE BIRDS to see such a splendid report on my birds at Middleton Show, and wish to thank you for same. I also beg to say that the clear yellow coppy (of which you say, "almost faultless, often described") has only been exhibited twice, first time out Littleborough, second Middleton, and got 1st and special for best Lancashire both times. He was hatched on July 14th, 1909. He is following in his father's footsteps, for he was bred from my clear yellow Coppy, 1st at Rochdale O.C., Rochdale Good Intent, and Manchester, and he has not been out since.—E. T. TURNER (Rochdale).

I have taken CAGE BIRDS regularly now for two years; I find it a great help.—W. BRERETON (Over, Winsford).

We hear that Mr. Warr (of Twickenham) is reluctantly compelled to sell the whole of his well-known stud of Yorkshire Canaries.

The winning numbers of the Gateshead and District C.B.S. draw for birds in the gift class were: Nos. 500, 810, 497, 676, 399, 665.—G. BUCK, Secretary.

We have sold the winning Greenfinch at the last Horticultural Hall Show to a prominent London fancier, write Messrs. Livingstone and Sharp (Bathgate).

At the recent Newport (Isle of Wight) Show I won second in the A.V. Canaries (pairs); also third in the 20s. selling class, not Lowe, as reported.—F. BULL (Newport).

Six Bells' (Abertillery) Show report credits Mr. Parfitt with winning 1st prize in Class 22, A.O.V. Mule or Hybrid, whereas my light Mule won that honour.—J. LOCKE (Bristol).

Many thanks for the insertion of my photo in CAGE BIRDS, writes Mr. F. Cockerill (Stockport). There are four exhibition British birds depicted, and the two in top cages are Yorkshires.

At Hasland Show in the Hardbill Class, my Bullfinch (4th at Goole) won 4th prize. I may say that he has never been out of the tickets yet, and has been in some good classes.—W. WOODHOUSE (Sheffield).

Annan Show report credits Robison and Dalziel with v.h.c. in Class 19 A.O.V., whereas it should have been Hunter, with the Lizard that was 4th at Dundee the previous Saturday. —GAVIN HUNTER (Ayr).

After paying out expenses we paid 17s. 3d. per class at our club show on November 13th, writes Mr. G. R. Henderson, hon. sec., Ashington, C.B.S., and special on points; for instance, if a member won a C ticket he received a special prize. We have a balance of £5 9s. to our credit at the bank.

I visited Cockermouth Show on December 3rd and found all in good order and under the best of management, writes Mr. Wm. Park, C.B.U. representative. Mr. Limb, the secretary, is the right man in the right place, and all the committee are true fanciers and most obliging. All birds were in good health, except Class 69, No. 3, and Class 70, No. 4, which were rather soft, caused no doubt by the journey to the show in the very severe weather.

The balance-sheet of the London and Provincial O.S. for 1909 (year ending November 30th), must be a very gratifying one to the members and to the officials who so ably control the destinies of the society, for despite a loss on the November (members') show, there remains the fine total of £117 19s. 4d. cash in hand, while the assets as a whole amount to the really splendid sum of £161 7s. 10d. The L. and P.O.S., we note, is to adopt a forward policy, and cater thoroughly for every section of the members.

The balance-sheet for 1909 of the Greenwich and Deptford C.B.S., whilst it discloses a balance on the wrong side, due to a loss on the recent open show, reveals a healthy state of affairs generally, the amount of members' subscriptions, for instance, being £4 19s., as compared with £2 4s. in the previous year. The result is satisfactory, and the outlook, we hear, very promising; which facts reflect credit on the secretary for the past year (Mr. F. W. Hamer) and the other officials of the society.

I regret to say that, for business reasons alone, I am compelled to retire from the Fancy, for a short time at least, writes Mr. E. J. Banks (Cardiff), and have disposed of the whole of my Yorkshires (including my winners at Cardiff and other shows) to Mr. J. H. Ormond (bird specialist and taxidermist), 25, Wyndham Arcade, Cardiff. I am exceedingly sorry to have to take this step, but I hope it will not be many years before I am able to take up the old love again. I fully intend to keep in touch with the fancy by taking in CAGE BIRDS (all the numbers of which I have for the past eight years), and to also continue my membership of the Cardiff Society.

Our Christmas Number.

Every reader should receive with this, our 'Xmas Number, a coloured plate entitled "Three Favourite British Finches,' also a photographic art supplement. We anticipate that Mr. Norman's charming coloured picture will stand high in favour with our readers, who all know, and have a warm corner in their hearts for, the three common, but none the less beautiful, British birds he has so skilfully depicted. An article concerning their management in captivity, written by Mr. G. G. Henderson, will be found on another page.

THE "WHITE-EYED KAFFIR" APPEALS TO OUR READERS.

DEAR MISTER,—Since sending my little contribution to your Christmas Number, it has occurred to me that many of my bird-loving friends (if they will allow me to term them such) might care to aid a little charity whose cause is near my heart—I refer to the Variety Artistes Benevolent Fund, of which I am the President. This Fund does a grand work amongst those variety artistes who have (usually from no fault of their own) fallen upon hard times, and at no time are its ministrations more acceptable and needed than during the winter-time; and at this Christmas season we hope to bring at least a ray of happiness into some otherwise cheerless homes. Any of my readers who care to send a contribution, however small it may be, addressed to Chirgwin, care CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C., will earn my gratitude and the heartfelt thanks of some of the less fortunate of that brotherhood which maybe has helped to bring laughter and bright hours into their own lives. I wish I could hand round my "tambourine" to you! We have a matinee in aid of the funds on Tuesday next (December 21st) at 1.30 p.m., at the Coliseum, St. Martin's Lane, W.C., with a "star" programme (which will contain mention of Starlings, too!), and we shall be glad to see you there and give you a good time. Thanking you, dear mister, and all readers. G. H. CHIRGWIN.

The Bird in Legend, Lore and Reality.

By REGINA M. BLOCH.

The bird, in all its manifold shapes, colourings and varieties is such an interesting item among the living things of our mother earth, that it is no wonder all minds and all hearts are sooner or later turned towards it. The small, domesticated Canary was a bird of great price in former times on account of its rarity, and thus great fashion leaders of the feminine gender were often painted with a pet Canary perching upon their fingers. As everyone is aware, the fierce Hawk and the Falcon were highly esteemed in olden days for hunting purposes, and many a curious picture still exists of fair ladies riding forth to the chase with a Hooded Hawk on their wrists, gaily decorated with bells and jesses.

Perhaps some of my readers remember the story of "The Falcon and Ser Frederigo," by Longfellow, and the Northern goddess Freya was also sometimes symbolized as seated in a chariot drawn by Falcons, much as Venus by her Doves and Juno by her resplendent Peacocks.

In China, Kingfishers are used by the native Izaak Waltons to aid them in catching their hapless prey, and the pigeon has been used as a letter-carrier in the Land of the Willow Pattern Plate for almost countless centuries. The Stork and the Flamingo are beloved by both Chinese and Japanese artists. The Nipponese god of Good Fortune and Wisdom is represented with a Stork, which bird also figures in one of Andersen's exquisite fairy tales, whilst most people will recall Longfellow's graphic description of Flamingoes whilst soaring in his popular "Slave's Dream."

"Before him like a blood-red flag,
The bright Flamingoes flew;
From morn till night he followed their flight,
O'er plains where the tamarinds grew,
Till he saw the roofs of caffre huts
And the ocean rise to view."

The Chinese symbolize the two ruling principles of Nature by twin birds named respectively Yan and Yn, for which their Japanese neighbours also have a mystical sign sometimes found on their potteries.

In Japan there are some very queer gateways or "Torü" erected by the disciples of Shintoism for the following reason: The Shintoists believe that "the sun at divers times and places, comes down to earth in the form of the great and wondrous Ho-Wo bird or Heavenly Phœnix, using for its perch one of the many Torü Gates, which the good people of Japan have built and placed throughout the land for that most exalted purpose."

The strange and Oriental fable concerning the Phœnix seems to have permeated every country, though in former ages the Phœnix was regarded as a reality, and thus Pythagoras is made to speak of it in this wise: "There is one bird which renews and reproduces itself. The Assyrians call it the Phœnix. It lives not on corn or grass, but on drops of frankincense and the juices of the amomum. This bird, when it has completed the five years of its life, with its talons and its crooked beak constructs for itself a nest in the branches of the holm-oak, or on the top of a quivering palm. As soon as it has strewed in this cassia and ears of sweet spikenard and bruised cinnamon with yellow myrrh, it lays itself down on it, and finishes its life in the midst of odours. They say that then, from the body of its parent, is reproduced a little Phœnix which is destined to live as many years."

Pythagoras goes on to relate that as soon as this new-born Phœnix is strong enough, it bears its own nest, which is at once the grave of its parent, to "the city of Hyperion," or the sun, and leaves it there.

Xmas Holidays.

SPECIAL OFFER to senders of Undisplayed SMALL PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS. Two Insertions for Price and a Half.

Owing to the Xmas Holidays, advertisements for the issue dated DEC. 25 must close on Monday, Dec. 20, and in order to save both our advertisers and ourselves a deal of time and trouble we will accept advertisements for our next two issues, dated Dec. 25 and Jan. 1, for the price of one and a half insertions, provided the wording remains exactly the same. Write plainly on your order "Two Weeks Special Offer" and enclose the fee for the two insertions. REMEMBER! Last post Monday night, Dec. 20th.

I have taken CAGE BIRDS in for about three years now, and I do not know what I should do without it. The paper is most delightful, and I find it very useful in the pursuit of my hobby.—W. VESTY (Wimbledon).

We learn that Mr. Lawrie, of Falkland, one of the oldest Norwich breeders in Fife, has had and refused some tempting offers for his Clear Yellow Non-fed Cock, a bird which has won nine firsts, two seconds and one third.

I have mislaid several applications for schedules of our show, writes Mr. W. H. Wright, hon. secretary of Carlisle Show. Anyone who has not received a schedule may have one on application to me at 35, London Road.

Owing to the Christmas holidays entries for our Boxing Day Members' Show will close on Thursday, December 23rd, at headquarters, Mowbray Arms Hotel, writes Mr. Wm. Holroyd, secretary of the Manningham C.B.A.

Mr. Charles Wentworth Evans has, we are informed, opened a bird shop in Margate (9, Duke Street) with a fine stock of Canaries, British and Foreign birds, and all appliances for fanciers, together with seeds and foods.

When in a hurry to open CAGE BIRDS do not tear the pages, but hold the paper in the left hand and cut round the edges with a pair of scissors, writes Mr. A. J. Weston (Catford, S.E.) This may be a "tip for some of your readers.

We have done well at the shows recently, write Messrs. McGillivray Brothers (Boness), having won a second and two thirds at Kilmarnock, a first and second at Lochcraig, two seconds at Castle Douglas, a first at Whitburn, and a first and second at Douglas.

I must thank you for the splendid manner in which my winning buff was depicted on the front page of CAGE BIRDS last week. I am pleased to add that your capable artist, Mr. Norman, has represented him true to life. With best wishes for CAGE BIRDS.—G. T. JONES (Brecon).

Since August last I have had an exceptionally busy time (thanks to CAGE BIRDS), and intend having a week's holiday at Christmas, writes Mr. W. Gore, the well-known Birmingham naturalist, and should therefore esteem it a favour if you will kindly mention that from December 24 to 31 the mail-order department of my business will be entirely suspended, and during that time no correspondence will be attended to, nor orders despatched by rail or post.

Allow me to thank you, on my own behalf and on behalf of my committee, for the very able and splendid report of our show which appeared in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS. All prize-money has now been paid out. I also desire to thank the exhibitors for the way in which they supported our show.—J. R. HYLAND, Hon. Secretary Y.C.C of Ireland.

In enclosing the photograph which appears in our Supplement this week, Mr. H. Robinson (Harrogate) writes: I thought you would like to hear of my results as a novice. In my first year of breeding I reared 50 from ten hens and six cocks, and I only had one die after leaving the nest. I have won, too, a silver rose-bowl, also a silver medal. The bowl was for most points gained in novice classes at two first feather shows. I scored 74 points in three classes at each show taking two firsts, two seconds and one third, besides other cards. The medal was for most points gained with Canaries throughout the show; so I consider I have made a good start, thanks to such a useful paper as CAGE BIRDS, through which I have learned what I know about Canaries.

A magnificent 88-page catalogue of cages (both breeding, stock and show), cage fittings, seed and egg mills, travelling hampers, seeds, and all the thousand and one items appertaining to the cage-bird hobby, reaches us from Mr. Jeffrey Walsh (Penny Street, Blackburn). It is a production which reflects the highest credit on Mr. Walsh's business ability, for would-be purchasers will find in it everything they can desire, set out in plain terms and at very low prices. The lists of medicines and special food mixtures (for both seed-eating and insectivorous birds) are very extensive, and the result of lengthy practical experience. Readers should send at once for a copy of this illustrated catalogue, which will be forwarded, post free, by Mr. Walsh if they mention CAGE BIRDS when applying for it. A postcard will do.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Owing to the Christmas Holidays we go to press one day earlier next week. Will Correspondents and Advertisers therefore kindly note that all matter intended for insertion in our next issue MUST REACH US BY MONDAY NEXT'S POST, Dec. 20th. "CAGE BIRDS" will be on sale on the Thursday.

Kindly thank all who answered my advertisement in "Cage Birds," re six colour-fed Yorkshires. I had so many replies that I could not answer all. Wishing "Cage Birds" every success.—GEORGE BURTON (Bridlington).

I have sold by Girl Bunting, which I advertised in last week's issue of your valuable paper, "Cage Birds." Many thanks to all enquirers.—R. ALLAN (Glasgow).

THE BLACKBIRD'S CHRISTMAS DINNER.

The birds now quit their holes and lurking sheds,
Most mute and melancholy, where through night,
All nestling close to keep each other warm,
In downy sleep they had forgot their hardships;
But not to chant and carol in the air,
Or lightly swing upon some waving bough
And merrily return each others notes.
No; silently they hop from bush to bush,
Can find no food to stop their craving want,
Then bend their flight to some low smoking cot,
Chirp in the roof, or at the window peck,
To tell their wants to those who lodge within.

J. Baillie: "Winter's Day."

Readers, we are sure, will be only too happy to provide their feathered friends with crumbs, water and other "creature comforts" during the hard times winter may have in store.

My Friend "Spottie."

By STANLEY CROOK.

A Charming Story of a Greater Spotted Woodpecker.

TOWARDS the end of May last, whilst looking for the nests of Garden and Blackcap Warblers in order to obtain photographs, a friend and myself heard the persistent calling of nestlings. The sound was soon traced to a certain hole in an old birch tree some little distance away, and, judging from the size of the hole and state of the tree, we at once concluded it was the home of one of the Woodpeckers. We thought it probably the "Green," this being the most common species, but wishing to make sure we retired some distance into the wood and awaited events.

Father Comes on the Scene.

A few minutes later a very fine male "Great Spotted" made his appearance, but evidently he must have "spotted" us, as he flew away immediately. Shortly afterwards the bird reappeared, but seemed very uneasy and suspicious (all this while the young were incessantly calling); so after moving about the branches of a neighbouring tree, he flew on to the nesting tree, darted round the side, and a moment later flew off. He reappeared in a few minutes and repeated the trick, which we thought rather strange, because the hole was in full view and the bird had certainly not entered it.

Both birds were now in the neighbouring trees. We made a slight noise, when they immediately made off, and we approached the tree to find another hole just around the side, which proved to be the one in which were the young. This hole was partly overhung with fungus, and therefore in the shade, which accounted for our not observing the entrance of the bird.

A Private View.

Not having previously found a nest of this species, we particularly wished to see the young and gauge the depth of the nesting hole. But the tree was a beastly one to climb, rather high, and having only one branch, just underneath the nesting hole; added to this it appeared very doubtful if the tree was safe to ascend. The birds generally use old decayed trees in which to excavate their nesting holes.

However, it was obvious that if we wished to see the young it must be attempted, so I climbed up cautiously, only to find that I could not get my hand in the hole in which the young were now "swearing" dreadfully at my intrusion. My friend, fortunately, had a clasp knife with which I was able to enlarge the hole sufficiently to get my hand in and find the nest, if nest it could be called (simply the chippings of the wood made by the birds when pocking out their habitation), at a depth of about 12 inches.

It contained four young, about nine or ten days old, and having taken them all out and placed them in my cap, I descended to the ground, where we examined them. I thought I would try and hand-rear one, so chose the biggest, boldest and most prominently marked one, which I felt sure was a male.

Now arose the question of putting the other three back into the nest. This was an undertaking I did not particularly relish, as having had to cling to the tree for some time whilst enlarging the hole, one arm felt quite numb. Well, it had to be done, so, after a couple of attempts, I managed to climb the tree, and my friend threw up a thin rope to which was attached his army knapsack, which contained the young, and they were hauled up to their birthplace.

"Spottie" Emulates the Suffragettes.

"Spottie" as we named our "find," was fed several times on the way home with flies, which about this time of the year prove most annoying to people roaming the woods. When I again attempted to feed him, after reaching home, he absolutely refused to open his mouth. So the "passive resister" had to have it opened, and a few mealworms inserted; these at first were cut in half. Having, fortunately, a number of Softbills, including Nightingale, Great Tit, Blackcap, Robin, Redstart, etc., I was in the position of having an excellently stocked larder from which to supply the newcomer with a good and varied "bill of fare." He still adopted "suffragette" methods, however, and refused to open his mouth for several days; so, of course, gentle force had to be employed every time he was fed. Meals commenced at about half-past five a.m., and lasted until nine p.m., at intervals of half-an-hour.

By placing a few drops of water on his beak, I eventually got him to open his mouth, and after this I had no further trouble with him. He was always ready for any caterpillar, spider, earwig, etc., I could procure for him, in conjunction with an excellent insectivorous food composed of ants' eggs, dried flies, egg flake, powdered dog biscuits, meat meal and Osborne biscuits. On this miscellaneous diet he progressed famously, and acquired a taste for milk, which was placed in a spoon, into which he would thrust his sword-like tongue again and again with apparent relish.

Early Quarters.

He was at first kept in a large colander, with flannel placed at the bottom, but in about a week he became very restless, desiring to see more of his surroundings, and would scramble up to the edge and sit for some considerable time attending to his toilet, nibbling at and helping his wing and tail feathers to cast the sheaths of their quills. He became wonderfully tame, and if you sat reading would perch on your shoulder for half-an-hour at a time.

"Spottie's" general plumage was "black and white," black on the crown and upper parts, a patch of crimson on the back of the head, white scapulars, and underneath a dirty white, with crimson under tail. He was about nine inches in length.

The first few weeks he had the dining-room for his cage, and the curtains, much to his mistress's annoyance, made for him an excellent "stage" on which to perform acrobatic feats. At last it became necessary to find fresh apartments for his lordship, as he began to do a good deal of damage to the picture frames, incessantly tapping all wood-work he could find. When interfered with, he would call his sharp, quick note for several minutes. He was the most untidy and destructive carpenter I ever came across.

A House-breaker.

Having no spare cage at hand, he was consigned to a three-flight Canary cage, which already had a Robin and Goldfinch as occupants, with whom he soon became on friendly terms, although at first they appeared to be somewhat alarmed by his intrusion.

"Spottie" did not take very kindly to cage life; he had been spoilt by having had too much freedom. He generally ignored the perches, and was always to be found clinging to the cage wires when I went in to feed him the last thing at night.

I thought it might be advisable to have a tin-lined cage, but hoped that his bad habits would not make this necessary. However, one noon I went in to feed him, and found him "outside"; and he had not come out by the "front door." I patched up the cage and replaced him, but next day he was out again. Not wishing to have the cage completely ruined, I then let him have the run of the bird-room.

He commenced operations on the window-frames, and passed on to the other cages, the wall paper and the linoleum; nothing, in fact, seemed to come amiss. He was a fine "perforator," but a most untidy workman.

Once weekly he was allowed an "airing" out in the garden. An old Spruce fir trunk, about 5ft. high, was procured for him. Here he had a fine time, chasing up and down and round the trunk. I decided to take his photograph, but this he resented very much, especially at first. The camera was placed some little distance away and left for some time. Gradually the distance was lessened, and eventually I was able to secure a series of photographs, although he was always suspicious. Many a game of "hide and seek" we had, as he would persist in being "off side."

Finding that he was very fond of bathing, I decided to take advantage of this weakness, and allowed him to bathe almost daily in a developing dish, which was placed on the floor of the bird-room. One fine morning I put the dish out in the garden, fixed up the camera, and focussed sharply on it. I then brought "Spottie" down and released him, when he at once made for the water, and I was able to give exposures of one twenty-fifth of a second and secure a few good negatives.

Good Bye!

His fondness for bathing regained him his liberty, for a week later I attempted to make another series of "bathing scenes" on a much larger scale, to include a few pictures of him preening himself, etc., afterwards. Everything was ready for an exposure, the bird being near the bath, when a neighbour who had been watching opened his bedroom window suddenly, and put his head out, which startled the bird, who immediately flew over the few intervening back gardens which separated him from the open country, a small wood being only a quarter of a mile away. I had no idea he could fly so well, having some six weeks before slightly cut the flight feathers on one wing. I went after him at once, but failed to find the slightest trace of the truant, and can only trust that he may be safe "Over the hills and far away."

A STAR AND HIS STARLINGS.

That world-renowned Comedian, Mr. G. H. Chirgwin (popularly known as "The White-eyed Kaffir") entertains readers with a humorous account of his talented pet Starlings. Specially written for "Cage Birds" Xmas Number.

Photographs by [Foulsham & Banfield, Ltd.

DEAR MISTER,—Having been a subscriber to your excellent CAGE BIRDS for the past four years, during which time I have gleaned a wealth of most useful information respecting the treatment of my birds through the columns of Misters G. E. Weston and Wesley T. Page respectively, I have often felt a desire to send you some little item for publication. But, to tell you the truth, up to the present I have not had the cheek to do so. Now, if it has ever been your extreme joy, or sad fate, as the case may be, to have seen my performance, you probably consider me the most impudent and nerveless rascal extant. But, believe me, Dear Mister, there is a vast difference in simply facing huge audiences and entertaining them with quips and cranks and songs, and addressing the Editor of CAGE BIRDS in cold ink, being perfectly certain you have forgotten everything I could tell you about birds (with the exception perhaps of the goose). However, it is not for your enlightenment that I am writing you, but for the hosts of your readers who, like myself, keep birds as pets.

At the present moment I have a flight of 150 homing pigeons, 50 fancy pigeons (Magpies, Runts, Jacobins, Owls, and Almond Tumblers), 30 Black Spanish fowls, six ducks and a drake (the latter, by the bye, I named Doctor Bodie—I'm going to kill and eat him on Christmas Day. I'm not doing this because he's such a Merry Devil, but because he is such an inveterate quack-er). Then I have two Linnets, one Parrot, one Canary, and three Starlings. It is with my young Starling, "Jacko the Second," that I wish to deal.

In the early part of this spring I came across an account of a tame pet Starling that was said to whistle tunes and say almost everything but its prayers, and amongst its repertoire (as it was grandiloquently described), was the whistling of a matter of ten notes, popularly known as "Half a pint of mild and bitter." This is a whistle I introduced into a song of mine, viz., "My Town Girl," so, as the author of the article invited those who considered him to be a "Holy Friar," to go and see and hear for themselves, I quickly accepted the invitation. And what I saw and heard was really most wonderful, Dear Mister. I hereby make avowal that if anyone can produce a Starling in London—aye, or in England—that can beat the "Jack the First" that I saw, I'll—well, I'll eat him, Mister, I will, honest.

CHIRGWIN ON THE HALLS.

The popular favourite in the garb so well known to the thousands of people he has entertained.

I naturally thought at the time this was a freak bird, or at any rate quite an exceptional talker, etc. But after failing to do a deal for the purchase of him, I was told by a certain method of training, etc., it was not only possible but probable that any young Starling could be taught just the same. I therefore asked the gentleman if for a consideration he would get me a young one and train it for me. "Certainly, with pleasure," he replied "I will do my best."

After the lapse of a few days I forgot all about the matter, but about a month ago I received a letter from this gentleman in which he said that he had a young Starling which imitated the Roller Canary, whistled "Half a pint of mild and bitter," and in time would probably imitate the human voice in talking, as it was emitting guttural sounds that were certainly not the natural notes of the Starling. Two days later, Jack the Second (as I have named him), a particularly fine bird, arrived, and upon his being put into a large cage he made himself at once at home, and took food from my hand and the hands of my children with all the cheek (including mine) imaginable. I was so delighted with him that I said I did not mind if he did not utter a sound, his handsome appearance, tameness and quaint little friendly ways being a revelation to me.

And I now wonder how on earth it was that I never kept Starlings before! Oh, yes, I have got two others, for fearing that something might happen to Jack II., I got my friend to get me four more, two of which, however, have died. The two remaining are Jack the II.'s understudies. They have become very tame, but, of course, have not spoken to me yet. I think they must have acquired the Parrot habit, and think a lot. But as I now possess the knowledge of how to train and feed them, I have every reason to believe I shall bring them up and educate them.

Speaking of their food, I want to ask you, Dear Mister, if you have ever inhaled the perfume of dried flies? If not, take steps at once to do so. You can with every assurance take my word for it that it will be an experience you are not likely to forget in a hurry. I have travelled a great deal and have consequently had the opportunity of experiencing and studying different sorts of smells, but when I opened my first supply of dried flies it was borne in upon me at once that I had never tackled anything quite so "niffy" before. Whew! I have tried to find a word in Nuttall's dictionary to describe that aroma. There isn't one. The best I can find is the word WEIRD. There may be people not educated up to appreciate this odour. I will give them a hint or two, free, gratis and for nothing. When you mix up your flies, ant eggs, crissel and biscuit meal—get someone else to do it. Failing this, first take a deep breath and hold it like grim death whilst these ingredients receive a little water. Then hold the vessel in one hand and, hey presto, pop it round to the back of your neck. Then, and only then, you may stir it! Another breath and into the cage with the mixture. Then "get"—and breathe again.

The Worms which did not turn (up).

After all this, we have the mealworm to get on friendly terms with. When I was told that mealworms were a great treat for Starlings, I thought at first, Dear Mister, that they were worms given at meal times. So I forthwith started to get some by digging up the garden and mauling about the lawn. But I only came across the worms that turn when they are trodden upon. After spending the whole of the morning digging unsuccessfully, I had to spend the whole of the afternoon in raking over and making things tidy again. I took one of my little children with me in case I should need support in resisting the temptation to say things, and I enclose you a photograph my wife took of me at my "labour of love."

Now, I had always understood that it was necessary to cut the tongue of a bird in order to get it to talk. I innocently asked how I should go about the operation with my two other Starlings. I was given a look that in a measure resembled the smell of dried flies!—it could positively be felt. Then came the reply: "Certainly not, you ——," but anticipating some nice complimentary adjective, I broke in here with, "I thought not." "Well," continued my instructor, "you can cut their blessed throats if you like, but you'll find that won't assist them in talking, either."

Whilst I think of it, Dear Mister, may I tell you a story about this tongue cutting business? Thank you. It's nothing to do with my Starling, and I am aware that I am wandering about all over the shop. My excuse is that I don't know what method means, and even when I make my entry on the stage I never know until I'm "on" what I am going to do. But I do something, then say something, then sing something, then play something, then do somebody—I mean something else, and so on and so forth. And so this wandering habit has become second nature. Anyway, here is my little true story. I don't know whether you'll like it, ladies and gem-'men, but being Christmas-time you'll have to have it.

CHIRGWIN AT HOME.

Seeking the succulent worm wherewith to feed his Starlings.

The Comedy of a Comedienne.

One Saturday afternoon, many years ago, I was standing in the entrance of the Oxford Music Hall, when the late Belle Bilton (afterwards the Countess Clancarty) came up to me and said: "Oh, Mr. Chirgwin, see what a lovely little Jackdaw I have just bought. There were six of the dears in a big cage marked up 2s. 6d. each. The man at the shop kindly allowed me to select one, and when I chose this one he said: 'Ah, Miss, I can see you are a judge of Jacks, for you have picked out the best, and he's the only one that has got his tongue cut, and so he's bound to talk in a week or two. But I want 5s. for him, and he's well worth a sovereign,' so I bought him. Wasn't I lucky? You ought to buy one, Mr. Chirgwin. Still, this is the only one that has its tongue cut. Isn't he a darling?"

After I had finished my "show," I drove down to the shop in Seven Dials indicated by Belle Bilton, and there were the five young Jackdaws, marked "Fine young Jacks, in perfect health, only 2s. 6d. each." Whilst looking at them, the man came up and said: "There's a fine little lot, guv'-nor. Can I sell you one? Pick 'em where you like, all warranted cocks."

Jacko the Second endeavouring to eclipse the mellifluous strains of Chirgwin's pet Canary.

I was tempted. When I'd picked out my bird the man remarked: "I knew you was a goin' to pick 'im. You ain't 'arf a bad judge, you ain't; 'e's the only bloke wot's got 'is tongue slit, so 'e's bound to be a talker, 'e is."

And with one eye on my brougham, and the other on my jewelry (I was younger at that time, remember), he continued: "I shall 'ave to charge you three 'arf dollars for 'im, guv'nor."

"But," I expostulated, "you only charged a lady an hour ago 5s. for one."

"That's quite right, guv'nor, but between you and me and the gate post, guv'nor, the one she picked" (whispering in confidence) "was a hen."

Anyway, I bought my bird for 5s., and a grand one, too, he turned out, but "never a word quoth he." It dawned on me, too, that none of these birds had its tongue cut, until a would-be purchaser hove in sight. Then, and then only, were its talking capabilities assured!

Reverting to Jack the Second, time unfortunately won't permit me to tell you all I would like to about him. Suffice it, therefore, to say that he is about 6 months old, gives a faithful imitation of the notes of the Canary, whistles my "Half a pint of mild and bitter" in a delightfully quaint manner (a photo of him actually whistling this I will enclose), comes on the table at breakfast time and goes round to each person for some little tit-bit, flies about the room and returns to his cage when I want him to, opens the hand that holds a mealworm by inserting the beak between the fingers, so prising the hand open, and indulges in other amusing little antics too numerous to mention, all of which are a source of great delight to me, and to everyone who sees him. I am now teaching him to whistle a little melody I have composed by frequently playing it on my phono-fiddle. He is getting on with this tune splendidly, and has already caught the mellow tone of my one-stringed instrument.

There are, however (alas! that I should have to say it), disadvantages attaching to the keeping of a tame Starling mimic, as I discovered when I told some of my professional friends about him. To be brief, they absolutely refuse to believe you, and call you uncomplimentary names and things. But you, Dear Mister, knowing (as I said at first), all there is to know about birds, know as well as I do what the Starling is, and what its capabilities are.

One night, when I had finished talking about him (it was very late—or, rather, early), my listeners said: "All right, George, you'll do; we'll buy it if it's a catch. New 'gag,' I suppose, George? Going to work it to-night, George? Why don't you change his name from Jack to Ananias?" Only yesterday two ladies asked: "Does your Starling that sits down to meals with you, that takes his bath in your soup, and walks on the butter, etc., really play your bagpipes, Mr. Chirgwin?"

Ink isn't thick enough, Dear Mister, to express here what my replies (whenever possible) to these queries are like!

The only sympathy I get outside my own family circle, and my friends who have seen Jack II., is from the gentleman of whom I obtained him, for after telling me about the absurdity of cutting their tongues, he added: "And if you keep a cat, don't on any account put it in his cage for companionship, if you should fancy he is lonesome. I should advocate your at once exchanging any cats you may have for mongrel dogs, and then—shoot the dogs!"

I will add one warning "on my own"—never teach your birdies naughty words. You may think they'll forget them. But they won't. And there is no cure. I remember a seafaring friend of mine who owned a Parrot that could talk very well and swear very badly. A passenger, a rich old clergyman, wanted to buy, but shied at the "cuss" words. "Well," says the sailor, "that's easy mended. When he commences to cuss, collar 'is cage, and pop it inter a but o' water, and twist it round, fast like, once or twice. Arter that he'll talk like an innercent babe." The parson swallowed that story, and the sailor pocketed the pelf. When the old gentleman got his Parrot home, it started in at once to turn the air blue. He flew for a pail of water. In went the cage. Poll emerged looking dazed and queer. She shook a quart of water off her feathers, then cocked a dim but enquiring eye at the parson and yelled: "Say, mister, were you in that —— blizzard?"

I will now wish you, Dear Mister, and all your staff, together with all your readers, a Merry and Happy Christmas, not forgetting continued prosperity to CAGE BIRDS.

Yours truly,

G. H. Chirgwin

We would draw our readers attention to the appeal made by Mr. Chirgwin for a very worthy object on page 548 of this week's issue.—EDITOR.

My Norwich Plainheads.

By C. E. COAD (Truro).

A Well-known West-country Fancier tells how his winners are produced.

THERE is no doubt the Norwich Plainhead has more devotees than any other breed of Canary. For my own part I am not surprised, when I think of his bold, jaunty carriage and rich colour, that so many are captivated by this noble bird. I have bred Norwich for several years with some little success, and am as keen to-day as when I started as a Norwich "specialist."

My Method of Pairing.

My general way of pairing is as follows: Buff cock to yellow hen, or yellow cock to buff hen. I like the cock to be as large and as typical as possible, with plenty of colour. The hen must have fine, silky feather, and a good round head and well filled neck; it must be deep-chested with broad back, short flights and tail. I should like to state here that I have found, however good the cock bird has been, if the hen has not had the typical Norwich properties, the percentage of typical youngsters has been very small; but if you have the hen right, and the cock is not exactly all you could desire, if he is bred right don't be afraid to try him. I have bred many good ones this way.

I also try as far as possible to mate an over-year, or two-year-old bird to a non-flighted, and I prefer the cock to be the older of the two. I am sure that if you have the patience to keep a few, and not breed them until the second season, you will get more young and larger birds.

To Maintain Colour and Increase Size.

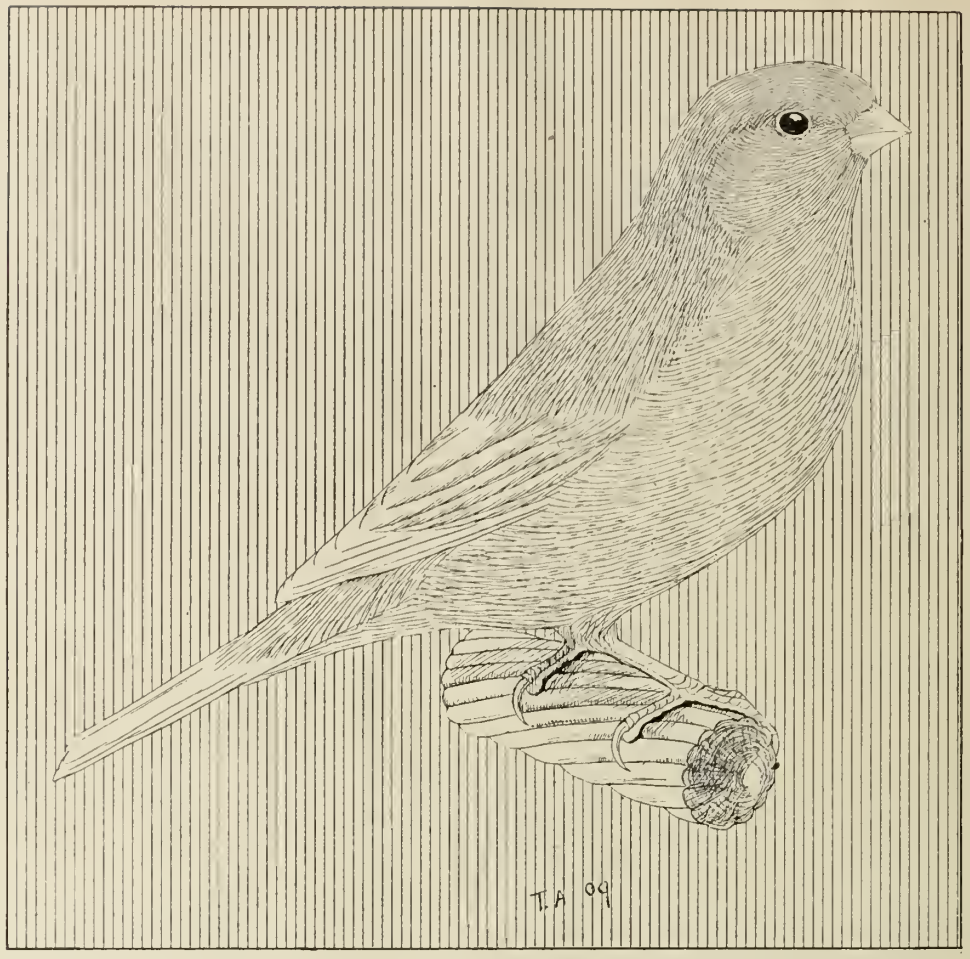
In pairing for colour, I put the variegated or marked bird with a clear one, and I then get a much deeper yellow than if I paired two clears. I find that if I let the marked bird be the hen, the percentage of marked youngsters is not nearly so high as when I use a marked cock bird and a clear hen; and also that the marked young are often the opposite sex to their marked parent. A good bronze yellow green hen paired to a stout, short-feathered yellow cock should produce youngsters with colour enough to keep your stock right in this respect for many years. Always try and get your birds for double yellowing very short in feather, as this procedure has a tendency to lengthen the feather.

To increase size I get the largest, shortest feathered, marked buff cock, and pair him with the most typical, fine feathered, ticked buff hen. The hen I like of medium size, as these are generally of better quality, and will throw the young just as large as do the larger ones, without the disadvantage of being coarse. My reason for having both birds with green blood is because you can then maintain the colour to a greater degree than by pairing two clears. I should like again to impress upon any novice intending to double-buff that it is important to use only short-feathered, typical birds, otherwise he will get very coarse youngsters. Buffs bred from double-yellowing are invaluable for this purpose, and if you have the patience to keep a pair until the second season before breeding them, you will be amply repaid for your trouble.

When the Hen is Sitting.

I always take away the eggs until the third is laid, placing an artificial one in the cage to solace the hen until her own are returned. By this method your young ones will hatch out more nearly at the same time, and you have a greater chance of rearing the lot. Another good plan is to give the hen a little egg food on alternate days when sitting, especially on cold days; this will make her more contented, and she will not be so likely to forsake her eggs.

Management of the Young.



On the evening of the thirteenth day, when the young are due to hatch, I mix the yolk of an egg (boiled 20 minutes) to a couple of crushed Osborne or similar biscuits, and after three days I give both white and yolk to five biscuits with hemp and rape ad lib. After the third day I begin to give sparingly such green food as watercress, chickweed, etc., giving more as the young get older. I find that a little milk sop occasionally encourages the old bird to feed her young.

I leave the young ones with the old birds as long as the latter will feed them without plucking their feathers. When this happens, I put them in a nursery cage, so that the old ones may feed, yet cannot pluck them. When I finally take them away I never hurry to get them on to hard seed (I think many young die through not being able to crack and digest the hard seed), but I always give them egg food, crushed seed and milk sop right up to the time I start colour feeding, which is when they are from eight to ten weeks old, when I pen them by themselves. I always take away all sand and sawdust for three weeks, or they would otherwise eat it, which would set up inflammation. After this they get more sensible, and you may give sand and sawdust without fear.

My Method of Feeding.

It seems somewhat superfluous to write about how to feed Canaries after the splendid hints we get every year in that most valuable and cheap little book, CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL, and also every week in CAGE BIRDS. I am sure every breeder of Canaries, or of any other birds, is placing himself at a great disadvantage if he does not read everything contained in both the ANNUAL and weekly paper. But, seeing that feeding is one of the most important items connected with the keeping of birds, I will state my method.

During the winter months, when the birds are neither breeding nor being colour fed, I feed chiefly on Spanish Canary, with a teaspoonful of hemp and rape two or three times weekly, adding a little more hemp on cold days. About the beginning of February I begin to give a little egg and biscuit (which I prefer to bread and egg, as the biscuit being drier is not so likely to turn sour and upset the birds), and also the following mixture on alternate days: one part hemp, one part rape, quarter-part niger, quarter-part maw, quarter-part gold of pleasure, and quarter-part linseed. This treatment brings the birds into fine breeding condition, and you can pair them at any time from the middle of March to April, weather being suitable.

An Important Point.

Now I come to the last, but not by any means the least, important question the best method of keeping or housing young. I have tried cages and flights, etc., but find that the best method, whether in an indoor room or outdoors, is the use of pens, which are the simplest and best. My pens are 18in. square, with two perches, running from the back to within 1½in. of the front, and another perch at the same height, about 9in. from the bottom of pen, running parallel with the wire front, from which the birds feed.

Sawdust Advocated.

All water, seed, grit, egg drawers, etc., are "getatable" from the perch running parallel with the wire front, thus keeping it high away from the sawdust, of which I always keep a good layer at the bottom. I verily believe that if the sawdust was not cleaned out for a month you would get no bad air, as the sawdust dries up everything. In fact, in some of my busy times I have often exceeded this, and can honestly say at the end of such times my aviary has smelt far sweeter than has been the case in some of the rooms I have visited where the breeder has used sand and cleaned the cages out every week. I am quite certain that my aviary with 18 pairs of birds, kept in faultless condition, does not take one hour per day to clean, so that I think few need give up or refuse to undertake the hobby on the score of time.

During the Moult.

When I start colour-feeding I like to put two or three birds in a pen together, as by so doing they eat their food better; and if any get quarrelsome I single them out. I start feeding the young when they are about eight or ten weeks old, and the old birds in July, giving first one teaspoonful of tasteless with a pinch of hot Natal to an egg and biscuit, gradually increasing it to six teaspoonfuls of pepper to an egg.

I take away all seed at night, and return it at midday, giving one teaspoonful of feed to each bird, each morning first thing. I also give a little ground linseed in the feed towards the end of the moult, and a small bit of sulphate of iron in the water two or three times weekly. Under this treatment birds should come out a nice colour, with a good gloss.

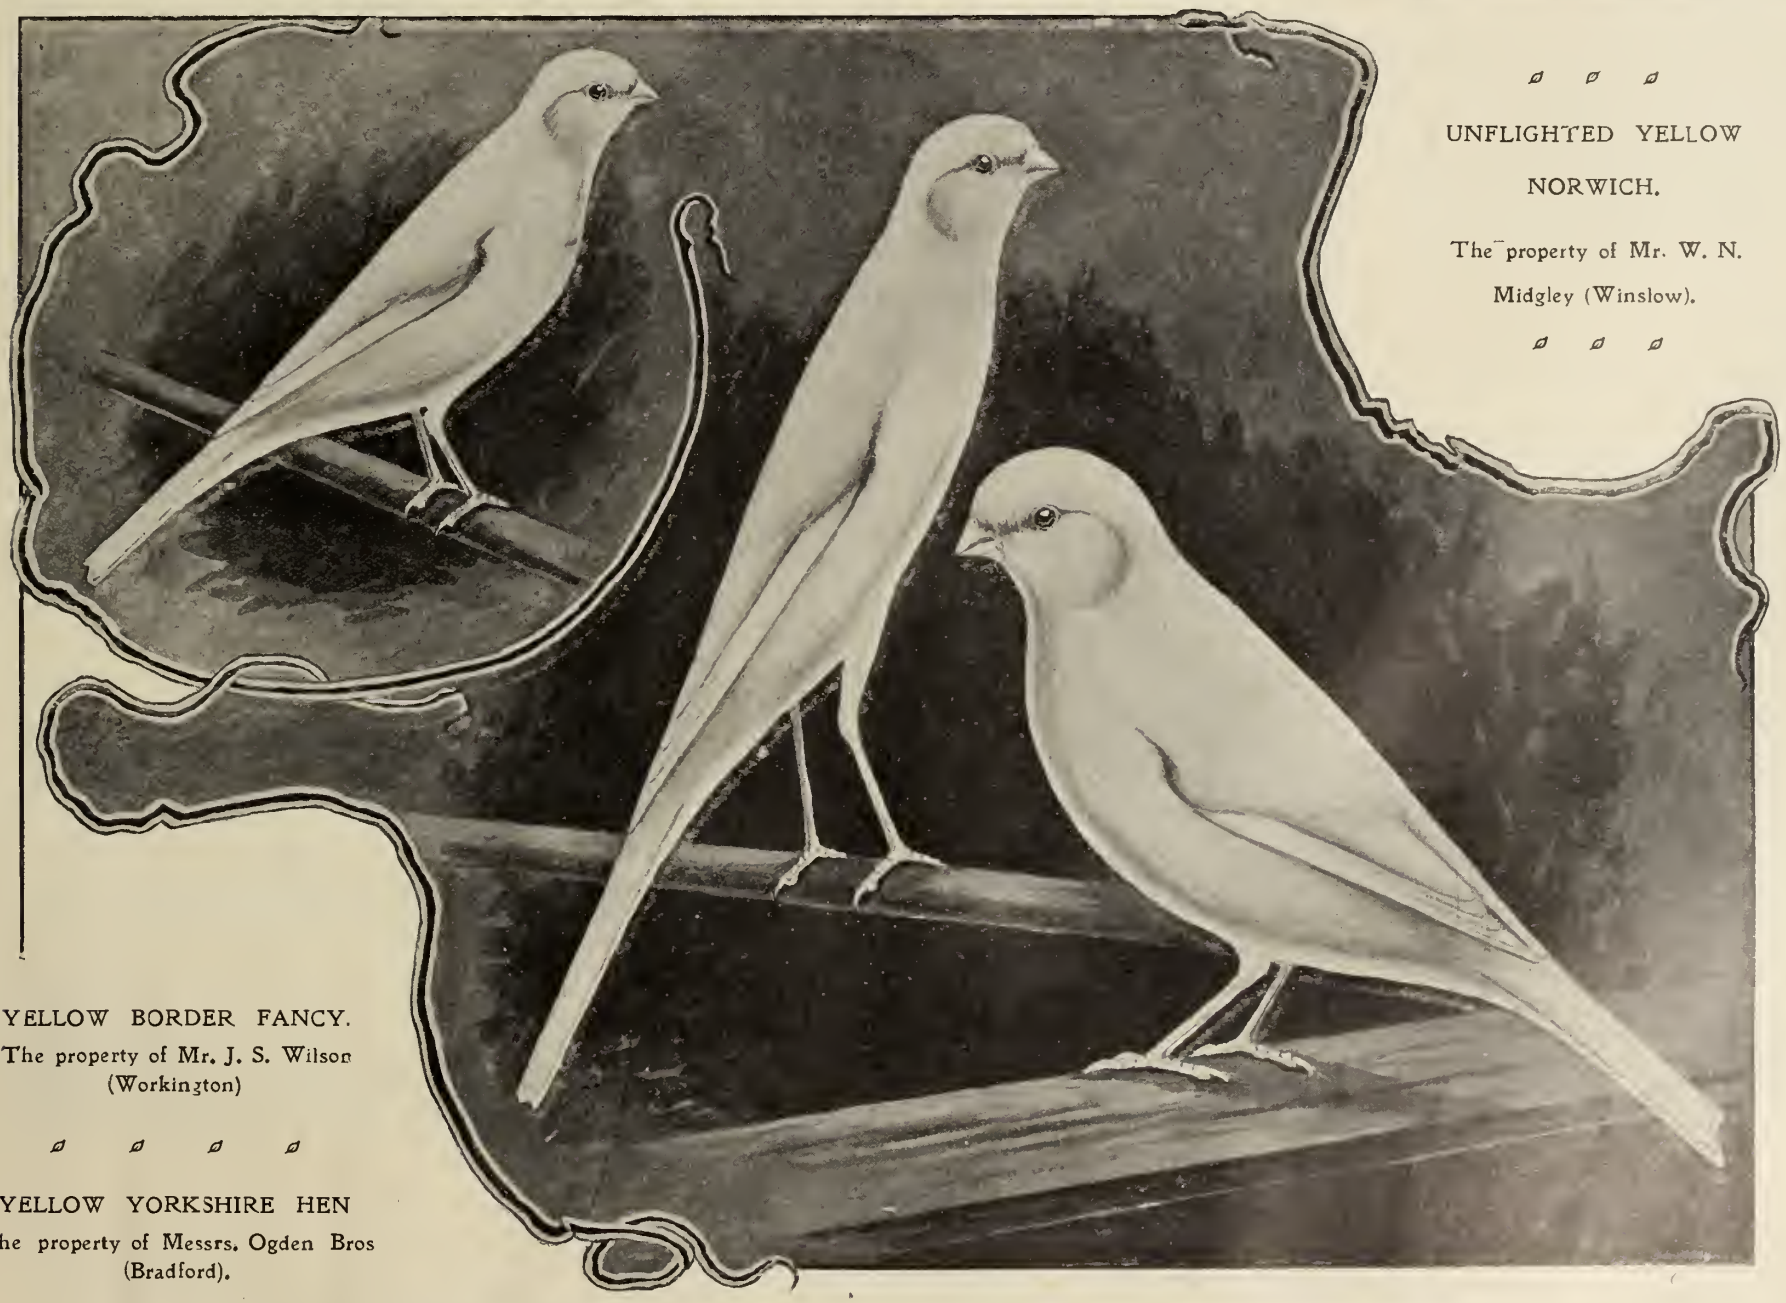
The Present-day Winning Norwich.



I will draw my remarks to a close by referring to the popular question: the present-day winning Norwich. We all seem agreed that a Norwich Canary should first of all have a good, large, round head, with wide entrance to beak, a well-filled neck, a deep wide chest, back well filled in, short flights and tail and silky feather of a good deep yellow colour. My opinion is that most judges pay far too much attention to size and colour, and a large, well-coloured, oft-times coarse and long bird, will win over a bird of type and quality; perhaps it is not fed so hot, but it is a far more valuable bird in every respect to a Norwich breeder. But I must admit that as far as my experience as an exhibitor goes, in the majority of cases that have come under my notice the best bird does the most winning.

If I shall have enlightened any novice, or induced anyone to start in a hobby which I am sure will pay him and give him much pleasure, I shall feel well rewarded for having penned this article.

A Bird's Clothing.—Feathers do not grow from the whole surface of a bird, but only in certain parts, and from those places they spread over the remainder of the body. These tracts are not always alike, but differ somewhat in form in certain species.

To the Rescue.—The Blackbird is a powerful, rather quarrelsome bird, and generally ready for a fight. Recently one was seen to rush to the aid of a Sparrow held by the wing by a rat.

A Difference of Opinion.—The Little Owl has been introduced and set free in Kent, Hertfordshire and Cambridgeshire, and encouraged to increase in these counties. From Cambridgeshire come complaints of the destruction of small birds by the Owl, but the naturalists who turned the birds loose in Kent and Hertfordshire consider they do not cause any diminution among the smaller passerine birds. The Little Owl's usual food consists of mice, small birds, and all kinds of insects.

"Cage Birds" Grand Xmas Literary Competition.

£9 9s. IN PRIZES.

We have decided to again hold a Christmas Literary Competition, to meet the wishes of readers, and the Editor offers five One Guinea Cash Prizes under the following conditions:—

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to Canaries. Competitors may deal with any one variety (such as the Norwich), or more than one variety (such as the Norwich and the Crest together), and questions relating thereto, or may take the general management, breeding, etc., of Canaries from either the domestic or exhibition side.

One Guinea Cash for the best ance and management, etc., of any one original essay on any topic relating to British Birds. The habits, appear- particular species may be discussed, or they may be dealt with collectively, or in groups, as may suit the desire or knowledge of the essayist.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on the art of Mule or Hybrid Breeding, whether in cage or aviary, and between any species of bird (either British or Foreign).

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay on any topic relating to Foreign Birds. The habits, appearance and management, etc., of any one particular species may be discussed, or they may be dealt with collectively, or in groups, as may suit the desire or knowledge of the essayist.

One Guinea Cash for the best original essay written from the aviarist's point of view, embracing the fitting up, stocking, and general management of an aviary, whether of Canaries, British Birds, or Foreign Birds, or a suitable combination.

An original Painting of birds, Value Four Guineas, will be awarded to the best essay, in the opinion of the judges, out of all the sections.

Cash in Exchange for your Experiences.

There must be thousands among the readers of Cage Birds with much knowledge stored away in their heads upon the above subjects. Utilise the Christmas holidays to put that knowledge on paper for the benefit of your fellow bird-keepers, and in exchange for your experiences there may be a cash prize waiting that will help you to buy some bird or other acceptable item you are a-wanting. Turn your spare moments to profitable account. Remember that all articles published by us will be paid for (note rules), also that photographs and drawings may accompany articles.

The Closing Date, remember, is January 24th next.

RULES.

(Read these very carefully.)

Each essay must be clearly written (or typed), on one side of the paper only.

The length is left to competitors, but essays should not contain less than 1,000 words wherever possible.

Faults of spelling and grammar will not be counted against any essay, practical utility, interest, and simplicity being the chief essentials.

No name or address must be put on any essay, but each must be signed with a nom-de-plume, the sender's name and address being attached on a separate sheet of paper.

The Editor's decision will be final. Competent assistance will be called in to aid him in arriving at his decision.

All essays sent in (and any accompanying sketches or photographs) become the property of Cage Birds, but all which are published (over and above the winning essay) will be duly paid for according to their worth to us.

All entries must reach Cage Birds office, 154, Fleet-street, London, E.C., on or before Monday, January 24th next. Write "Essay Competition," on top left-hand corner of envelope or package.

Under the White Rose.

KEIGHLEY district has, I am sorry to hear lost by death one of its well-known fanciers in Mr. Wright, senr., father of the present secretary of the Keighley C.B.S., and I am sure all fanciers will sympathise with Mr. W. Wright in his sad bereavement. Mr. Wright had been in ill-health for some considerable time, and parted with all his birds in consequence of not being well enough to attend to them, a thing that he did not like to do, so enthusiastic was he in pursuance of his favourite hobby.

PATRONAGE of the Yorkshire County B.B. and M.C. has now run through five shows, viz., Middlesbrough, York, Malton, Hull, and Harrogate, and the competitions now stand as follows:—Champion Section: D. Duncan, junr., 69 points, Wilkinson and Danby 52, J. P. Stamp 50, T. H. Inman 47, T. Boyle 47, W. Woods 45, J. Meadows 36, J. Isherwood 27, J. Bousfield 25; Amateur Section: J. Wilson 23, B. H. Wilson 18, J. Lane 10. The members of the club have done their utmost to further the interests of the birds they have at heart, having at the five shows staged 204 birds—an average of just over 40 per show, and with great success. It is rumoured that several well-known British exhibitors have signified their intention of joining the club next year, and if they do, things will hum to a great extent in this section.

HALIFAX Show, which is being held this week-end, have provided the largest classification for the season, and they have all the patronages of the specialist clubs. Without doubt the show will be worth going a long way to see.

"STRAIGHT 'UN.

OUR FRONTISPIECE.

A Prize for Birdie Artists.

Our Frontispiece this week is designed to be coloured. We offer a cash prize of half-a-guinea (10/6) for the best attempt at colouring the same which reaches us from one of our readers on or before Monday, January 3rd next. The medium to be employed is left to the discretion of the competitor. The finished attempt should be packed flat, or rolled in a tube, wherever possible, and have the sender's name and address written on the back. The whole of the front page should be coloured, not merely the frontispiece alone.

OUR CONUNDRUMS.

For all to Answer.

Half-a-crown will be paid to the reader who sends us the best answer on a postcard to any of the appended questions (that is four half-crowns in all).

We ask competitors to adhere strictly to the following simple rules:—

3.—Answers must be written on one side of the post card only.

4.—All answers must be received by Thursday's post, December 30 next.

We should like competitors to understand that length of answer of itself will not count; nor will mere brevity The point and pithiness of the answer and its general helpfulness (where possible) to novices are the main things to be considered.

The Questions.

1. What new variety of Canary ought breeders to strive for?
2. What British bird is best for the beginner—and why?
3. Is cage or aviary the best for Hybrid breeding purposes—and why?
4. What foreign bird makes the best ladies' pet—and why?

In both competitions entries are accepted only on the understanding that the Editor's decision shall be final.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS.

Queries will be answered under the following Conditions;—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side only of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist, or a pseudonym, or initials

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired, queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems) will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who require letters of complaints written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Dinner Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Post cards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS staff of ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in no case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. British Birds, Mules and Hybrids—G. E. Weston. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., M.B.N.H.S., &c., Park and Lake Aviculture—Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. M.B.O.U., &c. Wild Bird Life H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc. of Norwich, Yorkshires. Crests, Cinnamons, Creens, Borders, Lizards. Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his question for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES.

Sits Puffed Up.

J. E.—Your hens appear to be suffering from over-feeding and most likely a constipated condition. Their position in a dull corner where they do not get much light is also likely to cause them to be dull and listless, more or less, during these weeks of generally depressing weather, even though they were in the best of health. If you could move them to a brighter position, but still out of the way of draughts, they would doubtless be much better for the change. Feed them on plain Canary seed only as a staple. Every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape per bird, and once a week a small piece of bread and milk, sprinkled with soft sugar, and a few grains of inga scattered over it. Three or four times a week give a sprsy of watercress, or some other green food if it is obtainable, free from frost and wet, in preference to any kind of fruit. Limit the diet to this for a month. Keep cages strewn with clean gritty sand. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day.

Fighting, Feeding, Bathing.

No Name.—(1) Certainly not. Looking at the matter from a moral standpoint it is perfectly scandalous that two hens should fight, especially at night. But you cannot reason with them, you know. Perhaps they are avine viragoes, with no proper sense of decorum. More likely still one covets the other's sleeping position, and this is how the strife begins. The only way to end it is to separate them, or let them go their own misguided way, so long as no real damage is done to each other. There is no reason to doubt their sex on account of this behaviour. (2) If stock birds for breeding next season, give a staple of plain canary seed only. Three times a week a pinch of summer rape; twice a week a few grains of hemp; once a week a small pinch inga; and once a scrap of bread and milk, crushed sponge cake, or egg food—one or another, or each in rotation, but not all in one week. A little green food when fit to use three or four times a week, at other times a little sweet fruit, as a substitute. (3) Depends upon the birds' robustness and where kept. If in a cold room and the birds appear to be chilled and shivering after bathing, only allow the bath in quite mild weather, and then only about twice a week. If birds are very robust, quickly dry themselves after bathing, and do not seem affected by it, you may let them bathe as often as they care to do so, by hanging on the bath for a quarter of an hour daily to give all that wish to bathe the opportunity to do so.

Jaundiced Roller.

Wormy.—The bird is suffering from a badly deranged liver, for which your method of feeding is very largely, if not solely, responsible. The diet is far too stimulating for any save the most casual use. It is doubtful whether you will be able to do much for the bird at this advanced stage. First of all see that it is kept in as equable a temperature as possible—rather on the warm side, but not too much so, and above all avoid exposure to sudden variations and chills. Keep the cage and perches very clean and strewn with clean gritty sand. For staple diet, give plain Canary seed only. Every second day give a small pinch of summer rape separately; and a small piece of bread sealded with milk pressed nearly dry, and sprinkled with maw seed, once a week. Give a spray of watercress or other greenstuff daily, if obtainable in good condition; otherwise give a small piece of ripe banana as a substitute every second day. The greenstuff is preferable, if obtainable. Restrict the diet rigidly to these items for a month or six weeks at least. In the drinking water give six drops each of dandelion juice and syrup of rhubarb, and a pinch of Epsom salts, for three or four consecutive days, and afterwards dissolve in the water a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, a crystal of sulphate of iron the size of a split pea, and add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid. Give this every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give ten drops of tincture of gentian. Then miss a week, and if it appears necessary, recommence and repeat the fortnight's treatment in the same order.

A Physical Wreck.

J. E. B.—It is extremely doubtful whether you will be able to do more than temporarily alleviate the suffering of this bird. Had you given a few more particulars as to how and where it is kept I might have discovered where your management was at fault, as it undoubtedly is wrong somewhere, and is the cause of the bird's condition. See that the bird is not kept too near a fire, where it is subject to extremes of heat, and cold continually, nor in a draughty position, nor where the air is foul and contaminated with the fumes of burning lights during the evenings. Do not keep it too warm, nor yet on the cold side. Then see that the bird and cage are both quite free from insect pests. Keep cage strewn with clean gritty sand. Feed on a staple of two parts canary to one part summer rape; and twice a week give a small pinch of a mixture of maw, inga, and gold of pleasure. Three times a week for the next fortnight, and once a week afterwards, give a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar, and three times a week, on the intervening days, give a little watercress, or a morsel of ripe banana as a substitute. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much Epsom Salts as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and on the alternate days six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid. After this give twenty drops of whiskey, six each of oxymel of squills, and tincture of lobelia, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three, for a week, and every second day for another week afterwards.

About the Germans.

Hartz Mountain Roller.—In breeding Rollers there is no fixed type at all to breed to, so far as size, colour, shape, markings, etc., are concerned. The only technically valued point about a Roller is in its singing powers. To sing is its one and only vocation, so to speak, in life, apart from reproducing its kind for posterity. Whether it is worth while showing them or not must naturally depend upon whether you have birds sufficiently well trained and good enough performers (in your own estimation at least), to be worth showing, and also to the value you are inclined to attach to the honour of winning. If they are shown they are judged solely by their powers of song—a certain number of points being given for purity, variety, delivery, of song, all of which are extremely difficult to convey to a novice in writing. Neither is it possible to deal with the question as to what is the correct song in one of these replies. If you could refer to a volume of CAGE BIRDS back numbers, you would find several long articles dealing with the subject, and also the method of training the birds to sing. It is, however, too late now to think of commencing training birds. The young cocks must be put under the tuition of superior and faultless singing adults—generally described as schoolmasters—as soon as they can be removed from their parents, and the greatest care taken to prevent them hearing any undesirable bird notes which might corrupt their song. Mechanical organs are also sold which are useful aids in training the birds to sing.

A Roller Unwell.

W. Livesey.—Keep bird in a rather warm place, but see the temperature is equable, and the air pure and fresh, and either keep its box partly closed, or cover the cage with a light linen cover to quite avoid draughts. Keep its cage and perches very clean, and strew the floor with pine sawdust, until the diarrhœa is removed, and clean out sawdust daily and burn it at once. Feed on plain canary seed as a staple, and give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape. On the alternate days give a small piece of bread and milk, slightly sprinkled with soft sugar, and a pinch of maw seed, and vary this once a week with a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with three drops of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and slightly dusted with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash. Give a bit of ripe banana four times a week, but no green food for a time. If available a mealworm may be given daily, and the diet restricted to these items for the present. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive days. After this give six drops of tincture of gentian, and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and on the alternate days give six drops of dandelion juice and five of tincture of opium. Discontinue the latter as soon as the diarrhœa is checked, and give instead twenty drops of whisky, five each of oxymel of squills, and tincture of lobelia, and two of eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, for a week. You might bathe the bare places twice a week with a teaspoonful of strong vinegar, in half a teacupful of hot water—not too hot—dry afterwards, and be careful the bird does not get chilled after it.

Bird Fever.

G. Dear.—I am sorry for you on several counts. First, that you have discovered the very faulty structure of the outhouse, which I suspected from the first; next, that you should have discovered this wretched disease among your stock; and, more than all, that you should have made such a grave error as to caging up the birds and taken them indoors when you found this disease was amongst them. If you had taken steps to make the outhouse drought and rain-proof, even temporarily, and well ventilated, the birds would have had a far better chance of resisting attack than now in the cages. The only way to prevent the disease spreading to the other birds on the first floor is to get someone else to attend to them, and observe the most rigid isolation possible between the two lots of birds. Allow nothing, and no one, to have communication with both groups. Cut off every kind of soft or moist food and feed solely upon the seed diet advised, with occasionally a very little boiled rape, or a bit of dry crushed plain biscuit. In the drinking water give six drops syrup of rhubarb and a pinch of Epsom salts twice a week, and on three other days each week six drops each tincture of gentian and aromatic sulphuric acid, for a few weeks. This may help to keep the digestive system in good order and act as a general tonic, but you must rely solely upon the above method of feeding, combined with absolute cleanliness and frequent disinfection. Keep cage floors well strewn with pine sawdust, which burn frequently. As you are so far from everywhere, why not get what you want from one of the large firms of universal providers in London who make a speciality of post orders? You make a very common mistake in thinking that septic fever always carries off a stock with lightning-like rapidity. There is a non-virulent type which may run on very slowly for months, ready at any time to be worked up by suitable conditions into the rapidly-fatal type. The fact of one bird dying with the disease, and another occupying the same cage at the same time remaining apparently quite healthy is accounted for by the fact that the living bird possesses powerful resisting powers. You could not do better than get Dr. Clarke's handbook on the subject, 7d., post free, from our manager, and read up the subject.

A Sleepy Yorkshire.

W. Shepherd.—"How much less" to do is more to the point. You must not give him bread and milk "nearly every morning," and must curtail his luxuries generally. The bird is being treated too generously. As a staple give plain Canary only, and every second day separately, half a teaspoonful (not more) of summer rape, and once a week only a small pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw, inga, and gold of pleasure. A scrap of bread and milk may be given once a week, and a little green food, if obtainable in good condition, three or four times a week. If greenstuff is unobtainable, substitute a small piece of ripe banana. In the drinking water give six drops syrup of rhubarb and, two days in every three for a week, as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, and during the following week six drops tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. In the next two weeks, if bird is not quite well, repeat first two weeks' treatment in same order. See the bird is not kept too near fire, nor in a draughty position, nor yet subject to extremes of heat and cold; and, if possible, keep it in a well lit and bright position.

Brevities.

Breed for Songsters (R.M.O.).—To breed any kind of songsters in an outdoor aviary you must be careful to introduce none but hardy birds bred and kept always in a normal temperature as stock birds. With these precautions you cannot do better than go in for common Germans, or a cross between German cocks and either Yorkshire or Norwich hens.

Loss of Plumage (J. H. Crosswell).—Feed and treat the birds for a month as advised to "W. Livesey" in this issue, with the exception of the medicines advised to be given in the water. In your case give the rhubarb and salts for two consecutive days, and then give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for a week, and on the alternate days twenty drops of Chemical Food. You might also bathe the bare places as advised.

Breed to Start With (Dublin).—The Border Fancy certainly ranks amongst the highest for hardiness, prolificacy, and general ease of management, so you could scarcely do better than start with it, as you say you have already a predilection for it. They are usually good feeders, rear the young without trouble, and the cocks make very fair singers. Feed the same as you see advised here for Norwich, or with a compromise between this and the oft-repeated German dietary. You should get a very fair pair of birds for your purpose at the price named.

Second Moult (Constant Reader).—I take it you have been moving the birds about from somewhere near some door—though you do not say what door it is; it looks a very likely position for cold draughts to be of common occurrence—to the kitchen, another place which usually means constant fluctuations of heat and cold. First of all try to remedy this condition of things and keep the birds in a fairly equable temperature, free from draughts, even if you have to transfer them to a room where no fire at all is kept. Having attended to this matter, feed and treat for a fortnight as advised "C.G.L." Give a bit of banana in preference to other fruit, instead of green-stuff, when the latter is out of condition for use. A mealworm a day for a time would be very beneficial to these birds if they will eat them.

Canary Querists should send to our publisher for "Canary Breeding for Beginners," 7d.; "House's Canary Manual," 1/2; and "Yorkshire Canaries," 1/-, post free.

Roller Hen Bare (Kelly).—Follow advice given to "J. H. Crosswell." Also see that the cage is quite free from red mites, as I am inclined to think this is partly the cause of the trouble in your case, although you say you cannot see any sign of mites. Examine the cage closely, and if you find any white powdery-looking marks about it, you may be sure there are mites hidden somewhere close at hand. Probe the joints of the door, any holes, or cracks, or open joints with a pin, and you may soon surprise yourself at the result. Remove perches and examine the ends. In short, thoroughly overhaul the cage, and if you discover any mites, see they are quite eradicated.

Bad Plumage and Scab (Faith).—Am inclined to think the cage is infested with red mites. Examine it thoroughly, probing any suspected crack or joint with a pin, and scraping out on to a piece of white paper. If you find any mites, give cage a thorough overhauling, first scraping out, then washing with a fairly strong disinfectant, and finally touching up afresh with distemper or enamel inside, and painting or staining and varnishing outside. Do similarly with the appliances, etc., and the wall where it hangs or stands. As regards the scab, pay particular attention to the holes leading to the food and water vessels, and the arrangement of the perches, and see if these are the indirect cause by rubbing, or causing the bird to rub, its head in order to gain access to the food and water vessels. If this is the case remove the cause. Feed as advised "J.H.L.," but give the mixed seed only once a week, and for the next month give the bread and milk twice a week, and sprinkle first with a mixture of two parts flowers of sulphur to one part chlorate of potash, and finally dust over with soft sugar. Anoint the place once a week with a little sulphur ointment.

Protracted Moult (C.G.L.).—I would advise you to look well to see there are absolutely no draughts. Keep him in a comfortable, but not necessarily a very high, even temperature, with plenty of fresh pure air. Also carefully examine cage to see if there are any red mites, and, if so, exterminate them. In addition to the usual staple give a small teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with gold of pleasure seed, every second day, and on the alternate days a small pinch of hemp. In the drinking water give six drops tincture of gentian and four of tincture of steel every second day for a fortnight. By this time the moult should be stopped, and if the cold has not also disappeared give twenty drops whisky, six of oxymel of squills, and two of oil of eucalyptus, well shaken together, for a few days.

Continuous Laying (Caledonia).—It is probable you are either keeping the hen too close to the kitchen fire, and in an overheated condition, or are feeding too highly. Had you said what your "usual Canary mixture" consists of, I might have discovered the cause. Put her on a diet of plain Canary only for a month, with a pinch of summer rape twice a week, and a little green food, or fruit, when greenstuff is not fit to use, every second day. In the drinking water give a pinch of Epsom salts every second day for a week. Do not keep her too near the fire; but at the same time, see that she is not exposed to draughts, or to foul and vitiated air.

A Bad Sneezing (W.D.B.).—You are feeding bird wrongly, and have got him now in very high breeding condition in consequence. Gradually alter his staple diet to a mixture of two parts Canary to one part summer rape, instead of all rape seed. But do not make the change all at once—let it extend over about a fortnight. In addition to this staple, give a pinch of a mixture of hemp, inga, maw, and gold of pleasure once a week, and on one other day a small piece of bread and milk sprinkled with a little soft sugar. Give a spray of watercress three or four times a week, when obtainable in good condition, and at other times substitute a morsel of sweet fruit. Make sure there is no draught in the cage. If there is really no draught, see if there are not extremes of heat and cold between day and night, and remedy either if they are found to exist. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of buckthorn daily for three days, and afterwards twenty drops whisky, six oxymel of squills, and two eucalyptus oil, well shaken together, two days in every three for a week.

How to Feed (F.H.).—You are feeding him rather too generously, although he may show no ill-effect for a fairly long period. As a staple give a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape, and if you occasionally leave out the rape altogether for a day or two, so much the better. Twice a week only give half a teaspoonful, not more, of the seed mixture you now give every second day. About once a week give a piece of bread scalded with milk and sprinkled with soft sugar, or a few crumbs of sponge or madeira cake, as a treat, though neither is really essential. Egg-food is not necessary, and is all the better omitted from the dietary. Apple is a good substitute for green food, when the latter is not fit for use, so also is banana. Give a small cube something like an inch in size stuck in the wires three times a week. Give green food when possible, and daily in summer.

Squat and Sleeps (Anxious).—It is evidently taking life philosophically, and assuming a congested and plethoric condition in consequence. For a fortnight limit diet to the staple of plain canary, with just one pinch of gold of pleasure and sesame seed mixed in equal parts each week, and a spray of watercress, if obtainable in good condition, every second day; otherwise substitute a grape with the skin broken, or a bit of banana. In the drinking water give ten drops syrup rhubarb and as much Epsom salts every second day for a week as will cover a sixpence, and in the next week give six drops of tincture of gentian and four of aromatic sulphuric acid every second day. At the end of the fortnight add half a teaspoonful of summer rape, given separately every second day, to the diet, and gradually bring the bird on to the diet recommended to "J.H.L.," but be very sparing with all kinds of soft food, and avoid egg food, during the next few months at least. If the bird does not seem alright at the end of the fortnight, omit the medicine for a week, and then repeat the two weeks' treatment in the same order, with the addition of a mealworm daily if the bird will eat it.

Wasteful Feeding (J.H.L.).—It is quite usual, when giving such a mixture, to find the birds make a frightful amount of waste. Give a mixture of three parts canary and one part summer rape only as a staple, which you can mix yourself quite conveniently by buying a pound of each kind separately and mixing with some kind of measure in the above proportions. Then make a separate mixture of one part each hemp, inga, and millet, and a half-part each maw, gold of pleasure, teazle, and linseed. A slight sprinkling of yellow mustard may be added to the bulk sometimes, but not regularly. Of this mixture give half a teaspoonful twice a week. Once a week give a scrap of bread and milk sprinkled with sugar, as advised to "F.H.," and three times a week a bit of green-food, or a bit of banana, or other fruit, as a substitute, when green-stuff is out of season. In summer give green-food daily. The sample is composed of hemp, inga, linseed, maw, and gold of pleasure, and contains a good deal too much linseed. The above recipe will give you a similar mixture in better proportions.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by G. E. WESTON.

Young Hens (Anxious).—Yes; young Canary hens (one year old) are quite suitable to use for mule breeding. Older hens usually carry more size, but have no other advantages worth consideration.

A Goldfinch and Linnet (E. G. V.).—I do not advise you to do anything now to the Goldie which has not moulted; he may quite likely suffer no inconvenience from it. Seed mixture, canary and teazle three parts each, hemp two parts, linseed a half-part. Very much hemp is not good for linnets as a regular thing. Try this mixture: Canary seed two parts, teazle one part, summer rape, charlock, and linseed a half-part of each. Give the packet mixture occasionally.

Siskin with Cold (A. N. Brooke).—Get a chemist to mix the following: Glycerine, oxymel of squills, and ipecacuhana wine, one fluid ounce of each. Of this stir a small teaspoonful into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water. Give for 24 hours, then for 12 to 14 days let him have medicine on for half the day, and plain water for the rest of the day. All medicines of this kind must be given over a period if good is to result.

A Choice (T. H. M.).—My own experience leads me to say unhesitatingly that the Linnet-Bullie couple will be easier for you to make a commencement with than the Greenie-Bullie couple. A box pattern cage (wired at front only) is the best, size about 36 inches long, sixteen high, and 14 to 18 (the latter is to be preferred) from front to back. The extra width affords seclusion.

Two Items (Doubtful).—1. I do not think it possible to give Goldfinches so much thistle, hardhead and dandelion seed as to be "injurious to their health." But it is not policy to give over-much, as doing so would be calculated to "put them off" their usual stock mixture, which should be considered as the "daily bread." 2. "Going light" is the expressive term used to denote a bird that is losing flesh and becoming so emaciated as to threaten its very existence. The breastbone (owing to the absence of flesh) stands out sharply to the touch—hence the phrase, "has a breastbone like the back of a knife."

A Lark's Fractured Leg (Caledonia).—You cannot do anything further. Your treatment (binding up the fractured lower part of the leg in splints made out of a quill) was quite correct, and I hope will turn out successful. The bandage should be left on at least 14 days.

Siberian Goldie Ailing (Sadler).—You ought to have given an aperient at once. Stir half a teaspoonful of syrup of buckthorn into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water for 24 hours, and repeat the dose after a day's interval on plain water. Afterwards give tincture of gentian (note reply to "Anxious"). All the hemp and sunflower should be cracked, and niger and maw offered freely as well, in addition to a little thistle.

A Matter of Time (Constant Reader).—Our winter has of recent years had a habit of turning up when spring should be with us; still, it ought not to hurt British and Siberian Goldies to be turned out of doors into an aviary (especially if a well-sheltered one) about the middle of March. If the indoor room is a heated one, however, you would do well to wait until a spell of settled fine weather appears to have arrived. May is the Goldie's great month for serious "housekeeping."

A Skylark (Berwyn).—Your feeding is good enough; still, the bird may be a cock, and not break into song until some spring-like weather puts in an appearance. I presume it had been but newly-captured when you bought it about the end of August? Cock and hen are alike in plumage The cock, however, is always a bigger, more massive-looking bird than the hen. If your bird is on the small side, then it is most likely a hen.

Concerning Linnets (Anxious).—I. In two tablespoonfuls of drinking water let this bird have stirred in half a teaspoonful of tincture of gentian for 7 or 8 days. It is a useful tonic and "appetiser." 2. Look at the bird's wing, and if the butt (shoulder) and also its upper back are a decided warm "nutty" brown colour, then it is a sure cock bird. You will find, too, that the breast feathers have a "mooned" appearance at the tip on being ruffled (if a cock); test this alongside your undoubted males.

Points of the Exhibition Goldfinch (Vectis).—1. The Norwich (or chubby) type of Goldfinch is the one generally preferred. 2. I have heard the term "mooning" applied to the shape (sharpness of outline) of the half-circle described by the black band of the head when coming round the cheeks, likewise to the half-moon shaped marks on the wings, and to the white tips to the tail feathers. The wing markings, however, are more correctly termed "buttons." 3. The brown patches (or "tanning") on the breast should not be light, but a deep, warm chestnut.

A Goldfinch Ailing (J. H. Crosswell).—Your letter is much too brief to help me to give you an answer. I want to hear in what room (heated or otherwise) and cage you are keeping the bird, how feeding it, whether it has moulted, and how old it is (if known). Then I might be able to remedy matters. In the meantime give the bird a tonic or strengthening medicine; an excellent one is Parrish's chemical food (obtainable at all good-class chemists), a small teaspoonful stirred into two tablespoonfuls of drinking water, fresh daily. Give in a glass or pot vessel only.

Chaffinch "Weak." (F. C. C.).—Give the bird a lengthy course (at least 14 days) on Parrish's chemical food, as advised "J. H. Crosswell" this week, but allowing occasional intervals of a few hours on plain water. The cage is not big enough (12 by 7in.); it should be at least 16 by 8 inches. You do not say how you are feeding, but give at least a dessertspoonful of cracked sunflower seed daily (in addition to its stock mixture), and 4 or 5 mealworms.

A Goldfinch "Off Colour" (Retford).—Give at once two doses of syrup of buckthorn, as advised "Sadler" in this issue. Canary seed is of little use for Goldfinches; give the stock mixture recommended to "E. G." Let the hemp be cracked until the bird picks up again, and give a few cracked sunflower seeds daily, and a little mixed niger, thistle, and maw seeds. Feed the bird correctly, or you must expect to have trouble.

A Curious Item (Smith of Kennington).—Candidly speaking, I cannot think there is anything seriously wrong with your Goldfinch which has suffered for so long a time with "a kind of funny noise which sounds as if it smacks its beak together for several times at a stretch." It may be only a little mannerism the bird has acquired. If it were anything serious, then graver symptoms would have put in an appearance long before this. Is either the upper or the lower mandible at all overgrown? How does the bird's health seem, generally speaking?

A Hen Goldfinch Ailing (G. E. F.).—This is another bird which should be given a couple of doses of syrup of buckthorn, and he fed as advised "Retford" in this issue. Feed her up on crushed hemp and sunflower, with teazle, niger, thistle, and maw. A cock Goldie can be successfully paired with either a hen Linnet or a hen Canary (not both at the same time, if this is what you mean).

A Snow Bunting.

Bert.—Like all the Buntings, the Snow seems to care for little of any seed other than canary; mine also pick over and eat small quantities of wild seed mixture, likewise groats and hemp (crushed by being passed through a seed mill), also my Finch mixture treated in the same way. They like a little insectivorous mixture (such as I prepare for my small Softbills), among which I mix a few cut-up mealworms. This I consider most beneficial. Of mealworms they should have one or two daily; other suitable forms of live food they also relish. Green food they are not keen after, but take "nibbles" at any of the kinds I put into the cage (young leaves of watercress, rape seedlings, shepherd's purse, chickweed, etc., according to season). A long, low cage (like a glorified Lark "runner") is the best type, with a canvas top for fresh-caught examples. I put in two stoutish perches, which, of course, are low down. But they spend a lot of time on the floor of the cage, and their feet should be looked to, so that they do not get clogged. Coarse sawdust is an excellent covering for the cage floor.

A Skylark's Food.

Colonial.—The "fancy foods," as you term them, which one sees recommended, must certainly be useful, seeing the good results obtained by those who write of them. I often give some good "German paste" (which is similar in composition) myself. I do not care for such "fatty" foods for regular use, however. A good and simple stock food, which will keep for a very long time when stored in a dry place, in tins, and which any good corn dealer or seller of birds' foods will mix for you, is:—Puppy (or dog) meal, six parts; ground silkworm pupæ, meat meal, good ants' eggs and dried flies, one part each, by measure. Damp quantity required for daily use with a little grated raw carrot or cold mashed potato, or finely chopped lettuce, chickweed, watercress, or other green food in season, and add a teaspoonful of preserved egg flake or half a hard-boiled egg twice or so a week. Give three or four mealworms daily, and any other insects you can lay hands on, especially spiders. Give seed in a separate vessel (not along with the soft food), about a teaspoonful of Canary seed daily, with, for a change, crushed hemp, groats, maw, or rape. Your bird will thrive and sing right enough on this menu.

A Lengthy Death Roll.

Stock.—You ought, of course, to have a post-mortem made, but from the description you give of the bird's appearance, and the way in which they die off one after the other, I have little hesitation in saying that you have the dreaded bird fever amongst your stock. All the remaining healthy (apparently) birds should be taken to another room, and be put into fresh cages (boxes with wire-netting at front would do) and any that turn queer be taken from amongst them at once. These cages should be cleaned out daily, and the draw-boards sprinkled with diluted (but strong) Jeyes' fluid. Treatment of the birds (assuming the trouble to be bird-fever) is not often of any avail. But you should certainly carry out the advice given in the correspondence columns of CAGE BIRDS some few months ago (you can get the copy containing this for 1½d. in stamps by writing the publisher at 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.) It is, of course, too long for me to reproduce here. There is nothing wrong (to the eye) with the seed samples sent.

Bird Lice.

B. J. Waters.—It is annoying, I admit, but the bird probably had the mites on it when bought, and no blame attaches to your management. Skylarks are very susceptible to bird lice (the grey kind, such as those your bird is worried with). The bird should be dusted thoroughly with Keating's insect powder, especially under the wings, at root of tail and round the neck, then wrapped in a piece of flannel for about 15 minutes; then put into a temporary cage. The powder must be worked well amongst the plumage; a small camel hair "mop" brush is handy. Keep it out of the eyes of the bird if at all possible. The old cage should be painted all over with turpentine, letting it run into every crack and crevice, whether in front or otherwise; when dry, distemper it out. Perches, seed and water vessels, must also be washed and cleansed. To complete the cure the bird wants skilfully hand-washing with carbolic soap. Don't you know some experienced fancier who would do it for you? Half measures are no good if one wishes to exterminate lice. Afterwards see that it has a deep dust-bath, into which a good portion of Keating's insect powder has been mixed. You are feeding it fairly well. See reply to "Colonial," this week.

Feeding Fresh-caught Linnets.

Puzzling.—It is puzzling, I agree, to lose so many birds. Are you quite sure they are "sound" when you get them, and that you are feeding aright? I have often dealt with the latter matter. Fresh-caught specimens should always be kept in cages with inside seed troughs, so that their food is directly under their noses, so to speak. It is well to have the water inside; if this cannot be managed, then be absolutely certain they get at it. I prefer to give them a few days or so in a cage resembling a catcher's store cage, with canvas top; such is very useful to get them well on to seed, and over the first stages of captivity. The great mistake is to condemn them at once to a diet of dry, hard seed. The sudden and complete change upsets them. Fresh-caught Linnets should have soaked seed of some kind (such as soaked rape). For their stock food mix one pint of each of best canary, and sound ripe teazle, with half a pint each of genuine summer rape, linseed, and charlock seeds. In addition to the stock mixture, in a separate dish, I give an unlimited supply of maw seed and niger, also lightly cracked hemp seed. These I gradually discontinue, arranging to drop them altogether after the birds have been in my possession twelve to fourteen days. As green food (or "soft-seed" food), I provide summer rape seed soaked in cold water until just commencing to germinate (dabbing it dry in a towel before giving it to the birds), and seeding shepherd's purse, plantain, and chickweed and flowering groundsel tops, when obtainable. If I think my birds were caught during a wet spell, I soak the stock mixture for them at first (you should try the effect of doing this), I very seldom lose a bird on the above treatment. The crushing of the hemp seed (all the stock mixture if you like), is most important at first; use a seed mill, a very handy thing.

A Blackcap Warbler.

Devonian.—As your bird has a black cap, it is most certainly a cock. He will not sing until thoroughly settled down in his new quarters; possibly not until the spring is approaching. They do not want keeping too warm; just protected from feeling the extreme cold of winter (especially during the night). The stock food should be that which I recommend for small Insectivorous birds, viz., powdered Osborne biscuit, four parts; best ants' eggs, two parts, dried flies and powdered silkworm pupæ, one part each; meat meal, half part, by measure. Take the quantity required of this, and mix it just crumbly moist with grated raw carrot, or finely chopped lettuce, watercress, or chickweed (use young leaves only), or cold mashed potato, varying it frequently. It is necessary, of course, to give, in addition, live insect food (flies, spiders, wood-lice, earwigs, smooth caterpillars, green fly, ants' eggs, etc.), one can obtain, as in season. To the above stock mixture I frequently add, after damping, a teaspoonful or two of preserved egg-flake, or, more generally, part of a hard-boiled fresh egg, finely minced, and, occasionally, a little finely scraped raw lean mutton or beef. Ripe fruit should enter largely into the menu; banana, very ripe pear and apple, strawberries, grapes, elderberries, blackberries, raspberries, garden currants, etc., are all more or less appreciated—you will soon find out your bird's likes and dislikes. Remember that the Blackcap is passionately fond of fruit, either mixed with the soft food or, preferably, hung up in the cage, or wires, or, better still, given in a separate dish.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. M.B.N.H.S., etc.

What Bird is it?

"Strathmore."—I have little doubt but what you have a Brazilian Hangnest. At least, your description fits this bird exactly. It should have quite a roomy cage, as it is a restless, active bird; its present shyness should soon disappear; make a practice of offering it a mealworm with your fingers several times a day; it will soon forget its fear to obtain this dainty. When it has once become tame a fly ronnd the room occasionally will be beneficial to its health. If you have any small birds in cages in the room, these should be removed while the Hangnest is out for exercise, or it will slaughter all it can get at. Diet: Soft food, ripe fruit, and live insects (mealworms, and such beetles, caterpillars, spiders, etc., as you can capture). The song is a rather ragged collection of notes, but full and flute-like, and mostly commences with "Hookaree, Hookaree." It cannot have too much ripe fruit.

Virginian with Fits.

Sparrow.—I certainly consider a cooler place will be better for it. These are hardy birds, and only need to be kept out of draughts. In the case of another fit, I think you will find the pouring of cold water over bird's head will give relief. Also, so long as the voidings are not too watery, stir a teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into its soft food mixture. I would suggest as a possible cause, rather confined quarters, only moderate exercise, with the natural result of its becoming over-fat. Give it as much ripe fruit as you can get it to take, this with seed and soft food, and two or three mealworms per day should meet its needs. If at all possible, I should advise you to let it have a fly round the room daily; this will do more for your bird than medicine; it can easily be lured to its cage again by throwing in a mealworm, or it will return of its own accord when hungry.

A Sick Amazon.

Dixon.—You do not state how you have been feeding, and this may have been a contributing factor. Dissolve three drops of tincture of opium in a little syrup, or rather, take a tablespoonful of chilled water, a small lump of sugar, and three drops of tincture of opium, and when dissolved supply to the bird; if the water be taken away overnight, it will then readily take the prepared water in the morning. Continue the above for three days, and note result; if relief is not given then try another dose or two—it should not be necessary to continue the apericuts. Get a box of honey and borax, and with a camel hair brush or feather put a little on its tongue several times daily; better still, if the bird will permit you to do it, paint the interior of the mouth with the honey and borax—the brush should be well cleansed for each occasion. In its present condition, I do not care to advocate a change of diet. Send particulars of how you are feeding, and I can possibly give further assistance. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. The following are all wholesome: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, boiled maize, plain biscuit and nuts. Keep a piece of cuttlefish hanging in the cage, and the cage tray well covered with gritty sand.

Parrot Finches Bald.

Anxious.—Grassfinches and Waxbills seem specially liable to this annoying trouble, and disfigurement. In many instances it is merely that they pluck each (appearing all the while to be merely preening other's feathers. I am inclined to advise you to separate these birds for the time being, and not to put them together again till the baldness has disappeared. For one day make their drinking water, just saline with Epsom salts, giving say, 3 or 4 doses with three days between each dose. In between and continue for some little time, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. If they will take it, and most of them will readily, give them a little fresh lettuce wherever convenient, also a little of such ripe fruit as they will take, try them with different kinds, and so find out their taste; it varies with individuals. Only leave the bath in sufficiently long for them to have their tub, or they may drink therefrom instead of taking the prepared water. You may take it that the disfigurement is but temporary, though it may continue some weeks. Crush some cuttlefish to about the size of white millet, and sprinkle this over the sand and also mingle a little with their seeds.

Foreign Bird Querists will find in our handbook, "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1, and "Budgerigars and Cockatiels," 6d. post free; a mine of information of use and interest.

Grey Out of Condition.

J. Hamilton.—Get a bottle each of Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food, also a box of honey and borax from your chemist. Soak into the boiled maize one teaspoonful of the magnesia every third day so long as its voidings are not watery. Well colour the drinking water daily with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this till the bird is really fit again. If the bird will permit you to handle it, well smear the inside of its mouth with the honey and borax, using either a feather or camel hair brush for the purpose, which must be well cleansed for each occasion. Try half filling its tin with the ordinary seed mixture and putting the boiled maize on top of same. This may induce the bird to take the mixture. Also supply ripe fruit, plain biscuits, and a few nuts (shelled walnuts are best); keep a piece of cuttlefish in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee, or milk slops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. If there is any running at the nostrils, well spray and cleanse these, as required, with diluted glycothymoline.

Birds for Outdoor Aviaries.

G. Andrew.—In the aviary, 7 by 4 by 6 feet, providing you have a shelter to which they can retire at night, or a glazed shutter to shut in the entire front of aviary, you could keep pairs of the following: Zebra, Ribbon, and Spice Finches, Bronze and Magpie Mannikins, Zebra and Orange-cheeked Waxbills, with a pair of Diamond Doves and a pair of the small Chinese Quails. In the circular aviary you could keep a dozen pairs of Finches, Waxbills, or Mannikins; or make a really fine display with two or three pairs of Parrakeets, such as Rosellas, Stanley, Many-colour, Redrump, or Ringnecks. The following would make a really grand display: Rosellas, Redrumps, and Many-colours; with half-a-dozen log nests, fixed high up for nesting purposes, placed as far apart as space will permit. I should advise you to securely cover round the north and east sides of this aviary with canvas, during the cold months of the year. You would find Foreign Birds for Beginners (1/1 post free, from "C.B." Office) a great help in treating your birds.

Feather-plucking Cockatoo.

Metrogas.—Your Sulphur-crested Cockatoo was evidently a confirmed feather-puller when you first received it, as well as probably having been very improperly fed, and, I fear, the prospects of a complete cure are not rosy. Still there has been a temporary improvement, so you must hope for the best. Keep its bowels moving freely by occasional doses of Dinneford's Magnesia, and when not giving this, well colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food. Spray the bird twice a week with quassia solution (at this season of the year taking every precaution against draught), you can procure this preparation ready for use from an advertiser; use according to maker's instructions. Also keep cuttlefish, wood and cotton reels, in its cage, for it to play with and chew up. If the bird is tame, and accustomed to you, you might try a little judicious chastisement with a light stick when you find it pulling out its feathers; Parrots and Cockatoos are quick to recognise punishment.

Brevities.

Another Feather Puller (G. Brown).—There are several other replies in this issue which will meet your case. Your diet is fairly correct. Let it have a piece of plain biscuit in lieu of the cake, it will do no harm if the bird moistens it in the water, and most Parrots do thus. Also give it Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food. For directions, see aforementioned replies. Write again with fullest details if the plucking becomes more pronounced. Carefully examine the bird, and if there are any signs of parasites dust it with pyrethrum powder.

Red-tail Grenadiers and Waxbills ("Dod").—It all depends on how they are kept. Will you give me some idea of sizes of cage or aviary? I can then give you definite advice. At present all I can say is that when not overcrowded I have always found them to agree together. One mealworm per bird per day should be sufficient for Waxbills. I should give them one or two doses (one teaspoonful to each ounce of drinking water) of Dinneford's Magnesia, say, every other day, but this must be stopped as soon as the voidings become watery, when it would be advisable to lightly colour the drinking water with Parrish's Chemical Food, and continue this for some time. Let them have a little of such ripe fruit as they will eat. It will be very beneficial, as also will sponge cake moistened with milk that has been boiled. If they will take it.

Grey and Its Value, Etc. (Clarkson).—I have not my previous reply by me, but if you diet correctly as advised it should continue to improve. The following are all permissible and wholesome, and should enable you to keep up a varied diet. Staple seed mixture, with ripe fruit, nuts and plain biscuits at intervals; a piece of clean cuttlefish should be continually hanging in cage, and it must have water and grit. Keep its bowels moving freely by an occasional dose of Dinneford's Magnesia (see other replies), and also give Parrish's Chemical Food in the drinking water when not giving the magnesia. As regards value, a Grey Parrot, healthy, in good feather, and a good talker, is worth anything from £5 to £15, according to talent.

Grey in Poor Feather (Crofspa.—It is your dietary that is causing the trouble. Stop giving sago, rice and Yorkshire pudding, also bread soaked in tea, and do not give slops, sop or table scraps of any kind. An ample diet is as follows: Seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, cuttlefish, grit and water. (For full details see other replies in this issue.) Also give Dinneford's Magnesia and Parrish's Chemical Food, for quantity and method of giving see other replies in this issue. There is probably not much harm done yet, but if you persist in giving sops and table scraps the bird is almost sure to become a confirmed feather puller and a pitiable object, if it does not "shuffle off." If you carefully read replies re Grey Parrot in this issue, you cannot be in doubt as to treating the bird.

Indian Green Parrot (India).—"Popular Parrakeets," obtainable from this office, will give you useful advice on this species. It is not a difficult thing to keep them fit, providing you do not give them a bit of everything. Note: Do not give tea, coffee or milk slops, table scraps or any kind of animal food whatever. Diet: Seed mixture, Canary, white millet, oats, hemp, maize, dari, paddy rice, and sunflower seeds in equal parts. Well mix and keep a continuous supply in the cage. Also supply ripe fruit, according to season and the bird's taste; plain biscuits and a few nuts (shelled walnuts are good). Keep a piece of cuttlefish continually in the cage, keep the cage where its occupant will be free from draught, yet not in the stagnant corner of the room. If the bird is kept where it hears plenty of conversation, and is petted, talked to and fussed with generally, it will soon begin to repeat what it hears and mimic various sounds and calls common to its vicinity.

Virginian Cardinal (J. C.).—Glad to hear the bird is recovering, and trust there will be no recurrence of the fits; but if so, do not hesitate to use the cold water on the head, no matter what the weather is. These birds need roomy quarters and plenty of exercise, and they certainly do not need any artificial heat. No bird ought to be subjected to extremes of temperature—a cold room would be far preferable to such quarters.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. J. North, 435, Oxford Road, Reading, will examine cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird: for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to J. North, with fee. Any sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

Linnet (P. H. Harris).—Chronic softening of liver, then acute inflammation involving the bowels and lungs. I do not think it was field-moulted.

GENERAL.

Answered by the Editor.

What Issue (Marchpane).—In the current number.

A Seed Hopper (J. Howard).—We have given several very similar hoppers.

A Tit-bit Holder (J. Gillespie).—Several similar tit-bit holders have been illustrated, we think.

A Round Door Cutter (J. S. Noble).—We have illustrated a somewhat similar door cutter before.

To Prevent Seed Litter (J. Jones).—We illustrated a lot of "litter" savers some little time ago, including one similar to your own.

Information Wanted (W. Anbray).—We will see if we can secure an article dealing with the points you mention.

The Model Plainhead (G.H.G.).—We can send you the plate on which the model Norwich Plainhead appeared post free for 3d. It is not in colours.

Entries at Muirkirk Show ("Mr. Moss").—Your letter cannot be published until you send us your correct name and address. We cannot take notice of anonymous communications.

An Exhibition Crest (A. March).—One of the Crests had been washing, and our reporter thinks it must have been your bird, hence the absence of comment upon it.

A Letter (Lewis and Co.).—Matter for publication must be written on one side of paper only: neglect of this rule necessitated the holding over of your letter until it could be copied out.

Visiting Mapperley (J. N. Mate).—We appreciated your delicate sarcasm, and enjoyed reading your letter, but as there are others who might not do so, we don't think we will venture on its publication.

Wild Bird Life.

Gregarious Birds.

Rooks are perhaps the most gregarious birds we have. Winter and summer they are always in flocks. Many species band together during the short days and disperse in pairs during spring and summer, coming together again as autumn approaches. Among these may be numbered the Finches, although occasionally we get exceptions to this rule. In our summer wanderings across some wide stretch of breezy common-land, we have found a patch of furze and undergrowth alive with rosy-breasted Linnets; patient search has revealed a neat cup-shaped home in almost every bush. Whether such can be called a gregarious gathering or simply a taking possession of a suitable nesting site, it would be hard to decide. In the same way I once found a dozen or so nests of the Yellow Bunting among the brambles covering the sloping bank of an old chalk pit. The spot was warm and sheltered, it appeared to me an ideal place for nests of birds building near the ground.

Such things are occasionally met with in one's rambles, but they are the surprises of the countryside, and keep one constantly interested. We never know what we may find. One day we think we have discovered some new fact concerning bird life, the next it is exploded, and another idea forces itself upon the mind. I once read a book in which the writer affirmed that "the eggs of the Missel Thrush are four in number, never more, and seldom less," and the very next day I found a nest with three highly incubated eggs in it, and another with five perfectly fresh ones. This to my mind did not prove that the writer was entirely wrong, so many accidents happen in bird life. The three eggs may have been the remaining eggs of a clutch from which one had been abstracted, and the five the produce of two hens, although it is highly probable it was the whole clutch of a very prolific bird. Such finds as these prove how unwise it is to dogmatize upon anything in Nature, although I must say that from some years of observation I have found four eggs to be the normal clutch of the bold Stormcock. It is certainly strange that this fine bird, which has such an independent bearing, should be the only one of our resident Thrushes to flock in the winter months. The gatherings are seldom large; eight to a dozen birds appear to be the usual number. They are shy and wary, very difficult to approach, and seldom seen on the lawn and in the garden.

The Young Naturalist.

Prizes of 1s. and two of 6d. each will be given weekly for the best three anecdotes about birds written on postcards. Competitors must be under sixteen years of age, and state whence stories are taken. Two stars indicate the Winning Contribution; one star the runners up.

My Little Friend.

Last week I went into the garden to play with my ball, and to my surprise I found a Sparrow against the greenhouse fire. It was half dead with the cold and from want of food. I took it in and fed it with bread crumbs and seeds, and an hour later the little fellow began to chirrup and fly, seeming quite happy and contented. I gave it fresh food and water every day. It has now become quite plump, and I shall try and keep it till the weather gets a little warmer. Then I shall let it fly in the open air. Every day when I have done school at 4 o'clock, I spend the greater part of the evening with my little friend "Dick."—Sent by George Thomas Hatton (age 10), Chapel Street, Tickenhall, near Derby.

*A Wise Old Owl.

Sang a wise old Owl in a belfry old,
"The ivy is green and the air is cold;
The day is warm, the night is chill;
The sky is grey behind the mill.

I care not for the dark, not I!
I see in the night when out I fly,
I screech and hoot all over the world,
And I live high up in a belfry old."

Taken from story book, and sent by L. Anderson (age 14), 8, Batchelor Road, Chatham.

*Clever Sparrows.

My grandma feeds the birds every morning, and a great many come looking for their breakfast—Sparrows, Starlings, Blackbirds, Robins, and others. One morning last February a Sparrow was building its nest near grandma's house, and it flew down into the garden and tried to carry away a piece of woollen material. After trying in vain to lift it, grandma saw it fly away. It shortly came back again bringing another Sparrow. The two got hold of the piece with their beaks and flew away with it to where they had their nest.—Taken from Morning Magazine, and sent by Allan Moore (age 8), 73, Mallinson Road, Clapham Junction, London.

Gilbert White and the Chaffinch

Gilbert White was one of the first to notice the flocks of Chaffinches during the winter composed of one sex. He says: "We have vast flocks of female Chaffinches all the winter, with hardly any males among them." He also mentions the fact in a subsequent letter.

SHOWS.

DRI FIELD.

The Driffield and Dis. F.S. Christmas show was held on Dec. 3, in the Temperance Hall, an ideal place for a show. The cage bird section contained many creditable birds. Mr. J. T. Holliday judged. HIGHBRIDGE.

Considering the limited classification the entry at the show of the Highbridge Society, on December 10th, was very good indeed, whilst the quality was well up to the average. The birds were nicely staged, and their requirements well attended to by th committee. Mr. Buttle made an efficient and obliging secretary. Mr. C. I. Young judged, and we heard no grumbling.

ASHINGTON AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

Annual club show held on Nov. 13, in the Harmonic Hall, and it proved a bugo success, Norwich and Borders being especially fine. Entries totalled 250—100 more than last year. Mr. J. Miles (Ashington) secured special for best unflighted in show, and Mr. J. King (first) Sandiford's cup for hottest fed. Mr. S. P. Lackey (Bothal) won special for best pair in pair classes. Mr. T. Dixon, the judge appointed, met with an accident during the week, and being unable to attend Mr. A. Brown (Gateshead) kindly officiated. The secretarial duties were ably carried out by Mr. Geo. R. Henderson.

SOUTHPORT.

Southport and District C.B.S. annual show was held on December 11th, in the Old Castle Rooms. The sec., Mr. B. Bullough, had all arrangements well in hand, and the stewards, Messrs. Milburn and Kay, put up the cards in every class as soon as judged. Mr. J. M. Walsb, of Blackburn, sent down a strong team of British and Foreign birds and Mules, which were a great attraction to the visitors, and he won special for most points in show. Mr. B. Bullough won the society's cup, and Mr. E. Sutton the Paton challenge cup. Mr. A. Hirst (Accrington) judged, and his awards were well received.

EDINBURGH O.S. (Open).

The fifty-sixth annual exhibition was held in the Artillery Hall, Grindlay Street, Edinburgh, on Dec. 11, and was a decided success. The entries were about the same as last year, and the quality was all that could be desired, the cream of Scotch Fancy and Belgian Canaries taking part in the contest, which was very keen. The judges here were Messrs. Fulton, Watson (Glasgow), Hogg (Oakley) and Nisbet (Galston), for Scotch Fancy, and Mr. Dewar for Belgians. The exhibits were well placed. The cups were won for the cocks by Mr. McClure, and for the hens by Mr. D. Black; the latter is the seventh cup she has gained this season—a wonderful feat. The weather was wet, which was against the attendance. Great praise is due to Mr. McLennan, the president, and Mr. Meikle, the secretary, for the excellent way in which they carried out the arrangements. Their efforts were ably backed up by a splendid working committee.

UTRECHT (Holland).

(See photographs on page 557 this week.)

The 16th annual Grand International Show of the Utrecht O.S. was held in the Fruithall at Utrecht, on Dec. 10th, 11th, and 12th. One of the points in the management on which this exhibition differs from those held in our own country is that all the exhibits had to be in the hall on Dec. 8th, ready for the judging, which took place on Dec. 9th, on which day the general public were not allowed in the exhibition. By this arrangement the public were able to obtain catalogues with awards on the morning of the first day of the show. The exhibition was well arranged, and decorated with flags and plants, and the place from the staging to the floor was draped with a green material, so that no empty hampers or boxes or other lumber was visible. The cage bird exhibits were nicely staged in a well lighted room, suitably heated by stoves. The glass case containing the cups and specials made a really grand display. The specials included a very handsome silver medal, presented by Her Majesty the Queen of Holland. The society is very fortunate in possessing such an affable and businesslike secretary as Mr. N. Wafelhakker, who is well supported by the other officers. The judges for the cage bird section were: Messrs. W. J. M. De Bas and C. L. W. Noorduyn. We were sorry to find the competition in this section confined to but a few exhibitors. The birds were well looked after, so it is hoped the number of exhibitors will be greatly increased next year.

The Critique.

CAN., DUTCH (6): All exhibited by Mr. W. A. van Leeuwen, the winning birds were of nice quality and good feather, the first being a cl yell, and the second an evenly marked one. GERMAN (10): 1, Maréchal, smart cl yell, shown in good form; 2, van Santen, also nice bird, of good quality. These birds are very similar to a Norwich in shape, but not very much larger than a Border Fancy. CINN. (7): Good lot; 1, Schaurman, nice col. and shape, in very good form; 2, van Leeuwen, nice style and col. LANCS. (2): Exhibited by Mr. van Leeuwen. CREST (6): Mr. van Leeuwen had the class to himself; 1, nice green, good crest, fine quality of feather. NOR. PLAINHEAD (6): 1, 2, van Leeuwen, 1st, nice shape and carriage, good col; 2nd, fine feather and size, wee bit too upright in carriage. YORKS. (7): 1, 2, van Leeuwen, nice quality birds, some preferred the second as winner, being far better in shape and carriage. BORD. FCY. (6): 1, 2, Leeuwen. MULE (15): 1, 2, Sluis, nice col and quality. DUTCH BIRDS (21): A good class; 1, and 2 spls, Sulis, Great Spotted Woodpecker, well shown; 2, Nieuwenhoven, very fine Redstart; 3, Maréchal. FOR. (10): 1, 3, Sluis, 1st, good Glossy Starling; 2, Maréchal. BULLFINCH (16): 1, Sutherland; 2, 3, Maréchal. CARDINALS (5): 1, 2, 3, Sluis, winner very good Red-crested; 2nd, nice Black-crested; 3rd, Cardinal Grosbeak. PARRAKEETS (5): 1, 2, Sluis; 3, Sutherland. PARROTS (5): 1, 2, 3, Sutherland.

DUMBARTON (Vale of Leven).

Vale of Leven and Dumbartonshire O.S. held their 37th annual open show in the Co-op.rative Halls, Bank-street, Alexandria, on December 11th. The Halls are well lighted and heated. The cage birds were staged in the small hall, and were very comfortable. There was plenty of light from large windows, and a nice even temperature. The entries were about the same as in past years, although the fog and frost kept a lot of entries back. Mr. W. Webster (Greenock) and Mr. Hugh Moreland (Falkirk) judged, and their decisions met with general approval. Mr. Comely, the secretary, had everything in good working order, and was ably assisted by a hard-working committee. We were sorry to hear that Mr. Comely is leaving the district to take up a position in Greenock; but what one society loses will be another's gain. Considering the wet day there was a large turn-out of visitors in the afternoon.

WAKEFIELD (Roller).

The Wakefield Roller C.C. held their seventh annual contest on December 10th and 11th, in the Guild Room, Co-operative Hall, and drew a record entry of 152 birds. The quality of the birds was far in advance of any of the other shows held by the club. Mr. Randall was most successful, with 6 birds, winning 2 firsts, 2 seconds, 1 third, and 1 fifth. Mr. Foulds won Wakefield Members' Cup, to be won twice before becoming the absolute property of winner. The winner of the novice young bird class was soon claimed; no wonder, when it was only catalogued at £2—a good cheap bird. The second in the £2 limit was claimed. There are plenty of buyers of good birds if these are put at reasonable prices. There was a good number of the exhibitors present; but the weather was too wet for the local public. A good feature was the early closing, as this allows one plenty of time to get the birds off; and the hall was clear of the birds that had to go by rail by 7.30 p.m. All praise is due to the sec., Mr. Netherwood, for the way he got through his work. It is to be hoped the young bird competition will be held next year, as it has proved a complete success to all shows that have been held so far. We hope this show will have proved a financial success. Messrs F. A. Lester, J. B. Hedling, and F. Oldroyd judged.

TAVISTOCK.

Annual show of the Tavistock and Dis. F.S. was held on Dec. 1, at the Town Hall, which is a very suitable venue for the purpose. Many very good birds were staged, and the quality throughout was considered tip-top. Mr. A. R. Glanville, the hon sec., had all the arrangements admirably carried out. Mr. R. Browning judged.

THORNTON (Fife).

Fifth annual show of the Thornton and Dis. O.S. took place on Dec. 11th. The show, which is a combined one, was held in the Public Hall. The cage birds were staged in a side room. There was a grand entry of a little over 250, which was considered very good compared with some of the shows held lately. The quality all over was exceptionally good, and some grand birds were staged in the Norwich and British sections. The arrangements were all that could be desired, and not the slightest detail was omitted. The society are to be congratulated on possessing such an able secretary in the person of Mr. J. Noyes; the manner in which he performs his duties deserves the highest praise. He, along with the president, Mr. A. Leslie, ably assisted by a hard-working committee, had everything in apple pie order when the judges commenced their task, which was in the capable hands of Messrs. T. Merrilees (for Scotch Fancies), J. McLay (for Norwich and Borders), and J. Lowe (for British and Foreign birds), and their awards seemed to give satisfaction to all. Despite the miserable weather, the show was well patronised by the public.

POPLAR.

The annual show of the Poplar C.B.S., held on December 11th, was a most successful and pleasant venture. The entry was good, whilst the quality was far in advance of that seen at previous shows of the society, the novice Norwich being particularly strong and superior to those of the amateurs. In Yorkshires, however, the position was reversed, and the fine team put down by Mr. Mottram carried everything before them. His ticked yellow won the specials for best in Yorkshire section, best amateur's bird, and best bird in the show. It is a fine, lengthy, well tapered specimen, standing on good legs, and showing plenty of style and nerve. Mr. Thomasson was the most successful exhibitor in novice Norwich, winning the specials and best and second best with his winners in the two unflighted classes, and being reserve for the cup with his ticked yellow, a bird of rare type and quality, and only wanting a little more substance to make him a flier. The manner in which this exhibitor's birds were staged was most commendable. The special for third best fell to Mr. Francis's winning buff in the adult class, a bird full of quality and colour, beautifully mealed and well staged. The special for the best novice Yorkshire fell to Mr. Bastable's winner in the unflighted buffs, a bird of rare style and feather, a very fine-feathered buff hen of Mr. Spink's secured the second special, whilst the third fell to Mr. Wyatt's ticked yellow. The special for the best British was taken by a remarkably fine hen Bullfinch shown by Mr. Barber, the second special being taken by Mr. Teasdale's Goldfinch, a bird of very rich colour and fine quality of plumage. Mr. Thomasson's winning Goldfinch secured the special for best Foreign bird, and that for the best hen in the show was taken by a lovely little yellow Norwich owned by Mr. G. Cowles. The exhibits were very nicely staged, and the arrangements generally well carried out by Messrs. T. G. Hunt and A. Mottram, who acted as show managers. The committee responsible for the fixture were Messrs. T. G. Hunt (chairman), A. Mottram (vice-chairman), G. Cowles, H. Priesman, T. Blackley, J. Kidman, J. Braithwaite, A. E. Martin, A. Plumb, S. Lowrie, with Mr. H. W. Cook as hon. sec. The day was most unpropitious, and up to the time of our leaving the gate was not great. We hope, however, in the evening it was better, and that the balance will come out on the right side. The society is doing good work in the East-end, and we wish it much success. Mr. C. A. House judged.

AMATEURS: Mr. J. Reeves had all the Norwich, Cinnamons, and Crests to himself, but his team deserved competition, and the same remark applies to Mr. Mottram in the Yorkshires. NOVICE NOR. YELL. Correspondence.

Lowestoft Fancier's Sad Loss.

SIR,—In this week's CAGE BIRDS there is a letter from Albert Parko respecting the sad loss of the birds of Mr. J. Lay. If Mr. Lay will communicate with P. Victor-Williams, Esq. (Hinstock Hall, Market Drayton, Salop), who is very sorry to hear of his loss, he will give him a pair of Norwich, to help him to start again. F. HALLDEN.

The Lochgelly Cage Bird Society.

SIR,—A meeting was held in the Gothenburgh Hotel, on December 11th. The number of fanciers present was very satisfactory. It was unanimously agreed to form the above-named society, and to hold an open show on October 15th, 1910. The following officials were elected:—Mr. T. Taylor (president), Mr. W. Whiteford (secretary), Mr. T. Wildridge (treasurer), with nine as a committee. Another meeting will be held on December 25th, at 7 p.m., to report progress and enroll members, of whom we expect to see a large number.

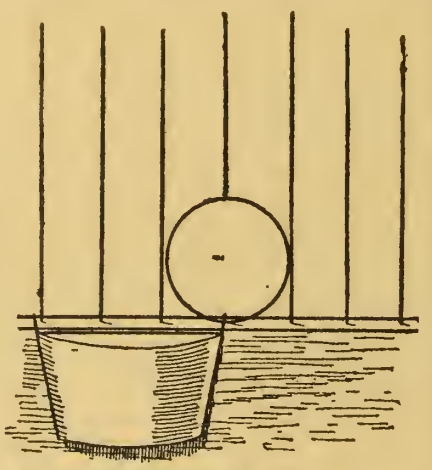
Borders at Cockermouth.

SIR,—Seeing Mr. Hopper's note, re the above, in your last issue, and being an exhibitor in the same class, I would (with your permission) like to add a few words. My bird, No. 6, being passed for being colour-fed, I may say, like Mr. H., that no Border Fancy of mine has ever touched colour-food of any kind, and as a member of the B.F.C.C. I feel this rather strongly. We try to breed colour into these birds, and then are put back like this and blamed for using artificial matter. I am also prepared to allow any reasonable test of my bird to prove that it was shown honestly. I think the B.F.C.C. should, at their New Year's meeting, reconsider this colour question, where a show is being held under their patronage. J. ELLWOOD.

The Modern Norwich Plainhead



The Licensing of Our Judges.

SIR,—In thanking Mr. R. E. Worthington for his courteous reply to my letter, may I assure him that I quite realise that he did not advise Mr. Jowett (in so many words) to pair his birds to please any individual judge? I simply placed my construction upon his letter and, as it were, traced out the result of acting upon the advice given therein; if I advise any young fancier to show only under judge A, then surely I am advising him to breed or to purchase (which others must breed) to please the individual taste of Judge A, and this advice, I repeat, can only end in chaos in the Fancy. In reply to Mr. J. Bastock I will endeavour to answer his questions, trusting, at the same time, to afford him a little more amusement. How would I examine a person applying for a judge's license? I should require him to give me a practical demonstration of his ability to judge a class of birds before a committee of fanciers representing the breeders and exhibitors of that particular bird. I should require him to prove to that committee that he was able to recognise the good points and the faults of each particular bird, and that he was, in their opinion, able to select from the exhibits the one nearest approaching the model decided upon by the club representing the breeders and exhibitors of that bird. In the opinion of the judge, the model set up as the national type by the majority of breeders may not be a good one, but that is merely a private and individual opinion, and should not be introduced into his judging. One must have a type to breed to in every particular line of the Fancy, and it is for the breeders and exhibitors (who pay the piper) to decide what that type shall be; having decided, it is for the judge to judge to that type, and not to individual likes or dislikes. As the matter stands at present, any people with a fair amount of cheek can advertise themselves as judges of birds, with a fair chance of obtaining an engagement, especially if they have a little influence "behind the scenes." This, in my opinion, is absurd, and must be remedied before any great improvements can be made in the Fancy. As regards many breeders having no confidence in their own judgment, there is nothing strange in that. Successful judging necessitates an extremely acute power of observation to detect and notice the slightest faults. A good judge may be a very bad practical breeder of birds, and a most successful breeder may be an extremely bad judge. I know a very large dealer who owns that all birds of a species look exactly alike to him; Yorkshires all look the same, and Norwich all seem to him the same, unless some have been fed and some are non-fed. Yet this man, if he advertised or used his influence, could undoubtedly get engagements as judge. How long are exhibitors going to tolerate this? As things stand at present, show managers, if they wish to hold successful shows, will have to classify their exhibits as follows: Norwich Plainheads, Judge A's type, Judge B's type, Judge C.'s type, and so on, for how can you expect an exhibitor possessing birds which please Judge A to exhibit where Judge B is advertised to officiate? After all, most exhibitors are possessed of a little common-sense, and do not throw their money away in useless exhibiting; they like to have a chance when they do show. Every week we hear secretaries complaining of lack of entries; under present conditions entries must rule small; if Judge A is judging they cannot expect the whole Fancy to exhibit under him—only those possessing Judge A's type of birds will exhibit; the others will keep their birds at home. Let us combine and decide upon the type to be the national type of each variety, then see that our judges judge to the model, then we shall get larger entries, larger prizes, better birds, and less grumbling. As regards certain men being appointed judges because they happen to be engaged on the Fancy Press, I must say this, that being on the staff of a paper does not qualify a man to pose as an expert; but, on the other hand, it certainly does not disqualify. An editor certainly uses his judgment to discover whether the would-be reporter knows anything of his subject or not; and regular attendance at shows must tend to improve the knowledge of the reporter if he has the slightest interest in his work.

How to Prevent Birds from Bathing While at Shows.

SIR,—I enclose a sketch showing how to prevent birds from washing at shows. If the committee of a given show will take the trouble to put the fountains on as per sketch, the birds can drink but cannot wash. Sometimes we find birds late in the afternoon that have been without water all day, and are very thick for want of water; then the poor judge is blamed after it recovers.

A Hint to Show Stewards.

A WELLINGS.

Whose Should the Prize Card be?

SIR,—Mr. Bastock does not answer the question asked. The question is, whose should it be? Not who should claim it. But we will take it for what it really means, that is, whose property is the prize card? My opinion is that when you enter your exhibits for a show, you put the price on for bird and cage as sent to the show. Whatever is awarded to the exhibit at the show is not included in the catalogue price; therefore they belong to the exhibitor. You may just as well take the prize money as take the card, as one entitles the bird to the other.

Cage Bird Union, District No. 1.

The Wallsend Sensation.

SIR,—Please notify your readers that Mr. H. Bennet, whose cages were protested against at Wallsend Show for having marked perches (and who has exhibited for seasons under the most prominent judges in England and Scotland, his cages fitted exactly as they appeared there, without any complaint being made), has been cautioned not to send his cages out with any marks whatever likely to create suspicion of the integrity of a judge when placing awards. Messrs. J. Currah and Son were exonerated, as having removed the perches without knowing there were marks on them from one of Mr. Bennet's cages, which was in their possession. By instruction of District Committee No. 1.

A Complete Bird Spray.

SIR,—In answer to Mr. Frederick Ellis as to my idea submitted to you on October 9th, I may say I have had one of these sprays in use now for the last twelve months, and find it a perfect and complete spray. I have also shown it to various friends, who are highly pleased with it. If Mr. Ellis has not had the patience to draw his glass tube fine enough to break off to the most minute hole, then he must expect failure or a stream of water strong enough to knock his birds off their perches, or, probably, through the back of the cage. I advise Mr. Ellis to try again.

Suggestions for Societies and Specialist Clubs.

SIR,—After attending several shows held in the North, and mixing amongst fanciers of the Northern societies, and hearing, too, the complaints as regards judging at shows I beg to make the following suggestions. Members of societies who are now paying about 6s. or so subscriptions to their clubs, I suggest should join the specialist club now existing for all varieties, and have the 2s. 6d. deducted from their annual subscription to their society, each member to join the specialist club through his own society. The judges, I suggest, too, should be nominated by the specialist clubs, and voted for by the members of societies. These suggestions, if adopted, might enable a show to have all sections properly judged, and with the increase of membership of the specialist clubs the cost of judging ought not to be any more. Perhaps the cost would be less if the scheme were successful. And all disputes arising in each section could be settled by the specialist club concerned. I may say I am in no way connected with any specialist club whatever. The idea came to me after reading over the Gateshead show schedule. I do not wish to go any further with the matter; I only make the suggestion for an abler pen to take up with.

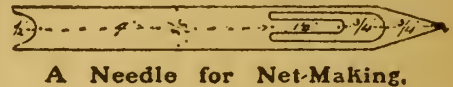
Even-marked Borders at Biggar Show.

SIR,—In your issue of November 27th there the two letters with regard to even marked Borders, the writers asking what is an even-marked bird. As one who has bred these birds for many years, and who dearly loves to see a good even-marked one, either 4-pointed or 6-pointed, either in a Norwich, a Yorkshire, a Border, or a Mule, I have always been given to understand that an even-marked bird may be one with only eye markings (of course, even); these are called 2-pointed. Those with even on wings as well as eyes are called 4-pointed, and those with even tail markings are called 6-pointed. Any other markings, no matter where, or if even, are not counted as even marks. I hope these few lines will be sufficient to explain the meaning of even marks.

4-POINTED.

SIR,—I consider the plate in the CAGE BIRDS ANNUAL of this year of an even-marked Border, bred and exhibited with many honours by that enthusiastic Border Fancy breeder, Mr. F. Wardleworth, is sufficient to go upon in deciding what a 4-pointed Border Fancy is. I trust this will be of benefit to your readers, and I wish your valuable paper every success. REDROB.

SIR,—I am pleased to see the various letters appearing in CAGE BIRDS on the above question. The letters of last week's correspondents which appeared under noms-de-plume would have carried more weight if the writers had given their names. Surely, to breed a perfect marked bird and to see the markings of our birds settled either one way or another, is worth striving for; and no one need to be ashamed to show his mind on such an important question. I have a motion before the general meeting of the Border Fancy Club which I trust will receive due consideration, as this is a point which gives rise to a deal of vexation and misunderstanding between exhibitors and judges. The motion is that the B.F.C.C. issue a list of markings, so that all members may know how to classify their birds. Birds with two marks above and with thigh marks; birds with marked eyes, wings, and vent, such as the Canary in point; also birds in whose case the eye is broken by light feathers either above or below the eye—all birds so marked, in my opinion, should be classed as "uneven," being in reality either 5 or more pointed. I agree with our popular secretary, Mr. Jamieson, that if birds are marked at base of tail, those marks should count against them, and be avoided as much as possible when this runs in a strain. Mr. Hocking will see from the above that a bird marked as above ought to be shown in the uneven class, in my own opinion, and that also of many more breeders. Indeed, I may say I see birds so marked in uneven classes continually, and I don't W.C. them, providing the vent mark is quite discernible and larger than a threepenny-piece. We all know the difficulty there is in breeding an even-mark entirely clear below at thigh and vent; and I think if, in even-marked birds a mark was allowed at thighs, the vent markings to be smaller than a threepenny piece, this would go a long way to solve this problem. The above points I have shown under and also judged as such for some years now. I trust to see a free and friendly exchange of opinion through your pages.



J. PATTERSON.

SIR,—I read with great interest Messrs. Jamieson's and Hocking's letters concerning the above, but I was a little taken aback at not seeing Mr. Gardner standing to his guns, as he did on the night of Biggar Show. So I myself and other fanciers in this district take it as an open confession from Mr. G. that he admits he is wrong. If he has read with care the two letters from the above-mentioned gentlemen, I think he ought to, and if breeders and exhibitors understand Mr. Jamieson's letter, there will be no more visible rings or marks where they should not be on even-marked birds. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.

How to Make a Capital Netting Needle.

SIR,—In your issue of December 4th, I read with much interest the notes on "The Art of Net Making." If it would interest any of your readers, who wish to make their own nets, they may find the needle (of which I send a sketch) very useful, and much easier to use, than the one described in Fig. 1., in "The Art of Net Making." It is best made out of the wood of orange boxes, but you must be careful it does not split. The sketch is drawn to the exact size from one of my own needles. I have made and used them myself, so I hope your readers will find this as useful as I have. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success and a prosperous new year.

The Welsh C.B.C. Patronage and Swansea Show.

SIR,—It was with infinite amusement that I read Mr. Jones' feeble and contemptible endeavour at retaliation in your previous issue. It is immediately obviously noticeable that he has entirely failed to disprove either the statistical or other statements I have previously enunciated, re the W.C.B.C. patronage. Therefore, I believe my ultimate object is attained, in exposing to the Fancy the corruptible state of the W.C.B.C., though under a cunning disguise. Although Mr. J. may be an adept at "bluff," "Magna est veritas et prevalebit." You have inadvertently "put your foot in it," Mr. J., and do your society a great injustice in exposing it to the ridicule of the Fancy, especially at Swansea. I am inclined to doubt your vaunted mathematical proficiency. Judging by your recent lamentable attempt at subtraction, it is immediately apparent that you are still ignorant of even the rudimentary stages, which, of course, your infantile brain failed to grasp at the age of nine. Do not be discouraged, however, Mr. J., as I am positively assured that it is possible to make an impression upon even the hardest variety of "wood," if suitable instruments are employed, i.e., hammer and chisel. Should I ever find it necessary to subtract from anyone' letters, I can assure you I will choose one worthy of the name, not a miserable apology as your recent deplorable attempts, which were but a repetition of my own. Your base insinuation re the leaflet is only an unworthy suggestion from a misguided and fertile imagination. The leaflet is intact, Mr. J., just as I received it, and as I have previously mentioned, the classification is conspicuous by its absence. It contains 70 words, and you have twice attested your signature, which you cannot disprove. It is not presumption on my part to say that I can substantiate my statements, but a stubborn fact contained in "black and white." To revert, however, to your ineffectual attempt to boycott our recent show, I beg to state that, far from being a stretch of imagination on my part, it was a deliberate and premeditated act of your own infantile brain. Perhaps Mr. J. is ignorant of the fact that I have in my possession some correspondence which he posted previous to our recent show, advising the said boycott, which if published would cause sensational results among fanciers? I intend using this only as a last resource, therefore, advise Mr. J. to apologise and admit his mistake, realising that the "trump card" has yet to be played, and is at present secure in the possession of Interesting "Beak" Experience.

SIR,—The following may perhaps be of interest to some of your readers. One of my aviaries contains Budgerigars, Lovebirds, Rosellas, etc. One out of the last nest of Yellow Budgerigars had the misfortune to lose the whole of its top beak. How this happened I don't know, but I give a cock Rosella credit for it. At first I thought I would kill it at once, but on second thoughts I let it remain, and kept careful watch over it. As the old birds were able to feed it, it kept strong and healthy. At the end of a fortnight its beak was growing again, and is now about a quarter of an inch long. It tries to eat but cannot crack the seed, but the old birds and also a pair of Lovebirds keep feeding it. At the present rate I judge it will take about 2 months to grow an entirely new beak. This is a very interesting experience to me as I have never heard of a similar case. I should be willing to show this bird to anyone who could call.

The Late Entry Nuisance.

SIR,—I think if all secretaries were as prompt in payment of prize-money as Mr. Treasure we should hear less about the late entry nuisance. It certainly seems very bad luck that hard-working secretaries should suffer for the faults of others. Personally, I am at present owed about a sovereign from three different shows, one of which was held nearly a month ago. I don't expect to make showing pay, but I do expect to make it balance or nearly so, and how a working man can afford to go on showing when he is always paying out, while what prize-money he wins may, or may not, turn up in a month's time, I can't make out. Why doesn't the C.B.U. enforce the payment of prize-money within seven days? Surely it isn't such a frightful lot of work for the secretary to get through. I should have thought that any business is much better settled up at once. Also, I think if the date of the closing of the entries was advertised to be as late as it is convenient for the secretary, and no extension were given, exhibitors would soon find they would have to enter at the stated time. Judging by myself, I often think entries for such and such a show close on the Monday; the show isn't till the Thursday in the following week, and I'll just wait and see if my birds are all right from the show they are at the week before, and trust the entries are extended. I then have to wait a day longer till I get my papers on Friday evening. The entries are posted Saturday, and the poor secretary suffers. I don't defend my conduct in the least, but between railway charges, half prize-money and delayed at that—what is an unfortunate exhibitor to do?

Trouble about a Special.

SIR,—I may say that I have nothing further to add to my statement in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, re special. But I must again correct some of the statements made by "Canny Toon" in the last issue. He goes on to say that the young Crest had in other competitions been placed first. Now, the young Crest was only placed first in the young Crest class, and in no other competition was it placed first. I may inform "Canny Toon" that my Crest was not in competition for the challenge bowl, as he was over age; the bowl is given for the best young bird in the show, bred and exhibited in the current year, so that there could not have been any discussion on this point. I may also inform "Canny Toon" that the bowl was won by a Siskin-Canary Mule, which only took second prize in a Mule and Hybrid class of five entries. On another occasion during the judging my Crest was brought forward with other birds to be judged for best bird in the show. Now, this special was won by a foreign bird, so you see, even the bowl winner did not get this valuable prize. I can safely say that I have never made any such remark to a bystander as "Canny Toon" suggests; I must therefore ask him to verify his statement. I, myself, heard many times during the show that my old Crest was much larger than the young Crest. Perhaps this is what "Canny Toon" heard also. With regard to the young Crest-bred, "Canny Toon" has also been wrongly informed. In the open Crestbred class 25, for young birds, I entered a Clear Buff cock, No. 11, and a Variegated hen, No. 10. The Clear took 2nd prize, and the Variegated did not get a card. Now, the Clear Buff was entered in the members' Class 79, and was No. 9; it was again awarded 2nd prize, and the two prize cards were duly fixed on the cage. The Variegated hen was entered in the members' hen class 80, No. 5, and took first prize. When the catalogues were issued I found that the award for the Clear Buff was placed to the credit of another bird; I might say that this "other bird" was shown in the open, and was not in the cards. I drew the secretaries' attention to this, and was informed by them that I would have to stand by the judge's slip, but that I could write the judge and see where the error was. I was subsequently informed by the secretary that the judge said the bird standing out of the prizes in the members' class "is probably the one out of the tickets in the open"; if not, he must not have seen it when judging the members' classes. So that on the face of this letter, it will be clearly seen that the judge has not recommended any alteration in my favour in the members' Crestbred bird class 79. So that the awards remain the same as when judged. Thus, in the young Crestbred class I was told that I would have to stand by the judge's slip. But in the case of the carvers, where this prize was duly awarded to me, I am asked to agree to a revised decision. In conclusion, I would like to impress upon "Canny Toon" the necessity of verifying his statements got from questionable authorities, before putting them in print.

Leicester Cage Bird Society's Open Show.

SIR,—I must congratulate your reporter on his report of our late show. On behalf of the above society, will you kindly allow me to thank those exhibitors who helped to make our show a success. I said ours was "the show of the Midlands," and so it turned out to be; 640 exhibits, and out of this only one members' class. Every class in the schedule stood; none cancelled or amalgamated, and no prizes withheld. I also wish to thank those exhibitors who have written to me congratulating us upon the manner their exhibits were returned. I have not had one complaint, and I am proud to receive such acknowledgements, when you consider the distance some of the exhibits had to travel. All those who came to tho show marvelled at the collection got together, and appreciated the ideal hall in which the show was held, and the manner in which the birds were cared for. I can assure you, Mr. Editor, that some of the letters I have received I shall cherish for many a day, and certainly I should like to make the personal acquaintance of the gentlemen who wrote them. I especially wish to thank those exhibitors who sent from a distance, there were 125, so it was no local show. This being my first show, I was rather anxious over the entries, but I was pleased to see they rolled up well at the finish; the day of closing I had not got a dozen entries. However, "all's well that ends well." All prize-money and specials (money) have been paid within four days, and if there should be any exhibitor who has not received them, will he please let me know at once? I am sorry we had such bad weather, as this told very much from a gate point of view.. However, we hope fates will deal more kindly with us in the future.

J. A. TYLER, Sec.

SIR,—It is with very much pleasure I have to inform your readers of the splendid condition in which my birds were returned from the Leicester Show. They came home equally as fresh as when they left; in fact, my Linnet, "Browny," struck up into full song as soon as the case was opened. Also, I am delighted with the prompt payment of prize money, as I received mine the second day after the show. I herewith tender my sincere thanks to the secretary, Mr. Tyler, and the other officials concerned, and shall not forget them at the next annual fixture.

How to Arm Nets.

SIR,—In reply to "Amateur," on the arming of nets, he should have no difficulty in doing it. Being made on the square mesh plan, all he requires to do is to pick up four meshes and use a 3-in. mesh for the arming that will bring it quite right. With the diamond plan it is more difficult. The best thing to use for the arming is the same sort of line they use for fishing. You can get it at any fishing tackle shop; it is stout and of brown colour. Should this not be sufficiently clear, give me your address, and I will send you a piece armed, so you can see more fully. In regard to the sharped (?) Goldies, are your nets a good colour, viz., match the ground on which you set them? Also, do you cover your call-bird cages up with dry grass, and use iron pins for your staves instead of wood (as they do not show)? Also, when you hear your birds "shout," raise your flirt bird, and keep her steady there until you see them approaching; then let her drop. You should get an 80-yard pull line, and get under cover of hedge. If you require a stain for your nets, the best I have ever found is walnut husks. Boil them and put the nets in the hot liquor. you can stain them any shade you like, and they will stand any weather. I trust the above will be of some use to you, and I hope to hear you have netted those Goldies. I should like to have a pull at them myself.

Framing "Cage Birds" Plates: A Useful Suggestion.

SIR,—To enjoy to the full the excellent coloured plates issued by CAGE BIRDS, I have adopted the following plan. Provide a frame of ordinary picture moulding, 14½ins. by 10½ins. (inside measure), with a deep rebate. Upon the usual thin wood back, fix as shown in sketch at (A), two strips 1¼ins. by ⅜in. thick. Taper same on one side from centre to end to ⅛in. Fix these at 3ins. from the end of loose back (tapered side of board), with two Paull pins. Select your choice of picture for the front, and the remainder upon it (I have more than a dozen in). Place back. Then fix four small buttons at (B) to hold down back in place. To hang vertical or horizontal screw in the frame, as shown at (C), four screw eyes. Pass your cord through three and fasten at the fourth, leaving the cord long enough to hang either way.

EDWIN SHARRATT.

Alleged Unfair Treatment at Shows.

SIR,—I am delighted that I have touched Messrs. Duffield, Irlam, etc., where they are a little tender, and if I could make an impression on all secretaries, delegates, etc., who are accredited to any Union in connection with the cage bird Fancy, then I could flatter myself I had done a little good to the Fancy. Then the question of railway neglect would be taken up by a number, and not a unit like myself, for I should only receive again from the railway company what has been sent in the past, an acknowledgement of my letter of complaint—its contents duly noted and "shelved." What is the good of any single Union? Why, none. Let all federate for the purpose of protecting the fancier from the Moloch Railway. I do not blame any secretary of any society particularly, for, taken as a class, they are courteous, hardworking fanciers, but many times are not as ably supported at the close of shows by their stewards as they ought to be, and, of course, if anything goes wrong, the first person to "go for" is the secretary. So I am justified in making my complaint a wider one through your esteemed journal, CAGE BIRDS. Will Mr. Duffield kindly enquire for a telegram directed to him by me at 6.30 p.m. Nov. 19th at the Dartmouth Hotel? It is no "paltry thing," Mr. D., to receive the birds in the condition I did, and of which I made no complaints. You would feel a "bit off" were you kept in a dark room for twenty hours with nothing to drink, and a dry crust to chew, which was the position of my exhibits, and the indictment by Mr. Irlam of the Railway Co., which I hold in his handwriting is terrible. But as I don't like trespassing upon your valuable space too much, I again repeat that if the Unions will use their strength, something can and must be done to bring home to the railway companies a knowledge of their gross neglect. I thank you, sir, for your great kindness, as this is my last word in the matter.

MRS. C. M. SUNDERLAND.

SIR,—Last week a letter appeared in your columns written by Mr. J. H. O'Neile (Lurgan) complaining of the late arrival of Mr. J. Lavery's birds from the Y.C.C. of I. Show, held on 25 and 26 Nov. The following facts will go to show that neither my committee nor your humble was to blame. Mr. Lavery wrote me asking to have his birds sent by last train leaving Dublin on the Friday night, which was 8.20 p.m. The show did not close till 10 p.m. I brought the matter before my committee, and it was unanimously decided not to send Mr. Lavery's birds on at 8.20, as the committee was of opinion that if Mr. Lavery was made an exception (I may mention that the committee thought bad of having to uphold the rules in his case), that other exhibitors would be grumbling that they were not treated in the same manner. It is strange that Mr. Lavery did not receive his birds earlier than he did. I handed over the birds to the carrier (Mr. Tidy, Ship Street) at 8.35 a.m., and the same were delivered at Amiens St. Station at about 9 o'clock, and should have left Amiens St. at 10 o'clock for Lurgan. Evidently the railway company did not send by the 10 a.m. train. I hope this explanation will prove that the Y.C.C. of I. committee is in no way to blame for the late arrival of Mr. Lavery's birds.

J. R. HYLAND, Hon. Sec., Y.C.C. of I.

Alleged Mix-up of Awards at Margate Show.

SIR,—Excuse us taking up your valuable time, but we think the following ought to be put to the Fancy and judges, especially Judge North. I exhibited here at Ramsgate four birds in the foreign class and received labels numbered Class 134, 886a, 886b, 886c, 886d. Before the show I sold the first two, and exhibited the other two, 886c and 886d. I visited the show and found 886d had taken a third prize, and my cage had a prize card on, which I still have. When catalogue was printed, instead of my name it was another exhibitor's. I saw the secretary, and he said they had sent a wrong label to the other exhibitor, and so there were two birds 886d, but he would award a prize to each. I received the prize money for first and special I took with a Light Mule, but not for the third in Foreign Class. I personally saw the secretary, who informed me they had decided to award the prize to the other exhibitor. He was kind enough to show me the entrance sheet, and there were my entries, 886c, 886d as follows: 886c, Lewis and Co., Spice Birds; 886d, (here a blank space was left in the book); 886e, here another exhibitor's name had been crossed out, and put in my place (886d) in pencil; in 886e it was entered in ink. So you see, I entered my exhibits before the one to whom they awarded the prize. As a cage bird judge I contend that as my exhibits were entered first, and the judge's list was 886d, I was entitled to the prize, and that really the other exhibit was not entitled to compete, owing to the mistake. It is not the value of the prize money I care about, but fair is fair, so I should like to hear others' opinions on the matter, as I consider it a serious matter to other exhibitors if this kind of thing should happen to them.

Some Current Topics Discussed.

SIR,—Re the proper classification of Ticked, Marked and Variegated Canaries of any variety, I think it would be a great advantage if reporters of shows or anyone writing copy for your valuable paper would exercise the greatest care in the use of technical terms. Strictly speaking, there are only six recognised technical marks on a Canary: each eye, each wing, and each side of tail, constituting two, four and six pointed birds respectively. In face of this I frequently notice in reports of shows judged by one of our most competent judges of many years standing, and who invariably reports the shows, where he officiates, the comment: "Ticked on eye." This indiscriminate use of terms is responsible for much confusion and creates wrong impressions in the minds of novices, who, it must be remembered, are ever joining the ranks. There is no such thing as a ticked-eyed bird. It is a mark, however small. Last week but one we were gravely informed that a bird could not be six-pointed if it had more than one coloured feather each side of the tail. If it had three coloured feathers each side of tail and also marked eyes and wings, it would still be a six-pointed bird; but two or one each side would be preferable. In the report of an Irish show, Norwich are credited with being "well drawn." This comment cannot be used in connection with Norwich. It is a Yorkshire phrase, meaning a long-bodied bird, as though the natural substance of body had been drawn longer. But the climax is reached when in reporting Buff cocks a winner is accredited with being of good size and substance "for a Buff cock." Where indeed do we expect to find more size and substance in Norwich Plainheads than in Buff cocks? I feel sure much misunderstanding is caused through these loose methods of reporting, and young fanciers become possessed of erroneous ideas and rush into print (perhaps myself included). I have been much interested in the Modern Norwich Plainhead controversy, and regret the attack on an old fancier and his birds, but I am pleased to see he is able to take care of himself.

Birds That Never Fly.

Author of "The World's Birds."

Being notes upon the birds seen in the photographs on page 553.

The usual argument employed by those who consider all keeping of birds in captivity to be cruel is to point out the fancied suffering inflicted on the birds by the deprivation or restriction of their flying exercise. It is assumed that there is nothing that a bird likes so much as flying; yet the fact that there exists many species of birds which cannot fly at all, shows that they cannot think so very much of their aorial rights, for it is in every case quite obvious that the flightless bird has descended from some more or less remote ancestor that could fly, and, in one family and another, all stages of degeneration of the wings may be found.

The Degraded Apteryx.

The Apteryx of New Zealand shows us a bird in the farthest depth of degeneration as far as wings are concerned; it has bartered away its birthright, not for a mess of pottage, but for a diet of worms. It is all beak and legs; a long, slender, groping beak, with the nostrils at the tip instead of at the middle or the root, as in all other birds, and a pair of strong thighs and short sturdy shanks, wherewith it trudges about the forest to seek the feeding-grounds, in which it scents out the wriggling proy. The wings are so very small that they can only be found by feeling among the bird's long hairy-looking plumage; they are bent at the elbow, but not at the pinion, and terminate in a little claw.

Small as they are, however, the bird uses them as a bill-rest when it goes to sleep; at any rate it tucks its head over its back in the usual way at such times. When thus roposing, it is so very sleepy that it can be picked up without awaking it, and even when it is awake, it does not strike one as very bright. Its sight appears to be very poor, even at night, the proper time of its activity, and it goes about sniffing for food like any beast. When not on the prowl, the Apteryx has the beast-like habit of living in a den; in such places it lays its two great eggs, which are extraordinarily largo for the size of the bird, and are sat upon—or rather lain across—by the male only, for in these birds the hen is much the superior sex. Apteryx have laid in England, but no young have ever been hatched as yet here.

The Wily Weka.

The Weka Rail, also a New Zealand bird, shows wing-degeneration in a very early stage; there is nothing much wrong about its wings, except that they are rather small and very soft in the feather, and this softness of its plumago is seen more or less elsewhere, though it has not arrived at the hairiness of the more ancient flightless birds. The Weka, in fact, bears much the same relation to our Landrail as an Orpington does to a Game Bantam. But, while its powers of flight are gone, its mind and senses have remained bright and acute.

In habits it is remarkably like a Crow; omnivorous, cunning and cowardly; it is the terror of overy bird that has eggs or young on the ground, and as it slips through bushes with such ease that a dog cannot catch it in thick cover, and is active by night as well as by day, it is an enemy that is always prosent.

It even resembles the Crow tribe in its habit- of stealing things that are of no use for food, for it is well known as a camp-robber, which will carry off any small object which it can lift; and it has another Crow-like trick of holding down food with its foot while tearing at it. Writers on New Zealand birds have talked as if the whole country was a sort of happy-family cage before we started introducing British birds, but with a largo population of Wekas the other native birds must have found quite sufficient to keep them on the alert. Wekas are nearly as bad as cats, and will catch small flying birds if these are incautious enough to give them a chance. Wekas (of two different species or races, one light and the other dark) have bred at the Zoo, and reared one chick. They are excellent parents, like the Rails generally, but their thievish ways make them so unpopular in New Zealand that they are the only birds, except the Kea or sheep-killing parrot, that the Colonial Government allows to be exported.

The Curious Kakapo.

The Kakapo, or flightless Night Parrot, of New Zealand. is, if anything, less degenerate than the Weka. Its wings look quite all right, although short, but they havo very little in sole and are so useless that when the bird is up a treo, it jumps down when forced to descend. Generally it spends most of its time on the ground, where it waddles about with considerable activity, considering its clumsy build, browsing on any convenient vegetable matter.

In captivity one feeds it much like a rabbit, on carrot, cabbage, and so forth, and it displays an enormous appetito. The Kakapo has been oxhibited at the Zoo moro than once, but it is so nocturnal that it has to bo turned out for visitors to get a view of it. Its plumage of mottled green is very handsome, and if the bird were easier to get, it would probably be in great favour as a pet, for some specimens have been found to get very tame, and even playful and affectionate.

It is a big bird, as large as the Sulphur-crested Cockatoo. No doubt it could be bred by turning it out in an enclosure, but this would need to have a fence of corrugated iron, brick, or hard wood, as the bird has not lost the parrot's power of climbing, so that wire-netting would be of no use to confine it, unless topped by an unclimbable arrangement of overlapping sheet-iron, such as is to be seen at the Squirrels' enclosure at the Zoo. There is a little night Parrakeet in Australia which is in general appearance quite a bantam Kakapo, but curiously enough it has largo wings, and should be a good flier; but it is a curious fact that good fliers are almost as likely to lose the power of flight as poor ones. For instance, the Wild Duck flies far more strongly than the Wild Fowl, being a long-distance traveller, which the other is not, but, as everyone knows, the average tamo duck has lost its power of flight much more completely than the fowl has.

The Paddle-winged Penguin.

The flightlessness of the Penguins is of quite a different character from that of the birds we have been discussing. It is true that at some very ancient period in the history of the race the Penguins gave up flying in the air, but instead of letting their wings run to waste, they have developed them into paddles. The Penguin, in fact, flies under water, with just the same stroke as a flying bird in the air, and even when swimming on the surface he still propels himself with his wings, the feet trailing behind as a rudder. To fit them for use in the water, the Penguin's wings have lost the power of folding up, and become stiff narrow blades, while there are no quills, but an uniform clothing of little scale-like feathers, offering the least possible resistance to water

The Penguin can also use his wings as fore-legs when he wants to travel rapidly on land, since when pressed he finds he gets on better as a quadruped than a biped; while in a fight he uses them to great effect, being a born boxer as well as biter. The species of Penguin in the picture (Speniscus demarsus) comes from the seas about the Cape, and is the kind most commonly imported. They have plenty of them at the Zoo, where they breed, at any time of the year, in holes and crannies in the beautiful rock-work enclosure, which they share with the sea-lions. Lest, however, anyone anxious to embark in the Penguin fancy should be discouraged by his inability to provide such accommodation, I may mention that this same species bred in Paris years before it did here, in a small enclosure with a tiny pond, which could be easily installed in any suburban back garden, and only dog-kennels as nesting-places.

The Honourable Ostrich.

Of all the flightless assemblage, the Ostrich is the only one which can claim to be a member of the aristocracy of the bird world. He is no skulker in forests where no beast of prey ever prowled till civilization came with dogs and cats, like the Now Zealand birds, nor does he spend half his time at sea like tho Penguin. He is, as an African bird, the inhabitant of a country teeming with big beasts, and he lives as a beast, running better than any of them, and roaring in a way to match the lion himself. Indeed, he has so fallen in with the ways of quadrupeds that ho associates with them, the Gnu and the Zebra being those especially honoured by his friendship.

Nevertheless, being a bird, the Ostrich cannot rid itself of the habit of laying eggs, on which both parents sit, the hen by day and the cock by night, reversing the custom so familiar to us in pigeons and doves.

As the photograph shows, the hen Ostrich is of sombre inconspicuous tints, but tho cock is very handsome, his body-colour being black, while the beautiful soft plumes of wings and tail are snow-white, and make a grand display when the bird is courting. At such times, after strutting about with erected wings, he squats down on his hocks and swings his expanded wings from side to side, while he rolls his head about on the small of his back.

Ridiculous as he seems when thus engaged, he is not to be trifled with in this state of mind, and, as one of his single-legged straightforward kicks will puncturo corrugated iron it is easy to understand how he can make him self respected in quadruped circles, and also how ostrich-farming is a pursuit not altogether unattended with danger. Tho domestication of the Ostrich, however, may justly be regarded as the greatest triumph of aviculture and if other "plume-birds," such as the Egrets were worked for plumes in tho same way, it would be very much better for all parties concerned, especially the birds.

The Cassowary Tribe.

It must have been a Cassowary to which the ancient Greek naturalist alluded when he spoke of the hippalectryon, or horse-cock; for there is something about this strange bird which recalls both the poultry tribe and the equine; not only is its size large, though not approaching the Ostrich's, but its plumage looks very much more like black horsehair than feathers. The wings are absurdly small, and the quills are only represented by spines like porcupine-quills; there has been some statement made about the use of these in combat, but this is not correct. The Cassowary's real weapon is his foot, for on the inner toe he bears a long straight claw, which has a terrible ripping effect when wielded by the powerful leg.

The hen Cassowary is stronger and fiercer than tho cock, as is usual in the case of birds in which the latter sex does all the sitting, as is the case with Cassowaries. The eggs aro very peculiar, with a bright green colour, so that they look like some huge unripe fruit. Young Cassowaries are very pretty playful little things, clad at first in striped down, and then chestnut-hued in their first feathering; the horny helmet first appears as a flat plate, and the bright colours on the bare neck, which differ much in the different species of Cassowaries, are like the black plumage peculiar to the adult. There are quite a number of species, all found in New Guinea, or the countries adjoining.

The Amiable Emu.

The Emu is the least distinguished, in some ways, of all our non-flyers. It has not the plumes of the Ostrich, nor the martial helmet and spear-armod toes of the Cassowary, nor has it the quaint shape of the Apteryx or Penguin. It is, however, a very attractive bird in one way, being of a highly genial disposition, and showing a dog-like desire for being caressed and petted, even when full-grown, while it is seldom dangerously vicious. Its speckly-grey plumage cannot be mistaken for that of any other bird, and its tiny wings, which have no bend in them, are clothed with the same plumage as the body, and so are hardly noticeable.
